USC Sets Record

The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada annual campaign in the Capital district has officially closed with a record total — $23,828.56.

That's almost $3,000 more than last winter's record result and just shy of the $25,000 target for the campaign just finished.

The USC, a federally chartered charitable organization led by Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, has no denominational ties. It has been pumping assistance into deprived countries, mainly for the benefit of children, for 30 years.

Since the Victoria Times began sponsoring the Cup-of-Milk campaign in 1953, local residents have contributed over a quarter-million dollars in food, milk, self-help programs and used clothing.

PUBLIC SECTOR WORKERS

Strike Curbs Eyed

OTTAWA (CP) — Strict measures to curtail illegal strikes and lockouts in public service contract disputes are proposed in the draft report of a special Parliamentary committee studying employer-employee relations in the federal public service.

The Citizen says that the confidential draft report recommends fines as high as $250,000 for unions representing workers in essential services if those employees walk off their jobs. Public servants in jobs designated as essential services by the treasury board do not have the right to strike.

Liberal MP Hal Herbert Vaudreuil, a co-chairman of the joint Commons-Senate committee, said that the draft report has not yet been approved by committee members "so I imagine there will be a number of additions and possibly some deletions."

The report endorses the principle of collective bargaining in the public service and says that unions should continue to have the right to choose between compulsory arbitration or the conciliation-strike route in contract disputes.

But there is a need "for additional limitations and more appropriate remedies for unlawful activity."

The designation of essential government services — now covering those working in jobs involving the safety and security of the public — should be expanded to include factors of health and the protection of property.

The report further recommends that the president of the Privy Council be empowered to refer a contract dispute to an inquiry commission for investigation. Such a body might have the authority to determine what effect the strike is having on the public interest.

There have been more than 50 unlawful strikes since federal employees gained collective bargaining rights in 1967, the report says.

"When the public interest becomes adversely affected, government and Parliament should be prepared to intervene."

Thumping Trade Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada lost $795 million in international trade in 1975 — a sharp reversal from the surplus of $1.52 billion in 1974, figures released Friday show.

The dramatic turnaround in Canada's trade picture produced the first full-year deficit in merchandize trade since 1960.

Statistics Canada reported the value of goods exported to foreign countries rose two per cent to $33.106 billion. But the total paid for imports jumped by 10 per cent to $33.901 billion.

Sales of crude oil, copper ores, lumber and non-ferrous metals dropped substantially from 1974 levels.

At the same time, there were hefty boosts in the value of imported automotive and related products — up by more than $1 billion — and machinery, as well as increases in coal and raw sugar purchases.

Oil imported during 1975 for Eastern Canadian consumers cost $650 million more than in 1974, but the agency said most of this resulted from further price increases.

The actual volume of both exports and imports was down from 1974 levels while prices were up in both cases.

The volume of exports dropped eight per cent, but the volume of imports was down only five per cent. The prices Canada received for exports were up an average of 10.5 per cent but the prices paid for imports jumped by an average of 16 per cent.

The total value of exports in 1975 was up two per cent from 1974. This compares with a jump of 27 per cent in 1974 from the previous year.

On the import side, purchases from the U.S. rose 10.5 per cent from 1974, and those from the United Kingdom and the six EEC countries increased nine per cent.

Oil Export Cut Means More Puget Tankers

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Federal Energy Administration admitted Friday that new rules allocating dwindling Canadian oil imports will increase tanker traffic in Puget Sound.

The FEA said there will have to be four or five additional 60,000-ton tankers bringing oil into the area every three months to make up for reduced Canadian imports. This will begin in March.

Canada had asked the FEA to take special account of the peril to the British Columbia environment if tanker traffic increased, raising the risk of a major oil spill.

But the FEA has at least temporarily rejected Canada's plea, made by the federal government in an aide-memoire to the State Department.

The FEA also rejected similar pleas by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and by Washington State.

The EPA had urged first priority allocation of Canadian oil to refineries in the Puget Sound area.

"The FEA has carefully considered the environmental and energy impacts and has concluded on balance that for at least the first six months such special consideration is not warranted," the new rules state.

After six months, the FEA said, it will review the situation.

The first priority for Canadian oil will go to refineries with no other source of supply. These are mainly in the "northern tier" of border states such as Minnesota, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Montana. Washington State refineries are considered capable of getting alternate supplies from Alaska or other tanker routes.

The Canadian National Energy Board has been allocating the oil imported by the U.S. and will continue to do this for the first three months of the year. But in March, the new FEA rules will come into effect.

The FEA said this will mean that Puget Sound refineries have to find about 20,000 barrels of oil a day from other sources.

This would be the equivalent of four or five additional tankers arriving every three months, the FEA said.

"Such an increase in tanker traffic does not give rise to more than an extremely low risk of an oil spill," the FEA claimed.

NEWS BRIEFS

Irving Contract To Administrator

OTTAWA (FP) — In its first such action, the Anti-Inflation Board Friday referred the labor settlement at Irving Pulp and Paper Ltd., Saint John, N.B., to the administrator for action. The administrator is responsible for imposing penalties under the anti-inflation legislation.

The Irving settlement with 475 members of the Canadian Paperworkers Union provided for an increase in total compensation of 23.8 per cent in the first year.

Olympic Go-Ahead

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — The International Olympic Committee confirmed today the Montreal Olympics would open July 17 as planned. The IOC's nine-man executive board questioned Dr. Victor Goldbloom, the Quebec public affairs minister, for 10 hours before deciding to go ahead.

House Starts Rose

VANCOUVER (CP) — Preliminary statistics released by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. say housing starts in urban British Columbia more than doubled in December, 1975, compared with 1974. The study said 2,780 units were started in 19 urban centres last December, compared with 1,331 in 1974.

No IRA 'Blackmail'

LONDON (AP) — British authorities will let a hunger-striking Irish Republican Army guerrilla die before giving in to "blackmail," says Home Secretary Roy Jenkins.

"I wish no one to starve themselves to death, but I am not going to give in to blackmail," Jenkins said in a television interview Friday, referring to IRA threats to bomb British cities if 34-year-old Frank Stagg dies.

$89,000 for Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — A one-shot advertising campaign to tell 6,500 companies they must file certain financial reports to the anti-inflation board by Feb. 27 cost the board $89,000, a board official said Friday.

The advertisements appeared in about 200 daily newspapers on Thursday, advising companies they could pick up the required forms at national revenue offices.

Fire Kills Woman

VANCOUVER (CP) — Colette Cayer, about 45, was killed Friday night in a fire that gutted the living room of her home about 6:30 p.m. Police said that the fire was believed to have been caused by a cigarette that had been smouldering in a chesterfield.

CIA 'Paid $74M'

TURIN, Italy (AP) — The newspaper La Stampa says the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency paid $74 million to Italian politicians since 1948, most of it to Premier Aldo Moro's Christian Democrats.

GOT A LIGHT?

Puffing away on the award-winning total of 35 stogies is Paul Mears, champion of the University of Winnipeg's annual cigar-smoking contest. Last year's mark was 32 and contest officials say both are world records.

U.S. Satisfied On Gander

WASHINGTON (CP) — United States officials say they are basically satisfied with information they have been given by Ottawa about the use of the Gander, Nfld., airport by Cuban aircraft flying to and from Angola.

State department spokesman John Trattner said late Friday: "I believe it (the flights issue) has been solved."

Canadian authorities are reported to have told their American counterparts that unscheduled stops by two Cuban aircraft this month had no direct military connection with the Angolan civil war and that Cuba has been warned against using the base for military purposes.

Meanwhile, military experts here, who asked not to be quoted directly, said that statements by Canadian officials that only two Cuban planes have made unscheduled landings this year tend to understate the situation.

They said Cuba was ferrying a lot of men and equipment to Angola late last year, using numerous airports and planes that were registered in other countries.

Several U.S. officials said they had hoped to keep the whole affair of the landings on a strictly confidential basis between the two governments.

State department officers took issue with a Canadian Press report which said the U.S. had formally asked Canada for information on the Cuban lights. They said the request had been informal. The officials said contacts between the two countries had not been intensive.

Officials indicated, however, their earlier concern had been borne out by Canada's acknowledgement that Cuban aircraft going to and from the area of Angola-torn by a civil war in which Cuba is involved — had in fact landed at Gander.

Temperature Plummets In Europe

LONDON (AP) — Seven women police cadets were trapped in a tent on blizzard-swept Dartmoor in southwest England today as Western Europe experienced its coldest weather in four years.

The conditions turned the sea to ice off southeast England, freezing gales battered ships in the English Channel, and at least four persons perished in Britain and France, authoritiies reported.

The seven trapped women were cut off from rescue by deep snowdrifts after they collapsed, exhausted during a hike across the desolate moor, police said.

An RAF helicopter rescued a pregnant woman from a snowbound village in a 70 mile-an-hour blizzard near Dartmoor and was almost blown out of the sky, an air force spokesman said.

"It covered eight miles in 40 minutes," he said. "If the winds had been any stronger, the chopper would have been flying backwards."

Weather experts in London forecast the big freeze will continue with snow, sleet and gales for another week.

7-LEAGUERS A JUMP AWAY

MOSCOW (UPI) — A couple of graduates of an aviation institute have come up with a new idea in low-flying devices: motorized boots.

The newspaper Pravda said the boots still are considered unsafe for human legs — they have so far been tested only with an iron rod inside — but appear to be a feasible proposition given further development.

Like the storied seven-league boots, the new footwear will propel a man in giant three-yard strides at a speed of up to 15 miles an hour, Pravda said.

Stepping on the heel produces compression of gasoline which is then ignited, propelling a latter-day Mercury almost one foot into the air with a pressure of more than 1,200 pounds.

Pravda said this is less than the heel pressure produced by a triple jumper in athletics. The technique for using the boots would be similar to that used in the triple jump, except that the wearer would be able to make as many as 100 jumps a minute.

"A person wearing these boots could run for hours behind a tram, neither lagging behind nor getting tired, in spite of the fact that each boot weighs more than six pounds," Pravda said. But it warned, "special coaching would be needed."

Pravda said the boots could be used by shepherds, rural mailmen, geologists and tourists.

"Quite possibly, a new form of sports competition might be born," it said.

Ginnell Threatens Boycott

Pat Ginnell, owner-manager-coach of Victoria Cougars, is threatening to boycott a Western Canada Hockey League game Feb. 8 in Kamloops after learning a charge of assault causing bodily harm was laid there Friday against Cougar Archie Henderson.

Failure to appear would mean forfeiture of the $5,000 performance bond each team is required to post at the beginning of each season guaranteeing an appearance at each scheduled game.

The assault charge stemmed from a fight during a game last Sunday in Kamloops in which Larry Lestander of the Chiefs received a concussion after Henderson allegedly punched him in the face.

Crown prosecutor Bob Hunter of Kamloops said the warrant would not be served on Henderson until the Cougars return for the scheduled game Feb. 8.

"We won't be there unless that charge is lifted," Ginnell insisted, adding he has called for an emergency meeting of WCHL governors to discuss the situation.

"It could really open up a can of worms right across Canada," Ginnell said, adding that "every lawyer in the country will be at games trying to represent players who think they have been assaulted."

Lawyer Ellis Achtem has been asked to represent Henderson, who received a three-game suspension from league president Ed Chynoweth earlier this week as a result of the fracas.

Lestander, who was released from hospital Monday, scored two goals against visiting New Westminster Bruins on Wednesday and scored once Friday night against the visiting Winnipeg Clubs.

NOOSE VOTE FREE

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Friday a free vote will be held on capital punishment after the government presents an abolition bill to the Commons next month.

A free vote means that members of Parliament do not have to vote along party lines.

Allmand indicated he would prefer a vote along party lines but said a free vote on capital punishment has become a House tradition in the last 10 years.

"If we can win a free vote, it has more credibility, I suppose," he said in an interview.

Ginter Suits Pile Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three lawsuits tatalling more than $4 million were filed Friday in supreme court against industrialist Ben Ginter and one of his companies.

Ginter's holdings were put into receivership earlier this week by the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commece.

The bank is suing Ginter for $165,214, which it claims he owes it after guaranteeing the liabilities of Uncle Ben's Beverages Ltd.

It also seeks $1,012,658 under a similar bond guaranteeing the liabilities of the beverage company, and seeks $2,948,303 under a bond in which Ginter is said to have guaranteed the liabilities of Ben Ginter Constuction Ltd.

The bank also seeks a court accounting of funds it says Ginter owed in connection with a mortgage on land in Prince George.

The final suit was filed by British Columbia Hydro, which is seeking $18,656 it claims is owing against Uncle Ben's Industries Ltd. for carriage of goods between June, 1973 and June, 1974.

Cannery Cheques Bounce

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The Port Simpson cannery — the Indian self-help project launched with a $10 million commitment by the former New Democratic Party government — is in serious financial trouble, according to the Vancouver Sun.

The newspaper says payroll cheques totalling at least $60,000 have bounced at the Bank of Montreal here and much larger accounts with various suppliers are believed to be outstanding.

A $200,000 operating account of the Pacific North Coast Native Co-Operative, which opened the cannery last year, has been frozen pending an examination by provincial government officials.

The cannery is located in a small coastal village about 30 miles northwest of here.

Labor Minister Allan Williams, the minister responsible for Indian affairs in British Columbia, said Thursday the entire scheme, conceived by the old Social Credit government of W. A. C. Bennett and promoted by the NDP, is under review.

He declined further comment, however, until all information on the matter is analyzed.

Directors of the native co-operative met with Williams last week in a bid to solve start-up problems that were compounded by a poor fishing year.

The provincial government is deeply involved in the cannery project because most of the $10 million pledged by the NDP in grants, loans and guarantees has already been put up.

One Port Simpson store owner is holding $4,000 in bad cheques, the post office at Klemtu, near Ocean Falls, is stuck for $9,500, and the Prince Rupert post office is reported to have cashed about $20,000 in cheques, the newspaper says.

The cannery project has been a centre of controversy since it was first proposed in a dispute between provincial and federal authorities over economic development for the Indians.

Munro: Revolution If Curbs Not Gone

VANCOUVER (CP) — A top British Columbia union leader Friday warned the federal government "there could be a goddamned revolt in this country" 'if it does not repeal the anti-inflation law

The warning came from Jack Munro, western regional president of the International Woodworkers of America, as delegates to their annual convention passed a resolution that:

● Informed Prime Minister Trudeau the IWA will refuse to co-operate in any way with the anti-inflation program;

● Asked the goverment to repeal the anti-inflation law;

● Committed the 55,000-member IWA to support the parent Canadian Labor Congress campaign against the anti-inflation law.

The resulution charged that through the legislation the government is destroying civil liberties and making organized labor the scapegoat for inflation.

"I don't think we understand what is happening to us," said Munro.

He said some cabinet ministers, including Postmaster-General Bryce MacKasey have "told the world" Canada is heading toward a state bureaucracy.

"I don't believe in anarchy or stuff like that," said Munro, "but I'm at a loss to know what to do about this."

Another resolution passed by the IWA instructed their regional council to demand that B.C. Premier Bill Bennett roll back the Insurance Corp. of B.C. auto rate increases to less than 20 per cent.

Another resolution demanded that automobile owners be allowed to deduct from their premiums an amount equal to the commission paid to agents by ICBC.

Munro, incidentally, won a 10 per cent increase in his $22,500 annual salary Friday, but not without a battle.

Various committees and union local spokesmen challenged and rechallenged the increases to Munro, his three vice-presidents and other senior union officitls.

Munro argued that he and other top union officials have been offered high-paying positions elsewhere.

Another union man, meanwhile, says leaders of the British Columbia Federation of Labor knew wage controls were about to be declared by the federal government last October, but did nothing to warn their affiliates.

Syd Thompson, president of the Vancouver and District Labor Council, said the government's thinking was spelled out by federal Labor Minsiter John Munro at a meeting here Oct. 3, 10 days before Prime Minister Trudeau announced the program.

Trigger-Happy Image Not for Hostage Team

Special police teams being organized in Greater Victoria and the Lower Mainland to cope quickly with hostage and kidnap incidents won't be trigger-happy, the chairman of the B.C. Police Commission says.

"We want to get away from the SWAT image," said Dr. John Hogarth, referring to the heavily-armed tactical squad in a violence-filled television series.

"More talk-out than shoot out," will be the objective of the provincial teams. Hogarth stressed their aim will be to save lives.

Formation of the seven-man "emergency response" teams, one for the Lower Island and two for the Lower Mainland, was announced earlier this month by the commission.

The idea is eventually to have about 11 teams scattered throughout the province so they would be able to respond within 30 minutes to any major incident such as a hostage-taking, kidnapping, mass prison escape where the public is endangered, prison revolt, bomb incident or potentially dangerous political demonstration.

Hogarth elaborated on the concept after a meeting with local police officials in Victoria this week.

The idea came out of a meeting of the Association of B.C. Chiefs of Police and the commission was then asked to work out details.

"We don't want to create public alarm," Hogarth said, "but police have to be 'worst-case' planning."

A look at police problems world-wide shows a steady increase in the number of "ugly incidents" such as the B.C. Penitentiary hostage case last fall and a hostage-taking incident in Victoria last March.

"I feel this kind of activity will increase and it will be beyond the capacity of any one force to handle effectively," he told police board members Thursday.

The emergency response teams planned will be the most sophisticated of their kind in North America, he claimed.

The local team will have two officers each from Victoria and Saanich and one each from Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Central Saanich forces.

Each team member will receive training in a particular speciality and together they will be able to handle almost any conceivable situation.

Four members will be "front line" and three "back up," with one officer named field commander.

They will perform normal police duties until called out for special situations but will meet every two weeks to practise and work out emergency techniques.

Financing of training and equipment will be borne by the provincial commission.

Hogarth estimated cost for the local team at about $25,000 of which $10,000 would be for a specially-equipped van and the rest for training, special weaponry, protective devices and communications equipment.

Of the two similar tactical teams for the Lower Mainland, one would be first-line and the other a back-up. Cost of getting all three teams operational, possibly by next month, has been estimated at $85,000.

THE FIRST TO FILE

Peter Cruise, 23, a library assistant at the University of Victoria, is the first candidate to file papers for the Victoria city council byelection Feb. 28.

In his first attempt to win public office, Cruise said today he is distressed at the trend of municipal government to become more remote from people.

The byelection will fill the council seat left vacant by the resignation of Ald. Sam Bawlf after he was elected MLA in last month's provincial election.

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 25 people picketed the United States consulate here for nearly an hour Friday, protesting American involvement in the Angolan civil war.

New Attacks Reported In Sahara

ALGIERS (UPI) — Algerian-backed guerrillas have launched a new wave of attacks in the former Spanish Sahara, laying siege to several Mauritanian and Moroccan positions and assaulting the Moroccan-held town of Semara, according to the official Algerian news agency.

The agency said late Friday pro-independence guerrillas of the Algerian-backed Polisario Front were locked in a furious desert battle with Royal Moroccan troops around Semara, the second-largest town in what is known as western Sahara.

Earlier Friday, the agency reported Polisario guerrillas crossed the Mauritanian border to capture the frontier outpost of Ain Ben Tili and had assaulted eight Morroccan or Mauritanian positions within the former Spanish colony.

Moroccan authorities did not confirm the Algerian news reports, datelined from inside the disputed territory.

Venezuela Session Breezy

CARACAS (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau found President Carlos Andres Perez of Venezuela a good man to do business with, Canadian officials said today.

After two hours of official talks Friday and informal discussion at various social functions, Perez accepted Trudeau's invitation to visit Canada, agreed to co-operate in organizing a Canada-Venezuela economic commission and to help cut down Canada's whopping trade deficit resulting from the high cost of crude oil purchases.

One government source said Perez prepared the way so well he began bringing up questions from the agenda almost as soon as Trudeau's plane arrived.

Food Prices at an Even Keel

OTTAWA (CP) — The anti-inflation board said Friday that food prices were more stable during late 1975 and early 1976.

The board's latest monthly report on food prices covers the period to mid-January, shortly before the major supermarket chains lifted voluntary price freezes for non-perishable goods.

Its over-all index of prices for food used in an average home shows retail prices were about the same in mid-January as a month earlier.

Nonetheless, the weekly cost of a nutritious diet for a family of four rose to $42.70 from $42.50 at mid-January compared with December, the board said.

Both the over-all index and the family price are based on a weekly survey of food prices conducted in supermarkets in 12 major cities.

The index reflects actual consumer buying patterns, while the nutritious diet covers what the board considers a family needs for proper nutrition.

In its summary, the board says fresh product prices showed a seasonal price rise in January.

Particularly noticeable were increases in prices for potatoes, onions, cabbage and fresh fruit.

It says retail beef prices can be expected to fall during the next month. Cattle prices are declining because of a large slaughter of fed cattle and U.S. cattle imports are up. This may also help to push down pork prices.

Prices for fats and oils are still decreasing and now are about seven per cent below last year's levels. Coffee and tea prices rose in some cities.

Among the 12 cities surveyed, the cost for a nutritious diet was highest in St. John's Nfld., at $46.60 weekly, a 10-cent increase from mid-December, and lowest is Quebec City at $40.60, up 30 cents from a month earlier.

I Won't Step Down: Alex

Alex Macdonald, attorney-general in the previous New Democratic Party government, said Friday if former premier Dave Bennett needs a byelection to get back into the legislature it won't be held in Vancouver East.

He said during taping of the B.C. Television program Capital Comment, to be aired Sunday, that the possibility of either he or his riding mate Bob Williams resigning to clear the way for a byelection had been discussed informally.

"But the general opinion was that we both had different qualities to offer in the house and that we should retain our seats," Macdonald said.

"We shall not be resigning."

However, he said there is a good possibility there would be a byelection somewhere if the former premier's current appeal against the recount of ballots in the Coquitlam riding goes against him.

Macdonald would not say where that byelection could be held but did say that such a decision could be "some months, even a year away."

Barrett's appeal was adjourned Wednesday to an unspecified date following three days of argument by lawyers for the former premier and George Kerster, the Social Credit candidate who won the Coquitlam riding in the Dec. 11 general election.

GO AHEAD AND BITE . . . IT'S QUITE LEGAL

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — The Michigan Supreme Court has ruled dogs can legally bite persons who step on their tails.

The court, in a split 2-2 decision Friday, affirmed a ruling of the state appeal court that a woman could not collect damages against the owner of a dog that bit her on the nose.

Lower court decisions stand when the supreme court is evenly divided.

State law provides that a dog's owner is liable for damages when it bites a person unless the dog was provoked. Lorenz maintained that the woman provoked the dog by stepping on its tail.

Interest Rates Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — Interest rates and the need to curb the money supply will be discussed at the federal and provincial finance ministers conference Monday, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Friday.

The agenda will include a review of the economy, a review of the fiscal position of federal and provincial governments and the status of the anti-inflation program.

Jack Biddell of the Anti-Inflation board has said that the high cost of money is a major contributor to inflation in this country, Flora MacDonald PC-Kingston and The Islands pointed out in the Commons.

She said the board member said over the long haul the key to containing inflation is lower interest rates.

Macdonald also said that the finance ministers at the Monday conference will be conducting a general review of economic and financial policies.

Man Dies In Cell

PORT ALBERNI—James Edward Bell, 19, of Campbell River, who escaped from the Jordan River outdoors detention camp Sunday, was found dead in Port Alberni Jail on Friday.

One source reported Bell's face was blue when police officers went to get him in his cell at 11 a.m. for an appearance in court on a charge of break-in and theft.

An autopsy was ordered and district coroner Dr. N. H. Jones will conduct an inquest.

Port Alberni RCMP said Bell was arrested Thursday inside a medical clinic in the city.

13 Old People Killed in Blaze

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rev. William Pollard had just finished celebrating mid-day mass Friday for a group of elderly patients, many confined to wheelchairs, in a cozy chapel on the third floor of a nursing home when an alarm rang out.

A staff member rushed in and told Pollard: "There is a fire . . . not too bad, just a little fire."

By the time the fire was extinguished 13 persons were dead — including 12 women — and about 30 others were injured.

It was one of the worst killer blazes in Chicago in a decade.

Pollard said that when he ran into the hall, he discovered two persons trying to use fire extinguishers to douse the fire, believed to have started in a portable clothes closet in a room a few feet from the chapel.

Pollard said he tried to help, but "the smoke was too thick."

The three backed away and the black smoke poured into the chapel.

Patients who could walk made it down a fire escape but the others were trapped — until firemen and police arrived and carried them out on stretchers and in wheelchairs.

"They were helpless until we got there," said police officer William Christian, one of the first rescuers on the scene.

"They were all semi-conscious and unconscious. I don't think hardly any of them can walk. They were all convalescing."

Roman Catholic priests said last rites for the dead while they were lifted out with blankets over their heads.

All of the dead were victims of smoke inhalation. Of those who survived, 15 were listed in critical condition.

There were 83 persons inside the three-storey white brick structure when the fire broke out. The flames spread to only two rooms and damage was estimated at a mere $6,000.

Reds Threaten Angola Draft

Times News Services

Soviet-backed forces in Angola said today they may draft thousands of Angolan people as soldiers to counter the challenge of mercenaries brought into the country by the two western-supported armies.

In an interview with the Times of London, officials of the Soviet-supported Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola said they would like to normalize relations with all countries, including the United States, but still feared that Washington would soon escalate its intervention in the civil war.

"Our people are seeing acts of invasion in the north and south," said a Popular Movement communique issued in the Zambian capital of Lusaka.

In broadcasts by Luanda Radio, the Popular Movement said thousands of Angolans may soon be drafted because the opposing armies had begun to recruit mercenaries.

"All citizens affected by the general mobilization order must stand by ready to be called up for military service at any time," the broadcasts said and urged Angolans to "massacre all the mercenaries."

The times also says that more than 600 men have applied to a British security firm, Security Advisory Systems, hiring mercenaries to fight for the MPLA's opponents in Angola.

The Times and the Daily Telegraph say they have been flooded with calls from would-be mercenaries who said the firm's contact point, a telephone in Camberly 35 miles southwest of London, was constantly busy.

Meanwhile, in Lusaka, Zambia, police have detained two British journalists following a declaration of a state of emergency in Zambia, a British High Coommission spokesman said there today.

The journalists, Bruce Loudun of the Daily Telegraph and Stuart Dalby of the Financial Times, were detained Friday.

Authorities gave no reason for the detention.

Earlier this week president Kenneth Kaunda declared a state of emergency in the country because of what he called the deteriorating security situation in Zambia.

Police threw up roadblocks around Lusaka and searched cars and the army doubled its troop strength along the troubled border with Angola.

The high commission spokesman later confirmed police had also picked up Leonard Cliffe, a senior lecturer of politics at the University of Zambia. Cliffe is a British citizen.

He was held under a 28-day detention order but again no reason was given.

Bourassa Pitch To All Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa hopes to put across Quebec's position on financing of the Montreal Olympics to a Canada-wide radio audience this weekend.

The premier, claiming the support of "the immense majority of Quebecers" in his dispute with Prime Minister Trudeau on the Olympic question, is to appear Sunday on the CBC open-line program Cross-Country Checkup, broadcast at 2 p.m. Victoria time.

Bourassa will make an opening statement and then answer questions from listeners on the general question, "who do you think should pay for the 1976 Summer Olympics?"

This weekend, Olympic organizers appear before the International Olympic Committee in Innsbruck to deliver a progress report on the Games scheduled to open July 17.

Officials indicated, meanwhile, the Bourassa demand for a federal tax rebate on the Olympics could exceed the figure of $200 million mentioned last week by the premier.

Prime Minister Trudeau promptly rejected the idea but Bourassa expressed confidence the federal leader would see the merits of the case when the full picture was placed before him.

The Bourassa spokesman said Friday studies are being prepared for a meeting between the two government heads but no date will be set until Trudeau arrives home Monday from his Latin American visit.

Olympic expenditures have more than tripled to $1 billion in four years, leaving the province to face a deficit of $600 million while the federal government reaps $200 million in additional and unexpected tax revenue, Bourassa says.

National Trust's

Club "60"

The most sensible way to look after your money, if you're 60 or over.

Club "60" is a new National Trust programme designed to meet the special needs of people 60 and over. It offers a carefully considered and well balanced selection of services. Whether you are retired and living on a fixed income or still working, we're sure you will find this a rewarding way to handle your money.

Interest adjusted as cost of living rises...to help relieve the pressures of inflation.
The National Trust Special Savings Account offers a high rate of interest. And for members of Club "60" it offers even more...an interest bonus paid annually, adjusted to the increase in the cost of living. For example, if your savings earn $100 in interest during the year, and the cost of living rises 10%, we'll increase your interest by 10%...to $110. This bonus also applies to interest paid on your regular Savings Account.

No charge for writing cheques...to cut the cost of paying bills!
National Trust offers a choice of two accounts on which you can write cheques—the Chequing Account, and the regular Savings Account. Members of Club "60" pay no charge whatsoever for writing cheques...on either account.

Reduced charge for preparing your income tax return...two ways to save at tax time!
National Trust can make sure your income tax payment is as low as the law allows. Club "60" membership entitles you to a 25% reduction in your Tax Return Completion Service fee.

These further privileges will save you time and money.
Cheques cashed up to $100 at any National Trust office, when you show your Club "60" membership card...no charge. Travellers cheques...no charge. Money orders...no charge. Name and address printed on cheques if you wish...no charge. Deposit by mail in prepaid envelopes. .no charge.

Drop into any National Trust office and ask about Club "60". These days, it's the most sensible way to handle your money if you're 60 or over.

A Plaintive Plea From Bourassa

Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau talks like a man who has just crawled out of the twilight zone in the harsh glare of a Canadian winter. His contention that the games could be self-financing if Ottawa continued hustling coins, stamps and lotteries for the Olympics is fatuous bravura. Is the federal government of Canada simply a money making branch plant for the rancid municipality of Montreal? The mayor talks as though Ottawa and Quebec City are the mother pearl for his unique oyster.

That Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa would even think about making a public appeal to the federal government for Olympic funds bespeaks grave financial problems faced by this ill thought-out scheme.

In the beginning, Drapeau told a doubting country that his city could handle the whole project on its own. A national lottery, special stamp issues and commemorative coins, not to mention security forces and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation facilities were agreed to by the Canadian people. Last November, Quebec stepped in and took over construction of the Olympic site because it was obvious the games would fail otherwise. Strikes, corruption and political fiddling had all but extinguished the flame.

Meanwhile, costs have quadrupled. The games will now cost more than $1 billion. The Quebec premier's contention that the increase in construction costs means a large increase in tax revenue for the federal government is silly. As Prime Minister Trudeau pointed out, if work was not being done on the Olympic site it would be done elsewhere. It would appear that the albatross of these games is bankrupting reason as well as treasuries. The prime minister is correct in his unsympathetic attitude to appeals from Quebec city.

Canadians as a whole never agreed to sponsoring the Olympics. Perhaps this can best be illustrated by pointing to the six million postcards printed by the post office in aid of the Olympics. Only 165,000 have been picked up across the country. The political ramifications of an Olympic failure are even more complicated. To the world at large the games are Canadian, not Montreal or Quebec games. If the show doesn't go on as planned it will be thought of as a Canadian failure abroad. Style and prestige mean as much to governments as to individuals. There is going to be much pressure on Ottawa to help out directly or indirectly on a larger scale than at present.

Against this international backdrop the Trudeau administration must consider domestic politics. Giving in to Bourassa's pleas would further wound the Liberals failing fortunes in English Canada. And the prime minister has repeatedly promised no more federal aid to the 1976 Olympics. Inevitably, a smug I-told-you-so attitude will infect some English-Canadian attitudes. If the games do fail it will further hurt Bourassa's political chances in the next Quebec election. The alternative to Bourassa's troubled regime should give us all pause for thought. There is nothing smug or funny about this potential tragedy.

It is simply the matter of a Canadian mayor who ignored the decay of his own city while he dreamed one grandiose vision after another. Reality finally caught up to his fantasies on the Olympics. Bourassa's provincial regime has done the honorable thing in going to the aid of its most populous municipality. But the Canadian taxpayer has done enough for this ill-conceived scheme. If our international prestige suffers, then so be it. Perhaps it will teach us a lesson about reality in this coming age of austerity.

Library Board in the Dark

Library board member E. D. Ward-Harris has a point about the secrecy surrounding details of a possible cost sharing formula being worked out between library board chairman Gordon Hutcheson and the four core municipal mayors. What is the use of having a library board if members are ignored until their chairman and the mayors work out a fait accompli to present to the board? For that matter the public which uses the library and pays for it through tax allocations is equally in the dark.

The issue is simply this — the provincial library commission says it will increase its grant to 20 per cent of the total budget, providing that services are offered on a regional basis and assessment is based on property rather than population, as is now the case. Municipalities raised various objections, especially Victoria which feels it would have to pay more under the new scheme. Apparently a compromise has been effected but it will remain secret, until such a time — two or three weeks hence — when the provincial library commission has receipt of a letter outlining the municipal position. At that time, presumably, the board will be called upon to rubber stamp a negotiated alternative.

It never ceases to amaze us how local mayors and appointed persons at the municipal level view their public responsibilities. It is almost as if their election or appointment provides them with a carte blanche for paternalism. Chairman Hutcheson should spend less time fretting about the niceties regarding the mayors or the provincial library commission and more time worrying about keeping his board and the public well informed on library matters.

The Canadian Psyche As a Bicentennial Project

As Canadians read this week about drastic cutbacks in national rail passenger service and probable summer gasoline prices exceeding $1 per gallon they glossed over the most significant story of all: the 1976 Calgary Stampede has been declared an official United States bicentennial project.

To balance things out Pierre Berton wrapped in a Canadian flag should be allowed to lead the parade as he reads from the National Dream astride a prancing palomino, suitably bred in the depths of Oklahoma.

Who cares though? About the only indigenous thing about the Calgary stampede are the Sarcees, Crees and Stoneys who take part in the show each year, providing the price is right.

Still, this hands-across-the-border gesture is really very reassuring after doubts raised by Ottawa's Foreign Investment Review Act, the Canadian Development Corporation, Panarctic Oils and all those other vaguely nationalistic airs emanating from the Liberals whenever their hegemony is endangered by minority government or a Walter Gordon lecture series.

The boys in the Ranchmen's Club and the Calgary Petroleum Club needn't be defensive anymore.

Even the Canadian Senate has lumbered out of its slumber to prepare an 89 page report on Canada-U.S. relations. None other than our own Senator George van Roggen, the senate's foreign affairs committee chairman, worries that our story is not getting across to the American people.

Judging from U.S. investments here totalling more than $42 billion, Americans are already receiving plenty of information on us, if only from annual corporate reports. But the Senate committee warns that many Americans still see Canadians as northern blue eyed Arabs. It recommends we should spend more money on information programs aimed at the U.S.

Think about this for a moment. The Canadian Senate is actually worried that Americans don't care about what we think. Some of our senators reason if we spend a few bucks convincing Americans that we are nice guys, they, in turn, will understand us.

It would seem they understand us only too well now.

John Fayerweather, a professor of management and international business at New York University told a joint U.S. congressional committee on inter American economic relations not to worry about the northern colonials.

He said "Canadians were prepared to go along with their strong nationalists when the costs were small and the visible satisfactions of beating down the Americans high, but they have not been prepared to allow their nationalism to impair much larger foreign bank activities which realistically are more powerful and serious in influencing national priorities."

The professor shrugged off Canadian moves aimed at preventing the growth of the U.S. Mercantile Bank in Canada, explaining that U.S. "near banks" in Canada have assets in the $30 billion range and account for one fifth of short term lending. In Fayerweather's view, it was highly significant the Canadian government had done nothing to control these institutions.

Summing up the professor said future capital requirements of Canadian resource industries will be so immense that reliance on U.S. sources seems inevitable and thus, the imposition of foreign control is bound to be limited.

It is difficult to argue with this thesis.

If Canada is not a U.S. satellite now, it is only a matter of time. The Alberta Syncrude consortium was not agreed to by U.S. participants until oil from the project was exempted from National Energy Board export controls. The Arctic gas proposal to build the Mackenzie pipeline is predicated on shipping Alaskan gas to U.S. markets. In the past when Canada made noises about forcing U.S. subsidiaries in Canada to sell trucks to China or locomotives to Cuba, Washington mumbled about changing the Canadian-U.S. autopact.

Who says economic control has no effect on political freedom?

At the same congressional subcommittee where the professor testified, a deputy U.S. state secretary said his government viewed the growth of economic nationalism in Canada and elsewhere with concern, warning that Canada must treat American property fairly "or face . . . the larger consequences . . ." It is not Americans misunderstanding Canadians, it is Canadians not understanding Americans, although the message is fairly straightforward.

He who has the hammer tends to pound with it.

Yet the U.S. seems to understand other nation states such as Venezuela and Mexico which impose rigorous controls on foreign investment. Is it just that Canadian resolve is recognized to be as transparent as the wild west myth of the Calgary Stampede.

It's something to think about this summer when thousands of Canadian school children cheer the stars and stripes paraded on Calgary's Eighth Avenue West as another U.S. bicentennial project gets underway. — G.R.O.

FRANK RUTTER

'Mustn't Get Out of Hand'

WASHINGTON — Canada's little secret was given away here at congressional hearings about the Trudeau government's foreign investment policy. The tipsters were a couple of professors, one Canadian, one American, and a U.S. civil servant.

In essence, they said that Canadian politicians talk big to the folk back home but that they're much more cautious when actually dealing with rich foreigners.

The object of this game is to satisfy what was described as "creeping nationalism" without jeopardizing the Canadian economy.

This was a consensus among those gathered before a one-man hearing of the inter-American subcommittee of congress's joint economic committee.

Representative Gillis Long of Louisiana, a cousin of the famous "Kingfish", Huey Long, was the lone member interested enough in affairs Canadian to put on the hearings, an inquiry into Canada's Foreign Investment Review Act (FIRA).

Highly Visible

No one quite knows why Long is so interested in Canada but he seemed to have a reasonable grasp of things as he questioned his witnesses.

Dr. John Fayerweather of New York University, who has written a couple of books about foreign investment in Canada, believes that the government occasionally picks on a single "highly visible" issue — such as Time and Reader's Digest — to satisfy a small, vocal minority, but more generally pursues a no-risk policy "not at any significant expense to the economy or real detriment to the effectiveness of the main body of foreign firms."

Even in the case of Time and Reader's Digest, he noted that the benefits go to a small, special-interest group of Canadian publishers.

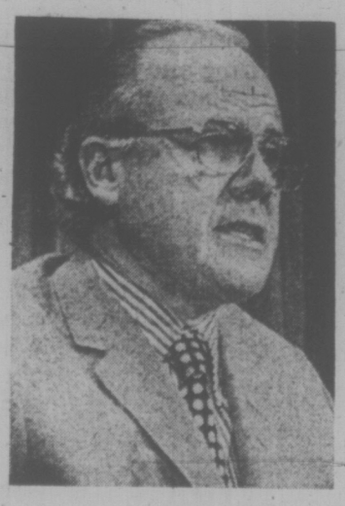
So in applying the FIRA, he said, the government has kept in mind "a realistic understanding that on the whole the investment is beneficial and that major impediments to it might do serious economic harm."

The result is that measures actually taken have proved to be mild, and of marginal impact.

This view was reinforced by Richard Vine of the state department, the deputy assistant secretary in charge of Canadian affairs, who noted that 63 of 92 proposed foreign corporate takeovers were approved during the first year the act was in force and not a single decision has been made on new foreign investments since the act was extended to cover these last Oct. 15.

"We have found no evidence that the act is being used to discriminate among foreign investors to the detriment of U.S. firms."

In fact, U.S. takeovers had a slightly better approval rate than those by other foreign firms — 71 per cent compared to the over-all 68 per cent.



JAMES MURRAY
. . . FIRA chairman

Vine also made good use of a recent statement by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald: "Canada at present requires a heavy inflow of funds from abroad in order to offset its heavy current account deficit."

Macdonald, as quoted by Vine, added that this situation would continue because of Canada's huge capital investment program — some $500 billion during the next decade. The Canadian professor, Steven Globerman of York University, also stressed the detrimental aspects of a foreign investment policy too stringently applied to the Canadian economy.

Furthermore, he asserted, the FIRA "is not anti-American.

He, too, saw special interests at stake in some of the more highly visible nationalist causes, citing the so-called television border war as being of greatest benefit to "Canadian business in the culture industry."

He also saw some flaws in the Canadian industrial environment, notably inefficiency, higher production costs, lack of innovation and competition. And his implicit question was whether foreign firms should be dragged down to the level of local firms or whether local firms should be encouraged to match up to the foreign ones.

Well, what good is all this to U.S. legislators such as Long?

One purpose it can serve is to reassure them that Canada is not doing anything very terrible to hurt U.S. economic or investor interests.

If Long had notions of protective retaliation — and he gave no indication that he had — they would tend to be discouraged.

U.S. Worried

Long, in fact, expressed quite another interest — that of encouraging more trade integration with Canada in selective industries. One he suggested was the computer industry.

But he also had something else on his mind. That was a growing concern in the U.S. itself about foreign investment. This concern arose partly because of general economic conditions, especially high unemployment, and out of the global shift in financial power toward the Middle East oil producers.

The latest available figures put foreign investment in the U.S. at $21.7 billion. (The Canadian component in the U.S. was much smaller comparatively than U.S. investment in Canada — a bit under $5 billion.) The increase in 1974 was $3.5 billion and probably more in 1975.

Wondering if the U.S. was going to be faced with a situation similar to that in Canada, Long observed: "We must not let it get out of hand."

Presumably he learned something about handling it from his hearings on Canada.

Accidents to Blame

If motorists want lower insurance premiums, all they have to do is drive with more care and consideration for others, and so have fewer accidents.

It's silly for them to blame the high cost of insurance on anybody but themselves. — J. P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer Street.

Breaking Promises

The new Social Credit government is consistently breaking its promises. On Jan. 16, Mr. Waterland said on the CHEK news that he was not against mining in the provincial parks of northern B.C. Do you remember your government's promise of no mining activities within provincial parks boundaries or have you forgotten already, Mr. Waterland?

Mr. Wolfe, you promised the federal government that you would co-operate on their wage and price controls scheme, but you have neglected to sign the agreement. Is it that you want to exempt your friends from the controls?

Mr. Antoinette (or is it Mr. McGeer?), I find you are a confused gentleman indeed. First, you promise to roll back the teachers' salary settlements from 11 and 12 per cent to 10 per cent in orderto fulfill your commitment to the federal guidelines. There were to be no double standards you said. But what about that 17 per cent increase for university professors at UBC who already earn $10,000 a year more than their Seattle counterparts?

And Mr. Curtis, remember your promise of inexpensive adequate housing as an immediate goal.

Mr. McClelland, I so clearly remember your promise of better hospital facilities, during the last campaign.

And Mr. Fraser, what about that promise to end, in your own words, the pot-hole policy of the former highways department? How are you going to manage major improvements and an austerity program at the same time? Does Give-'Em-A-Shovel Vander Zalm have your solution?

Mr. Rafe Mair, I am pleased to see your letters to the editors. Your obvious lack of concern over canning lids gives further justification to your title of Kick Them in the Ass Mair.

Shame! Shame! on Mr. Bennett. Did I not hear you promise an indepedent, unbiased study of B.C.'s financial situation? Do you mean to tell me that a Social Credit Constituency vice-president and fund-raiser is unbiased? Please credit us with a few brains, Mr. Bennett!

All this and more in just seven short weeks!—Adrian A. Wilson, 4141 Tuxedo Drive.

Massive Increases

I would like to express my opposition to the massive increases in auto insurance announced Jan. 23. In the society we now live in a car is no longer a luxury. Because of our sprawling cities and a notably poor public transport system in Victoria in particular, a car is a necessity.

In a time such as this, when, from all levels of government, we are urged to be conservative in our expenditure and alter our life style, it is ironic that the new provincial government should attempt to burden the people so unjustly. It appears to reflect an attitude of elitism on the part of the Social Credit, as partisan to the upper strata of society. It accompanies an attitude of unconcern and arrogance towards those of middle and lower incomes.

I'm confident that many of the members of the new government who have abandoned their car lots around the province to sit in the legislature, are privately howling in dismay along with the rest of us. — A. L. Scrivener, 1460 Bromley Place.

Drapeau's 'Bathtub' Needs a Bigger Tap

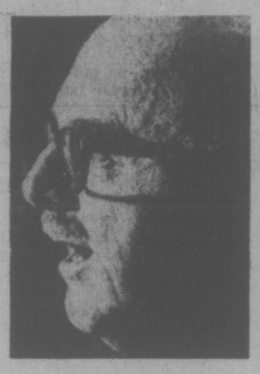
By RICHARD DAIGNEAULT
Times Quebec Bureau

QUEBEC — A year ago this month Montreal's mayor Jean Drapeau told a legislature committee not to worry about sponging up an Olympic deficit — or the Olympic "gap" as Drapeau called it.

The cost of staging the Olympics, today estimated at one billion dollars, can be compared to a bath tub, and Olympic self-financing programs as water filling it from a tap, the mayor told the committee.

"All you have to do is leave the tap running until the tub is full," Drapeau said climaxing earlier statements that the "Olympics won't cost Montreal taxpayers a cent" and "the Olympics can no more have a deficit than a man can be pregnant."

But now that Drapeau has pushed his Olympic responsibility onto the provincial government's Olympic Installations Board, it is Premier Bourassa who has been left holding the baby.



MAYOR DRAPEAU

Offset Bid

Both Bourassa and Municipal Affairs Minister Dr. Victor Goldbloom, the minister responsible for the Olympics installations board, are conscious of the Olympic problem and the Quebec government is looking down every avenue in a bid to offset a forecast $600 million deficit.

It has become obvious today that self-financing schemes, both the federal government's coin and stamp programs and the million-dollar lottery, will not suffice to cover the deficit this year. The net profit from the Olympic draw is about $20 million, which would mean that there would have to be another 30 draws after the Olympics to cover the net deficit.

Seeking the federal government's financial help in the way of subsidies also appears to be out of the question. Apart from the fact that both Bourassa and Drapeau assured the federal government in writing that they would not seek any special subsidies, Prime Minister Trudeau has made it clear to the provincial government it won't chip in to pay for the deficit even if they begged for it.

Bourassa has already indicated that the million-dollar lottery will most probably continue after the Games. However, it is yet unknown whether the federal government and the other nine Canadian provinces will allow the lottery in their territories.

There had been opposition in the western provinces against the sale of lottery tickets because they didn't want the profits to go to the construction of Olympic facilities built in Montreal, which will profit Montrealers once the Games are over.

Should no new agreement be reached with the federal government and the provinces, it is possible post-Olympic draws will be limited to Quebec, where they would be unlikely to generate sufficient profits to cover the Olympic debt.

Earlier this month it was disclosed that Quebec's civil service was studying a plan to introduce an Olympic surtax in Quebec to pay part of the deficit.

The idea of additional taxes to pay for the Olympics came at a bad time since Bourassa had indicated over the Christmas holiday that his government wouldn't be able to hold the tax line in the next provincial budget.

Negative

Reaction to the Olympic tax was so negative that the premier himself assured Quebecers that there would be no special Olympic tax. He explained that the idea had been studied in an "exploratory manner" by the civil service, but had never been retained at the political level.

Bourassa said he still believes in the Drapeau tub theory, as long as agreements with other provinces can be worked out, but intends to squeeze more money out of the federal government in the form of a federal tax return increase in the cost of the Olympics.

"It is only logical that Ottawa should give back the additional taxes it gets because of the Olympics," the premier said.

Bourassa's argument is that the federal government will profit largely in tax returns, both from income tax and indirect taxation on construction materials, because of the high cost of building the facilities.

Trudeau, who reiterated his stand that the federal government will not help finance the Olympic deficit, called Bourassa's logic on the issue "funny reasoning." The federal government, he said, has no intention of paying any part of the Olympic deficit "which Quebec has committed itself to pay."

Trudeau said the federal government is the only government to have put any money into the Olympics — about $150 million — through the stamp and coin programs, plus RCMP and Armed Forces assistance for Olympic security.

The prime minister said that he couldn't understand Bourassa's logic when he says that the federal government has pocketed about $200 million more than expected in taxes because of the Olympics. (The $200 million figure is a rough estimate according to Bourassa, who said that there has been no scientific study on the federal tax Olympic spin-off.)

Quebec Decision

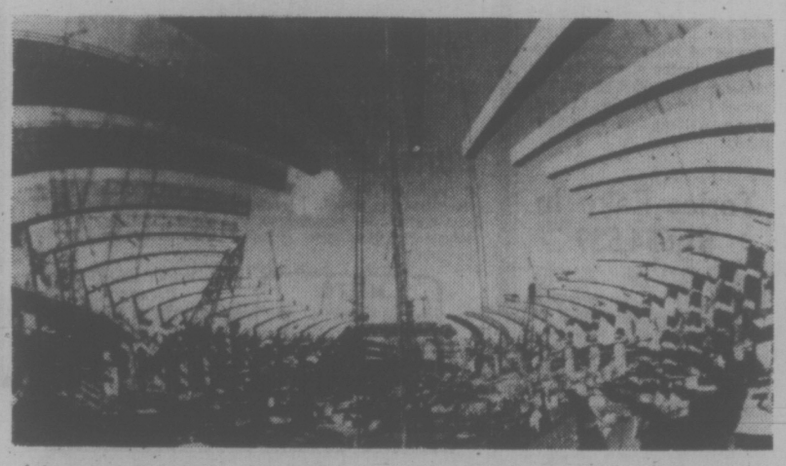
Trudeau said that "it is Quebec that decided to invest in this type of project. If the construction workers hadn't been working at the Olympic site they would have simply been working elsewhere."

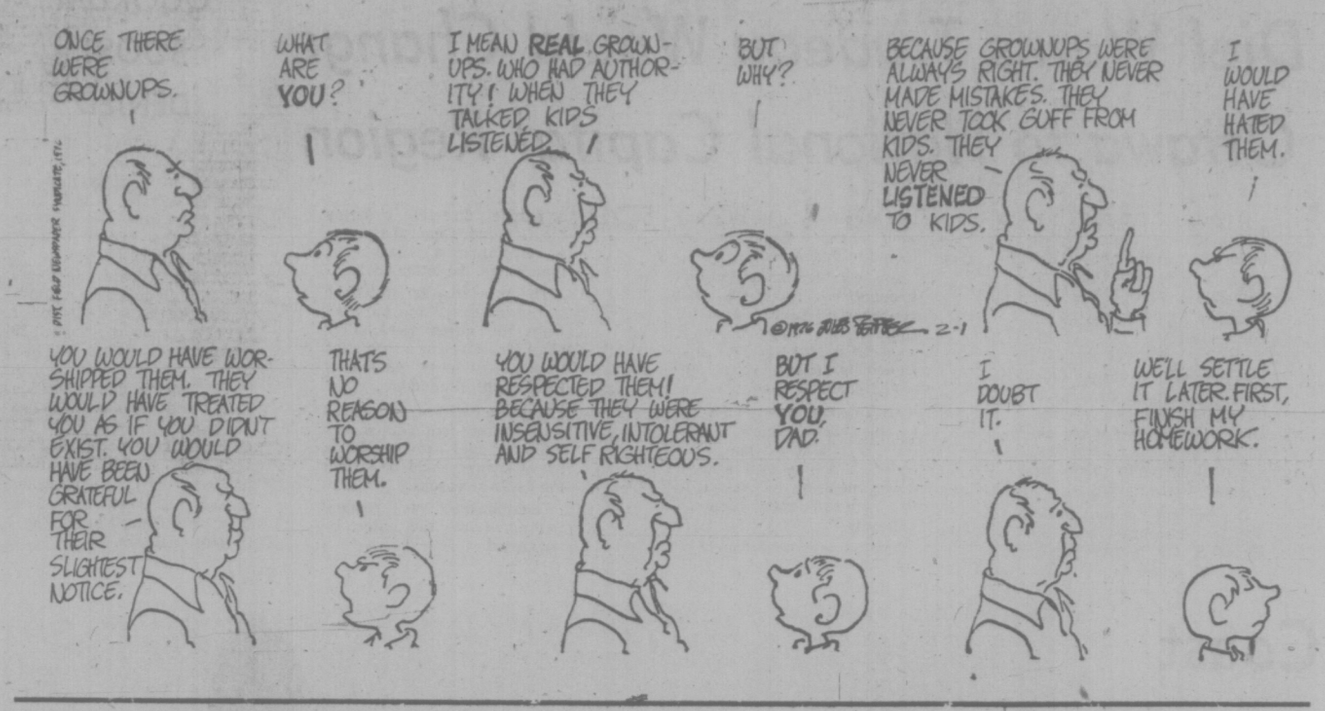
Bourassa, who said he was "speaking in the name of the majority of Quebecers," said he isn't taking "no" for an answer from Ottawa.

Why should Quebecers suffer financially while Ottawa uses tax dollars generated by the Games to pay for services and projects in other provinces, Bourassa says.

Although the issue remains unsettled, Bourassa, who is expected to meet Trudeau upon his return from his South American tour, hopes that "common sense will prevail in negotiatiations" about the money.

But if Bourassa fails to convince Ottawa it should give the $200 million he is seeking, the provincial government will have to content itself with provincial tax revenues from the Olympics, including additional income tax from construction workers, sales taxes from hotels and restaurants — and Drapeau's tub theory.





Whiff of Trudeauphobia At Ont. Liberal Meeting

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — Two phenomenons of attitude stood out in the razor-thin victory of Stuart Smith at the Ontario Liberal leadership convention.

The first was Trudeauphobia. The second had some relationships with the first phenomenon; the reluctance to vote for Smith who has obvious advantages in the important political skills over the three other serious aspirants.

Asitle from unusual grace in phrasing and vocabulary, Smith is very superior — superior on the platform, superior in the Ontario legislature, and certainly as good in those important qualities of energy, stamina and awareness of others.

Was it some resemblance to Trudeau that hurt him? The arrogance? Smith acknowledges that he gives many an impression of arrogance but he insists that he's a "people" man, a listener, not an intellectual who is only comfortable with those of his own mental level. He knows that he almost lost the leadership over this reputation for arrogance, this tendency to be seen, as Vernon Singer, a veteran Liberal MP put it as "an instant expert on everything."

The demise of Trudeaumania among the Liberals of Ontario seems unquestionable. We did not have to leave the open convention floor to find it, although the venom and frustrations of Trudeauphobia were put more vehemently in the corridors and suites of the convention hotel. Time and again I met idolators from the days of 1968 and 1969 who wanted to know: When's he going to go or how can we be rid of him?

Mark this point. Despite the euphoria of the well-attended, well-done and healthy convention, Stuart Smith, the caucus and the party will find it terribly difficult to escape from the penalties of Trudeauphobia.

The Ontario Liberals will disassociate themselves much more readily from Trudeau and the government in Ottawa than will the floating voters of Ontario. And Conservative leader Bill Davis and NDP leader Stephen Lewis have the bond between the two Liberal parties of Ontario as their legislative and electoral themes for the immediate future.

Here we may expect some tremors which will run to Ottawa and shiver the government there. Smith told me that he was damned grateful that he was not beholden as leader in any way to the federal Liberals. "I don't owe Ottawa anything." He noted that federal support of the ministerial kind or the power-broker type (Keith Davey, etc.) had been with the other key contenders.

Smith was somewhat more beholden to some in the Ontario caucus but even there he has few hostages to win back. Thus he can fashion the caucus group in the legislature, the party and the coming campaign with an unusual degree of freedom. Certainly, we will have the most distinctive (from Ottawa) Liberal party in Ontario since the bitter wars between Premier Hepburn and Prime Minister King.

But another aspect of the convention's reluctance to choose the obvious man is fascinating. It reflects Ontario more than it does the Liberal party.

We saw the same force at work between 1971 and 1975 among the Ontario New Democrats. The metamorphosis of Stephen Lewis from the lean, hungry radical who scared the electorate the first time round into the genial, high-minded, responsible, likeable chap who gained the most in seats and stature in the last Ontario election.

It seems the voters of Ontario, in the main, prefer blandness to edge and cleverness in their leading politicians.

Smith will have to wrestle with his talents and instincts in order to mute and normalize his rather unique combination of skills and clear-cut personality.

Beyond that the chief significance I see in it has federal ramifications. Out of this convention the federal Liberals couldn't elect a dog-catcher in Ontario, let alone a successor to John Turner in the Ottawa seat he'll be resigning from.

LOOK TO HORIZON, BRITONS ARE TOLD

By JOSEPH COLLINS

LONDON — The British people, who read dire warnings almost daily of economic storms ahead, are being encouraged to look beyond the bleak foreground to the far horizon.

For over there, if the government is right, Britain's own oil will be flowing, and as oil imports recede, inflation will be tamed, or at least kept to single figures. But it will all take time.

Standards of living generally fell slightly in 1975 after many years of steady advance. Unemployment stood as the car ended around one million, or 5 per cent of the work force.

The worry expressed about jobs and prospects seems more pronounced and widespread than at any time since the 1930s. This is especially true of middle-class professional and business people, who, relatively are having the worst of it.

Their plight as they try to maintain standards has produced some wry humor, although they are by no means in a backs-to-the-wall situation — yet.

The staid London Daily Telegraph's financial pages recently carried an article in which an imaginary executive was seeking restaurants he could still afford.

"Then my wife read somewhere that Margot Fonteyn's favorite dish is something called 'baked beans on toast' a delicacy we had never tried," he said. "The experiment proved satisfactory, and we now eat baked beans six nights a week."

Auberon Waugh, the son of Evelyn Waugh, wrote in The New Statesman, "It would be interesting to know how much truth there is in all this scaremongering" and gibed at stories that "pawn shops are re-opening and replacing the porn shops of happier days."

Well, a little research among London's pawnbrokers recently indicated that they are, in fact, busier than at any other time since before the Second World War. One or two said they were in some cases refusing loans on such musical instruments bought items as guitars and other by young building workers earning big over-time in the construction boom that fizzled last year.

Most politicians, economists and businessmen say the outlook for Britain in 1976 is for little growth in the gross domestic product.

But they add that the rate of inflation, now running above an annual rate of 25 per cent, should be down to 10 per cent in 1976.

STRAY FEATHERS
harold hosford

It's getting so you can't trust your ears anymore. And that goes for birds as well as people.

There was a time when, if you heard a Meadowlark singing—or any other bird for that matter, you could be reasonably certain it was a Meadowlark singing. Sure, there was always the chance it might be a particularly talented Starling pulling your leg but even that could usually be sorted out with a little mental sleuthing.

Not so anymore! Now, even the Meadowlarks can't be sure. And we can blame this unnerving turn of events on a neat little electronic gadget that seems well on its way to becoming one of the most popular accessories of birdwatcher and the ornithologist alike—the tape recorder.

As a toy, a tape recorder can bring hours of fun—at the expense of the birds; as a research tool, it can reveal some surprising facts about their lives.

I recall a friend back in Winnipeg who, for a few weeks each summer, took a devilish delight in rousing all the Baltimore Orioles within earshot by playing his tape of an oriole's song. They, thinking there was a new and unwelcome intruder in the local oriole hierarchy, would swarm to the sound, nervously considering the strange-looking apparatus that was making oriole noises.

That was the tape recorder as a toy. But many birdwatchers make legitimate use of it in their hobby—once again, to some extent, at the expense of the birds.

For example, there are many kinds of birds which, if they didn't occasionally make some kind of sound, might go unnoticed. Owls and rails are good examples. The problem is to get them to make a noise; unless startled, or frightened, they usually hold their tongues.

But with a tape reorder—and a recording of any species' particular noise—the tables are turned. With a timely rendition, played in the appropriate habitat, even the most reticent songster can be enticed into a few reluctant bars, usually enough for identification.

Tape recorders can be fun in another way. Playing the calls of small owls often brings down the wrath of every passing bird who stops to question the right of the presumed owl to be there. It's a good way to see birds without a lot of walking and often produces some unexpected surprises. Birds, never suspected of being in the area may show up to add their voices to the barrage of vituperation.

But science has not ignored the tape recorder. The list of ways these little machines have been used in avian research seems endless but one example that came out of California recently, is typical.

Three researchers working on resident White-crowned Sparrows near San Francisco used recordings of White-crown songs to reveal some interesting facts about their behaviour at various stages of their breeding cycle.

The effect of a strange song on a resident male White-crown was predictable; he challenged the intruder. But the intensity of his challenge varied depending on what stage of the breeding cycle the song was played, being strongest when the territory was being established and the nest built, weakening as the eggs were laid and incubation proceeded, and finally ceasing when the young were fledged.

The female, on the other hand reacted most intensely when the young were out of the nest having showed the utmost secrecy while she was laying and incubating her eggs and feeding the young in the nest.

The significance of all this seems to be that while the nest, and the eggs or young in it, is the cente of activity, the female remains unobtrusive so as not to reveal the location of the nest when danger threatens. The male, on the other hand, is not tied to the nest at this time and is free to be very obvious.

Once the young are out of the nest the role of the female changs. Now when danger threatens she draws attention to herself and thereby away from her young hidden nearby.

And all of this from a tape recorder.

Dief Warns Trudeau Would Change Ottawa to National Capital Region

NATIONAL CAPITAL REGION (CP) — John Diefenbaker said Friday this placename may replace Ottawa as the official name of the capital if the Trudeau government has its way.

Waving what he called a confidential letter in the Commons, he said the government has sought and received legal advice on how to make the change without parliamentary approval or consent from the queen.

Government house leader Mitchell Sharp said he is not aware of the matter but he told MPs he is quite sure any such change would be referred to Parliament.

The confidential letter, distributed to reporters, was addressed to Michael Pitfield, secretary to the cabinet. It was dated May 15, 1975, and signed by deputy justice minsiter Donald Thorson.

"You asked for my views as to the non-statutory procedures available to change the name of the federal seat of government from Ottawa to the National Capital Region," it began.

The move could be made by a cabinet directive ordering the Governor-General to issue a proclamation announcing the change, the letter advised.

The proclamation would be in the queen's name but "not from the queen personally" and no covering resolution would have to be passed by Parliament, it added.

But one could be introduced if the government wanted.

Sharp said advice on a name change could be sought for various reasons.

Diefenbaker was reading too much into the letter, he suggested.

QUORUM BOOST DENIED

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliamentary rules should be changed to require that at least 50 MPs be in the Commons at all times, New Democratic House Leader Stanley Knowles argued Friday.

But his private member's bill to change the House quorum from 50 to 20 found little support from 39 members attending the debate.

Only during daily question period and important debates and events are most of the 264 Commons seats occupied.

Knowles, whose own attendance in the Commons ranks among the best, said that MPs were elected to take part in House debates.

Sharp Asked to Sort Old, New Society

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Which members of the cabinet are members of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's "new society" and who are members of the "old society?" acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp was asked in the commons Friday.

The question came up when opposition members enquired about the apparent conflict between the prime minister's and Defence Minister James Richardson's concept of the Canadian society.

Richardson made a speech in Winnipeg last week to the B'nai B'rith in Winnipeg and which he challenged the prime minister's analysis of the troubled economy and the breakdown of the free market system.

Richardson did not mention the prime minister but he did declare:

"If there has been any failure in our economic system it has not been the failure of free enterprise."

The defence minister's views clearly were not in accord with the views expressed during the year-end interview by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Richardson said the one area where competition remains is the private sector of the economy.

"The private sector has been performing well and continues to create the prosperity which the government needs, and almost all the jobs which labor needs. It has not been free enterprise that has failed. It has been just the opposite.

"It has been all Canadians working through the free enterprise system that have given Canada its high standard of living, and a way of life that in many respects is the envy of the world," said the Manitoba minister. His speech did not attract much attention when he delivered it at the dinner in Winnipeg. He had no text.

However it was recorded and the minister subsequently distributed to the press gallery and by courier to several members of the press a copy of his address as tape recorded.

Press reports this week suggested the defence minister was at odds with the prime minister in his remarks.

One newspaper headlined its story on the front page Minister on collision course with PM.

It suggested that Richardson was "clearly unhappy" with the prime minister's views on the economy.

In the commons Friday Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) asked the names of the cabinet ministers who subscribed to the prime minister's "new society" and those who were supporters of the "old society."

Sharp said the prime minister speaks for the government and "my understanding is that the minister of defence supports him."

Coast French TV Fare Slashed

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal spending cuts have forced drastic reductions in local programming on the proposed new French-language television station in Vancouver, the CBC says.

In a letter to Progressive Conservative MP John Reynolds, CBC parliamentary services director Dennis Townsend said first-year operating expenses for the station have been reduced to $800,000 from $1,402,000.

The amount of local programming has been cut to 10 minutes of local news a day, Monday to Friday.

The original plan was for three-and-a-half hours a week of local program production.

Reynolds released the letter Friday after accusing the Canadian Radio-Television Commission of trying to mislead the public into believing a majority of Vancouver residents favor the proposed French station.

The Townsend letter said most of the $800,000 budget will be used to record and rebraoadcast on a time-zone-delayed basis the full CBC French network program schedule.

The letter said the CBC will provide details in Vancouver Monday at the opening of CRTC public hearings on the proposal.

Reynolds said the CRTC tried to dupe the public by withholding information about a petition opposing both the French station and a second CBC application for a new English-language television station in Victoria.

He said the petition bore the names of 17,000 opponents.

The petition was filed at CRTC offices in Victoria Jan. 21 but was not included with other submissions made available to reporters, he said.

Second Reactor Pact Signed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government signed the second of two safeguards agreements Friday, paving the way for the sale of nuclear reactors to South Korea and Argentina.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen told the Commons the two countries agree in the treaties not to use nuclear material, equipment or technology for weapons manufacture.

But the announcement drew an angry response from Progressive Conservative and New Democratic party spokesmen who called for a moratorium on all foreign sales.

Opposition Leade Robert Stanfield said there is little the government could do if either of the countries decided to ignore the treaties and misuse the material.

Federal officials have admitted that they have little but a promise from buyers not to break the treaty and the pressure of international opinion to keep them in line.

Seven countries, including Canada, meanwhile, have agreed to principles governing the export of nuclear power stations, the West German foreign ministry said Friday in Bonn.

Under the guidelines, recipients must promise not to use newly acquired knowledge to make nuclear weapons.

The agreement aims at establishing identical security regulations for all countries using nuclear power.

A Bonn spokesman called it a continuation of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, taking into account growing cooperation in the use of nuclear energy.

The spokesman said agreement was reached in London and put into force by an exchange of notes Tuesday following months of negotiations between the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France, Japan, Canada and West Germany.

Tories Rake In $1,654,539

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party took in $1,654,539 in the year ended July 31, 1974, treasury committee chairman Roy Deyell said Friday. The money was collected from 8,649 individuals, companies and unicorpoated organizations and groups, he said.

Treachery, Says Stanfield

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield accused the government Friday of treachery for tying to reduce its share of health-care costs by amending the Medical Care Act.

Stanfield, premier of Nova Scotia when the act was passed by Paliament in 1966, said the provincial governments were forced into the plan unwillingly by Ottawa.

Now, he said, the federal government was unilaterally and arbitaily trying to alter the 50-50 cost-sharing formula set out in the present legislation.

The amending bill, introduced last year by Health Minister Marc Lalonde, originally would have placed a limit on the federal per-capita contribution to medical expenditures over the next three years.

On Wednesday, Mr. Lalonde softened the federal position, saying limits will only be set for two years. The limit for 1976-77 would be 13 per cent and that for 1977-78 would be 10.5 per cent.

Rail Plan In Works

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor minister John Munro said Friday he is studying a union request for government assistance in resolving the national rail dispute and likely will announce his decision within a few days.

"I have been talking to both parties . . . and I should be able to say within a couple of days what will be the best course for us to take," Munro said in an interview.

Ottawa STOL Grounded Early

By MARGARET PITON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Ottawa to Montreal short take-off and landing STOL air service will end on April 30, four months ahead of schedule.

Transport Minister Otto Lang said the success of the experiment justified ending it ahead of schedule, but department officials also said the service would have exceeded its $25.5 million budget if allowed to continue past April.

The service, started July 21, 1974, was designed to show the feasibility of STOL intercity operations to promote the sale of the de Havilland Dash-7 48-passenger aircraft.

At the time the service was inaugurated, then transport minister Jean Marchand said it was hoped the Dash-7s would eventually bring in over $1 billion sales.

So far, orders for between 25 and 30 Dash-7s have been received, which would amount to between $75 and $90 million. However, Joseph Harrison, head of aircraft sales at Industry, Trade and Commerce, said these sales have not yet been consummated. He said it is unusual for sales to be consummated before production starts and before the aircraft have been certified.

Airtransit operates smaller specially-built Twin Otters on its demonstration service. De Haviland, now owned by the government, received the go-ahead only last month to start production of the first 50 Dash-7s. The company's break-even point for the Dash-7s is 150 aircraft, a Transport spokesman said.

He noted that all the objectives of the project such as passenger acceptance, community reaction, and operational feasibility have been demonstrated, with the exception of the sales objective.

However, Harrison denied the project is behind schedule in sales. He noted that it was only last month the decision to go ahead was made, and that so far, the emphasis has been on getting the aircraft certified, rather than on showing the two existing prototypes to potential customers.

"It's important to get the aircraftt certified this year, because if we don't we'll have to meet additional requirements next year which would mean additional delay and expense," he said. Harrison said the certification procedure is on schedule.

Airtransit has been operating with an average load factor of about 60 per cent, higher than that of most Canadian airlines. But despite the relatively high load factor and several fare increases, it was running over budget.

An official at the Transportation Development Agency said inflation and the lack of previous experience with this kind of service were the factors which led to the budget overrun.

Of the $25.5 million alloted to the project, about $15 million went for capital expenses, including $7.5 million for aircraft.

Normally $7.5 million would buy much more than the 66 seats available in the six STOL planes, and the cost would normally be amortized over ten years, the official said.

Thus far Airtransit has generated about $2.9 million in revenue, compared to operating costs of between $9 and $10 million. However, the official pointed out that as much as 30 per cent of the operating costs could be assigned to demonstration costs.

The Transport official said there has been no decision yet on what to do with either the aircraft or the Stolports at Ottawa and Montreal.

AN UNFORGETTABLE 5 COURSE DINNER

Hellyer Talking Zero Inflation

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

When even the most optimistic of the country's economists are talking about controlling, not beating, inflation, Tory leadership candidate Paul Hellyer talks about zero inflation and full employment — and he doesn't even smile when he says it.

The veteran politician — first Liberal, then Liberal cabinet minister and almost Liberal leader; then Independent; and now one of the front-runners in the crowded Tory leadership race — is still prescribing the same cure for the country's economic woes as he was in the early '70s.

And says, Hellyer, people are listening.

In Victoria Friday pumping support for the February leadership convention, the immaculate, navy-suited Hellyer says the Liberal's price and wage controls won't work and his idea of imposing strict controls on monopolies, but letting small businesses and unorganized workers find their own level, will work.

Bureaucrats aren't capable of sitting in Ottawa and imposing wage and price levels on businesses or workers across the country, Hellyer says, and controls should be tied to an average increase in productivity.

He jokes that the Liberal government's idea of government spending restraint is cutting out the country's national birthday celebration.

Hellyer has always had a good reception in Victoria. When he broke his Liberal party ties in 1971 and formed Action Canada, his own political party, he had a group of about 300 hard-core supporters in Victoria and the support is still there, he says.

During Friday's Victoria visit, Hellyer made one quick foray into provincial politics, saying he has heard in his B.C. travels that residents are in for a shock soon about the NDP government's finances.

"But I really probably shouldn't have said anything about that at all. It just came from the grapevine that exists."

The man who brought the country unification of the armed forces will bring Canadians decentralized government if he is prime minister.

Big government is out — small government is in, he says.

"I would recommend to the caucus and the party that we hold federal-provincial meetings, with municipal leaders as observers, and for a week or 10 days just relax and look at all the things that government does and how they can be done best."

The meetings would result in some changes in both directions, Hellyer says, because there are some things the federal government does now that could best be done by the provinces and vice versa.

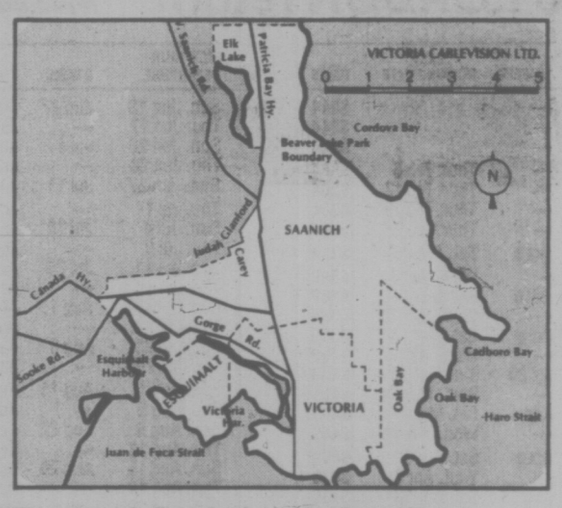
An important message about rate increases and channel changes for customers of Victoria Cablevision



This message is directed only to subscribers of Victoria Cablevision Ltd., comprising the area shown on map.

On February 5, Victoria Cablevision, a subsidiary of Premier Cablevision Limited, will apply to the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) for an increase in the monthly subscriber rate from $4.50 to $6, and an increase in installation fee from $15 to $25. We have had no rate increase since 1962, and many of our costs in that 14-year period of rapid inflation have more than doubled.

Even more important, however, is the fact that we have faced and will continue to face very heavy expenditures to modernize and expand the capabilities of our system, to make sure you do not lose American channels when new Canadian TV stations start broadcasting in this area later this year. Capital expenditures on the basic Victoria system, over the past three years, including costs involved in the rebuild to upgrade the system and provide extra channels, have been over $2,500,000.

As you may know, Western Approaches Ltd. has been given a licence to operate a new UHF (Ultra High Frequency) station in Vancouver, and expects to be on the air in September. The CRTC, a federal agency controlling cablevision and broadcasting, requires that we carry all Canadian stations on the regular, 12-position, VHF (Very High Frequency) dial on your TV set. We will therefore be converting the signal of the new UHF station (Channel 21 on the UHF dial, if you have one on your set) to occupy one of the 12 spots on the regular TV dial.

It might have seemed that Channel 13 would have been the logical spot for this new Vancouver station, because Channel 13 was vacant. Recently, however, as anticipated, Channel 13 has been re-opened in Tacoma. It is affiliated with the Public Broadcasting System and will offer an alternative to Channel 9, also a PBS affiliate.

Because of the wide interest in good programming of this type in the Victoria area, we will ask the CRTC to let us carry Channel 13 on Cable Channel 13. We will then put the new Vancouver station on Channel 7, and move Channel 7 (KIRO-TV) to the expanded channel service. This is a range of additional channels we will be adding to the cable, which will be available with an attachment you can buy for your set which will allow you to receive — in time — up to 30 channels. This attachment is called a "converter". They will be widely available for about $75 to $100.

We have chosen to move Channel 7 first, (as Vancouver area cablevision companies have also decided), because many of these programs are duplicated on Cable 3 (KVOS). You may well ask why we could not move Channel 7 to Channel 12 which is also unused. Unfortunately, because of the close proximity of the Channel 12 (KVOS) transmitter to Victoria, on nearby Orcas Island, any cable picture inserted on 12 would be seriously impaired by conflict with the over-the-air signal.

If a new French station should come on the air this year in Vancouver, or if CBC Victoria is subsequently licenced, the CRTC would require us to move additional American channels to the expanded channel service available only to those who purchase a converter. We cannot move either Western Approaches (Vancouver) or the French station or CBC Victoria to the expanded service. The CRTC insists that Canadian stations be carried on clear channels on the regular 12-position VHF dial.

It is unfortunate that we have to get through this bottleneck between a 12-channel dial and 30-channel dial at such a heavy personal expense for a converter. But once we get the converters the choice of programming will grow and grow. As soon as they are available we expect to be able to add a variety of other programming as well.

Nor should you feel that Victoria is being singled out. Actually we have been fortunate to be able to do without converters this long. Many cities in North America use them extensively. There are over 100,000 converters in use in the Toronto area right now. Vancouver is facing exactly the same situation today.

The typical converter (several companies make them) is a small box attached to your set by a long wire so you can select all channels from your armchair . . . or put it on your coffee table. Most have a fine-tuning knob as well, so you can adjust the colour without getting up. They are very easy to install. Most subscribers should be able to do it by following the simple directions.

We deeply regret the inconvenience and ultimate expense to those subscribers who will have to buy a converter to retain their favourite U.S. channels when this situation comes to a head.

On the other hand, we can understand and sympathize with CRTC's desire to make sure that Canadian broadcasters and Canadian talent are not overwhelmed. This, indeed, is the CRTC's mandate from the Parliament of Canada. Some of you may feel that most Canadian programs aren't worth bothering about, anyway. We can agree that the growth of Canadian programming is at a fragile stage. But we also feel that it is improving and needs encouragement and a measure of protection. Don't forget . . . it was this same CRTC that insisted that we get a higher Canadian content in radio programming a few years ago . . . and even the most pessimistic observer now agrees that a great many Canadian artists have been helped to national and international fame because of this ruling.

* * * * *

To sum up: We will apply to the CRTC to carry Tacoma's new PBS station on Channel 13. When the new Vancouver UHF station comes on the air in September, we will put it on Cable Channel 7 and move 7 to the expanded channel service. If a French station or CBC Victoria comes on the air, additional American channels will also be moved to the expanded channel service. As these developments get closer we shall keep our subscribers informed.

Distillery Offered For Sale

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — The British Columbia Distillery Co. plant, built 71 years ago, has been put up for sale after being closed since last September when no solution could be found to a strike called last May.

Other property of B.C. Distillery, owned by Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Ltd., of Waterloo, Ont., including one other property here, and its office and a warehouse in Vancouver has also been put up for sale.

Randal Symons, vice-president of the company in charge of the sale, said several potential buyers have indicated an interest in the property, the value of which he believes is in excess of $16 million not including equipment or stock.

The strike has resulted in the delisting of all Seagrams products on the shelves of B.C. liquor stores and agitation for national and continent-wide blacklisting by labor unions.

8 Local Sightless Students Mastering Airwave Chatter

Ham radio is one hobby which puts the blind on an equal footing with everyone else—so eight local sightless students are busy using fingers and ears to master the techniques of airwave chatter.

But the program, which started last November, is approaching a point where the blind students are going to need a helping hand from qualified ham operators, Don Jones said Friday.

Jones, field secretary in the Victoria office of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and one of the students, said they will need sponsors for the fledgling operators once they qualify for their certificates of competence, to help assemble radio kits and to provide a little bit of general supervision.

Anyone willing to assist can reach him at 383-1134.

While ham radio instruction for the blind is new in Victoria, Jones said the CNIB has a well-established amateur radio program across Canada. The CNIB will lease equipment for a nominal $15 a year to the blind who qualify after instruction.

Blind or sighted, anyone wanting into ham radio has to earn a certificate of competence from the federal department of communication. Besides a basic understanding of radio theory and a knowledge of the government regulations, it means mastering the international code — the dot-dot-dash-dash technique by key — well enough to send and receive letter-perfect at the rate of 10 words a minute.

For the blind students, there are dial labels in braille for their radios and tuning power is adjusted by sound frequency.

Jones said the students will hopefully be ready by April to try exams for their certificates. They have been instructed by volunteers since November, meeting once a week.

The communications department does make one concession for the blind would-be hams. After they've earned their certificates, they can use microphone, that is voice communication, right away. Others have to work with the code for another year.

Next week is White Cane Week and Jones said the objective of that exercise is to get the message to the public on how they can assist the blind as well as point out that blind people while handicapped are far from helpless.

The people on the ham radio course will be able to deliver that message themselves in two or three months — in code if they want.

SACKED BY SOCREDS, HE'S BACK ON JOB

Education Minister Pat McGeer announced Thursday that W. R. Hutchison, fired less than a month ago from the Northwest College Council, has been reappointed.

Hutchison, treasurer of the Trades and Labour Council in Terrace, and four other NDP appointees to the council were fired by the new Social Credit government after they insisted on continuing interviews for a new principal. The government had asked them to stop.

Also appointed to the council Thursday was Alice Jeffrey of Hazelton, band manager of the Glen Vowel Indian band.

Hardy Canadian Queens Needed to Counter African Killer Bee

By ROSEMARY PITCHER

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — A research project, aimed at producing queen bees hardy enough to withstand Canadian winters has begun in the apiary department of University of Guelph.

Directed by Prof. George Townsend, an international authority on bees, the project is aimed at protecting Canada from an invasion of killer African bees. The swarms of vicious bees are progressing northward at a rate of 250 miles a year and are expected to reach the southern United States within 10 years.

Prof. Townsend said that while the swarms would not attack Canada directly because of its climate, the killer African strain might be transported to Canada through the queens which are imported from Louisiana each spring.

Ontario imports about 20,000 queens annually and Western Canada brings in more than 200,000. When the killer bees begin to invade the southern United States, Prof. Townsend said, they will cross-breed with American bees and the imported queen bees may produce bees with the vicious characteristics in Canada.

Queen bees have been produced in Canada and maintained during winter in storage but they cannot survive Canadian winters in natural environments, nor can they be stored in large enough quantities for spring breeding programs.

In the next 10 years Prof. Townsend and his team hope to produce queen bees in mass quantities which will withstand Canadian winters outside of colonies.

"The southern United States is going to have a real problem within a decade wth the African bees, not only from the danger of the bees themselves but with the loss of crops," Prof. Townsend said.

"Workers will not be able to go into the fields. The only way for them to combat the threat is to import another species of African bee with gentler characteristics and cross-breed with the vicious strain, now heading up from South America, to produce a gentler bee."

More Smoke in Uniform Debate

To travel to work a Victoria firefighter could wear a suit of armor, a loincloth in fire-engine red or anything else that takes his fancy — at least as far as one city alderman is concerned.

Amid the Great Uniform Controversy that's straining relations between the city administration and its fire department personnel, Ald. Bob Wright admitted Thursday: "I don't care what they wear to go to work or to go home for that matter."

His comment came as city council discussed a recommendation that new-style uniforms be purchased for the firefighters only if they agreed to wear them to and from work.

Mayor Mike Young pointed out that Fire Chief Eric Simmons considered the sipulation an "important factor" from the point of view of discipline and pride in the department.

But Young said he himself doesn't attach that much importance to the matter, and in any case he's not sure what the phrase "to work" means.

"In any event I am not all that fond of the uniform," he conceded.

Council wrapped up the uniform and sent it back to the fire prevention committee for alterations.

U.S. Warns 3rd World

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger warned countries of the developing Third World Friday that they must co-operate with the United States in the United Nations and other international forums if they want preferential trade treatment.

"The hostility of some Third World spokesmen and bloc voting have made constructive discussion in UN forums between the industrial and developing worlds almost impossible," Kissinger told the Senate financing committee.

He said he has instructed each U.S. embassy in developing countries to make it clear to the governments "that one of the factors by which we will measure the value which that government attaches to its relations with us will be its statements and votes on that fairly limited number of issues which we indicate are of importance to us in international forums."

Under the 1974 U.S. Trade Act, the United States government has the authority to reduce or eliminate tariffs to help developing countries.

"But if it is right for us to adopt these policies, the developing countries must realize that they are not unconditional," Kissinger said.

Kissinger also said U.S. relations with the Communist world can be stabilized "and more prudent behavior on the part of the Soviet Union and its allies can be encouraged by closer economic ties."

Democrats In Maine Stood Up

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) Democrats in Maine, where party caucuses give the first hint of presidential preference in the East, held a $50-per-person get acquainted party for presidential candidates. None of the candidates showed up.

"I'm very, very upset that the candidates didn't appear," said state chairman David Bustin, who appeared upset to the point of anger at the last minute cancellations. "Obviously, we wouldn't have had a reception if we knew the candidates weren't coming."

His disappointment was shared by the fewer than 500 of the expected 700 persons who attended.

In anticipation of Sunday's caucuses, which preceeds the nation's first primary in New Hampshire by several weeks, state Democratics worked for months putting together a town meeting so the party faithful could meet those running.

$1 WILL BUY A HOME IN KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A dollar these days will buy 50 pieces of bubble gum, a little more than a pound of ground beef and a pair of nylon stockings. It also could buy a house.

The city, with the help of a federal housing program, plans to sell homes in declining neighborhoods for $1 each to persons who will repair them and live in them for at least five years.

"Most of the houses need quite a bit of work because they've been sitting vacant for a long time," said Gerald Shechter, a housing specialist with the city's urban affairs depatment.

But, Shechter said the homes were all structurally sound.

Shechter said the 13 homes were about 50 years old, one and two stories, made of brick, stone and range from two to five bedrooms in size. All were repossessed for default on Federal Housing Administration loans.

"The neighborhoods have undergone a lot of changes in the last five years — incomes have gone down, vandalism has gone up," Shechter said. "What the city is trying to do is to get a hold of it and stop the downward trend before it goes too far."

Rich Candidates 'May Have Edge'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court decision to eliminate campaign spending limits may give wealthier candidates an edge in the coming presidential battles, several of the candidates say. But most were happy with the ruling, which also approved public campaign financing.

The lifting of spending ceilings, said Sargent Shriver, "will mean that candidates are no longer on an even footing."

"The Nelson Rockefellers of the world have won a great victory today," said Democratic Representative Morris Udall of Arizona.

Discipline Threat Lifted at Post

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The threat of disciplinary action was lifted Thursday night against editorial and commercial employees who have continued to work during the current strike against the Washington Post.

International officers of The Newspaper Guild passed a resolution saying that the international will dismiss on appeal convictions and charges brought by the local union against more than 300 Post employees who refused to honor picket lines of striking mailers and pressmen.

Members of the Post unit voted four times to continue working during the strike. The international executive board said Thursday that once leaders of the local had permitted the unit to decide its own course, the leaders no longer could direct the unit.

The international board rejected a request by some local members that they be allowed to form a separate union at the Post. However, the board responded to a petition by Post members that the board designate a chief negotiator for forthcoming contract negotiations between the Guild and the paper. The Guild agreement expires April 1.

However, denouncing leaders of his own international union, the administrator of the Washington-Baltimore local of The Guild threatened Friday to press ahead with disciplinary action against guild members working at the Post.

In a defiant statement which accused his own international of "making common cause with a publisher," Brian Flores, the local's appointed administrative officer, suggested that the international executive board could be over-ruled by the union's international convention next summer.

Flores, a $35,000-a-year administrative officer of the Post Guild, has negotiated previous contracts but has become a controversial figure for many Post members. A spokesman for the international board declined to say that he would be replaced.

The mailers appear to be the key to a solution to the Post strike and they met with representatives of the newspaper for more than eight hours Thursday. The Post made a complete contract proposal for mailers' helpers but there are still several outstanding issues to be resolved. Further negotiating sessions may take place next week, federal mediator Kenneth Moffett said.

Meanwhile, Post reporter Tom Grubisich, who defeated Washington-Baltimore Guild local president Warren Howard in an election this week, was prevented from taking office at a scheduled installation meeting when Howard ruled a recount was necessary. Grubisich won by a vote of 560 to 547.

Law Bans Drug Bullets But Allows Guns

Why don't they outlaw this drug-taking paraphernalia?

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Trafficking in the paraphernalia needed to prepare or administer illicit drugs has become a million dollar a year business in the province.

And there is little, if anything, police can do to curb it for legislation designed to control or restrict the trade is practically non-existent.

The situation presents a strange anomoly in our laws. As one officer put it "it's like banning the sale of bullets but not the gun."

The extent of the problem was raised for the first time in the Second Findings report of the Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit (CLEU), released last December.

In the report investigators concluded the availability of drug paraphernalia is widespread, particularly in Vancouver and Victoria.

Comments by local police officials and a survey conducted by the Times of some shops in the Victoria downtown core supported the report's conclusion.

STAPLES

In one shop in Bastion Square, roachclips, coke spoons, pipes trade marked H. M. Prisons Only (they're imported from California) and other drug cult accoutrements are blatantly displayed and sold with impunity. Several import stores on Government sell the Arab water-cooled hookahs — a pipe made popular by marijuana-smoking aficionados. And in one shop mock opium pipes were listed for sale in two sizes — $8.98 and $10.98. Asked whether they worked, the clerk just shyly shook her head. She didn't know.

Some of the import stores have resisted the temptation to get involved in such trade. At Cost Plus, for example, manager Mrs. Muriel Ratcliffe, said she is so opposed to it she doesn't even sell Patchouli oil or posters which carry a drug theme.

"I know it's not against the law to sell them," she said. "But I feel it's against the moral law."

Inspector Dave Staples, head of the Greater Victoria drug squad, said he imagined there were hundreds of outlets in town where a person could buy drug paraphernalia.

He decried also the availability of the publication High Times which he said tends to play up and glamorize the drug culture. If he had his way he'd see it banned.

CLEU investigators noted the Winter, 1975, edition of the magazine contained no fewer than 22 ads for marijuana paraphernalia ranging from a full-page ad for a "Grass Hopper" for "sorting seeds and stems from your own stash" to ads for drug equipment catalogues.

"If the magazine appeared 10 or 15 years ago there'd be such a hue and cry the vendors would be forced to take it off their shelves," Staples said.

He said the biggest difficulty is trying to deal with the drug paraphernalia problem is public apathy.

Part of the reason for that attitude is the liberalizing trend in society but part also can be attributed to the seeming hopelessness of finding some control mechanism as much of the drug equipment has a legitimate use as well.

For instance a person trying to purchase a set of scales, or a syringe or No. 5 gelatin capsules or glass tubing could conceivably be a homemaker needing scales for cooking, a diabetic requiring a needle for his insulin shot, an aquarium keeper who uses the No. 5 cap for measuring out fish food or an amateur chemist wanting glassware to carry out experiments.

The B.C. College of Pharmacists has addressed itself to the problem and last June passed a bylaw prohibiting druggists from selling hypodermic syringes and needles "unless he has established to his reasonable satisfaction that they are required for a lawful purpose." The bylaw also bans the pharmacist from advertising syringes and requires him to store them in an area where the public does not have access.

But there are no strictures on the sale of capsules used to cut and store heroin although pressure is being brought to bear on the pharmacist who sells them indiscriminately.

Parke Davis is the only manufacturer of No. 5 capsules in Canada and they're used for encapsulating Benadryl, an anthistamine which can be bought without prescription. The company recently announced it is planning to discontinue producing the No. 5 caps.

But they are still available from the Kobayshi Pharmaceutical Company of Japan. One Vancouver drugstore ordered five million of them between August 1972 and February 1973.

"It does not seem likely that all the capsules had a legal use," the CLEU report wryly notes.

Ralph Storey, who manages the surgical supply division of McGill and Orme in Victoria, said it was once almost a daily occurrence to have someone with an obvious ulterior motive try to purchase drug paraphernalia.

Storey said scales, caps, and glassware such as thistle tubes are not sold to the general public; rather only "to those whom we know."

And as to syringes a purchaser must be able to prove by either a letter from his doctor or by prescription that he is a diabetic or has some other valid use for the equipment.

Storey said he and most other pharmacists in Victoria work closely with the RCMP in spotting and informing on possible drug users, a fact confirmed by Staples.

"In this town we get pretty good co-operation from the drug stores," the inspector said.

Notwithstanding the availability of drug paraphernalia and the lack of any trade controls, Staples said he still felt enforcement was "the only form of control which has any salutory effect on the drug problem."

He wondered whether a vendetta mounted to crush the trafficking in paraphernalia would prove effective.

"The addict would just turn to other methods," he said.

Or put another way, the devil you know is perhaps better than the devil you don't.

Mallard Raps Sewer Laxity

The scrapping of regulations requiring certification of contractors installing sewage disposal systems is a step backward, Derrick Mallard, president of the Citizens' Association to Save the Environment, said today.

"This isn't a very impressive start for a new minister of health," he said. "Instead of improving or tightening health regulations, he relaxes them."

Health Minister Bob McClelland last week rescinded the regulation and substituted education programs which would be available to contractors on a voluntary basis.

He said he ordered the change after contractors complained about the system.

Mallard recalled that the regulations were set up a year ago at the request of regional medical officials because they were having problems with some contractors not following regulations.

Under the regulations, contractors had to prove they understood regulations controlling construction and repair of sewage systems.

"Medical officials had valid reasons for requesting some controls on sewage construction contractors," said Mallard. "But the minister chose to ignore them."

Mallard said the voluntary educational program won't work.

"It's just like leaving it to motorist to stop at red traffic lights on a voluntary basis," he added.

Legion Strike Settled

Members of the Britannia Branch Legion on Blanshard can return to their favorite watering hole today with the settlement of a five-month strike.

The six members of Local 835 of the Beverage Dispensers and Culinary Workers Union who have walked the picket line in front of the legion hall since early September this morning signed a contract with the legion's management.

Union business agent Tony Gerussi said the strike started in September because the legion would not sign the same contract as other hotels in the Victoria area. The area contract signed this morning stipulates a base rate of $3.53 an hour and a top rate of $5.53 an hour, about $2 an hour more than the previous top rate.

The contract is the first to be signed at the legion since the mid-50s. The union was certified in 1954 and while union membership lapsed two years later, the local was never de-certified. It was reorganized last spring.

500 Jeering Students Fail to Flush Bennett or McGeer at ICBC Protest

Students demonstrators at the legislature Friday failed to flush out even one cabinet minister to listen to their ICBC woes and were left chanting in the cold air with only an executive assistant to listen.

The 500 car-driving students from mainly University of Victoria and Camosun College shouted for Premier Bill Bennett and minister in charge of ICBC Pat McGeer, but had to settle for Jim Bennett, McGeer's executive assistant.

McGeer left for an ICBC directors meeting in Vancouver about 15 minutes before the protesters arrived and Bennett was believed to be in his office inside the building, ignoring the crowd.

"We want McGeer . . . We want ICBC rates down and we want Premier Bill Bennett out" . . . the students bellowed.

"Just leave your cars where they be," shouted University of Victoria student organizer Eugene Raponi as blaring horns signalled the arrival of more protesters.

"There are too many cars. They'll never tow us all away."

Representatives of opposition parties addressed the boisterous crowd.

NDP MLA for Victoria Charles Barber said:

"I don't think you have compassion. You're making fun of a poor man who says he's in shock about the under 25 rate increases being so high.

"The Socreds have a problem understanding how any ordinary people feel. If you were the son of a millionaire, you'd have a hard time too."

Tory leader Scott Wallace said the rate hike is "the first boot up the rear end and we're in for more of the same kind of treatment.

"The public posture of people like Pat McGeer who says 'if you can't afford to drive a car sell it' leaves me shaken.

"What gets me is the new leader of the new party says he's shocked (when he learned about increases for under-25 drivers). Where the hell has he been these days?"

Two students left the steps to go scout the halls for cabinet ministers but returned to report: "There isn't a cabinet minister in there. Bill Bennett probably slipped out the back door."

All but three doors to the Buildings were locked and regular security was boosted, apparently a result of another demonstration several weeks ago when about 100 protesters bypassed security guards and broke into the cabinet room.

Security guards carrying walkie-talkies patrolled all entrances and several plain-clothes policemen mingled with the crowd outside.

When McGeer's executive assistant tried to address the students, he was hooted down.

When the crowd gave him a chance to speak he started off by saying: "The Amchitka demonstration, when I was at university, was better than this."

More boos.

"We expected you a little earlier. The minister was prepared to meet with you."

("Bullshit, Bullshit, Bullshit" was the responding chant.)

"Let me rephrase that . . . he would have met with a number of you but he had a pre-arranged meeting with the board of directors of ICBC in Vancouver."

"Where did you rake him up from?" shouted one student. "It's all or nothing . . . we want McGeer . . ."

And when Jim Bennett said: "I'd like to talk to you about your problems" even the security guards laughed.

He asked the president of the UVic student council to prepare a brief with specific complaints and the minister, he said, would study it next week.

"But I can't come out here and answer for government policy. I've been asked to come out by the minister to listen to your problems."

"We'll wait and see our forms and then we'll come back in bigger numbers. This was just a dress rehearsal," said a student as the cars filed away bearing "For Sale" signs and placards saying "The people of B.C. will crush facism . . . If you can't afford your government, sell it . . . Needed, election correction . . . Don't Socreds make you honk . . ."

ASK THE TIMES

Q. I would like to know the address of Spanka Music Corporation. Could you also tell me if Paul Anka owns and manages the company? If not, then who does? A.C.

A. Paul Anka is on record as being the proprietor of Spanka Music Corporation as of 1958 and Flanka Music Corporation as of the same date. The address is given as 200 W. 57th Street, New York City, N.Y. 10019.

Four Bright Lads Turned on to a Life of Discovery

Dave Peters . . . watching paramecium

Never was much of a whiz at science.

I mean, all those test tubes and bunsen burners and bubbling brews didn't fizz on me.

I was a bit dense, I guess, but while I turned eagerly to sport and tried, too, to make words work, many of my young mates stayed with their classroom witches' cauldrons. And in later life quite a few went on to make their mark in the world of science.

This week I met four such boys — boys who are "turned on" by things scientific and who, in all probability, are destined for a life of delving . . . and discovering.

All students at Belmont Secondary School, they are encouraged here by the Society for the Advancement of Young Scientists (SAYS), and right now they're getting ready.

Just like some 100 or so other students they are working on projects which they'll exhibit at the Vancouver Island Regional Science Fair, to be held in the Hillside Mall on March 18, 19 and 20. Their experiments are fascinating.

PAUL HEARSEY, a 17-year-old Grade 11 student, is designing a robot arm that will be electric and can be used in bomb disposal work or in the handling of radioactive materials without endangering human limbs. Made of a combination of plastic and metal, the arm will be telescopic, rather like a radio antenna.

Paul is a perfectionist. He had already got well on the way with one claw but decided it was too clumsy and is back at the drawing board scaling it down. He'll have it ready for the show.

His dream is to build a model submarine to use his robot arm with. And when school days are over, Paul will probably go into oceanogrphy.

DAVE MASINI, an 18-year-old Grade 12 student, is making a study of evaporation using different liquids and different size containers. He is working with an electronic balance to weigh the difference in evaporation every 30 seconds. It's so sensitive, he says, "that you could probably weigh your signature."

Dave hopes to go to the University of Victoria and get an engineering degree. He would also like to become a pilot.

BOB CROSBY, an 18-year-old Grade 12 studnet, is trying to build an electroencephlograph (EEG) machine capable of measuring a person's brain-wave patterns to determine if those patterns are normal or abnormal and thus possibly detect tumors or epilepsy. He wants his machine to be able to give eight readouts.

Bob would like to continue in science but doesn't feel his grades in other subjects are good enough to enable him to do so. He plans to become a heavy-duty machinery operator but will "keep looking into science all the time."

DAVE PETERS, a 17-yeay-old Grade 11 student, is studying the effects of gravity, light and heat on paramecium (single-celled animal).

He is using chemicals and a powerful microscope to determine how paramecium respond to changes in the environment.

Dave says that when he graduates he plans to continue in science, in some aspect, most likely in zoology.

For these four young men and many others, the Regional Fair, being organized again by Art Dow, will be a big moment that could lead to even bigger moments.

A panel of 35 judges, headed by Dr. Bob Dobbs of the Pacific Research Centre, will select the best four exhibits from the Island and these will go on to the National Science Fair in Brandon, Manitoba, from May 15 to 23. Some $60,000 worth of prizes will be up for grabs at the national fair and the top three Canadian students are sent by Shell Oil to the Science Fornight in Britain.

"We estimated that last year 125,000 students in the country started Science Fair projects," the chairman of SAYS, Belmont science teacher Pete Robertson, told me. "Of those, 132 made it to the national fair, so you can see it's quite a weeding-out process."

The Belmont boys know that. They realize they are the "outsiders" in the race. Traditionally, the private schools (where science is compulsory for all students) have done well in the Science Fairs. At last year's Canada-wide fair, the most successful Island exhibitor was Neil Mellor of Glenlyon, who built an airfoil and demonstrated its aerodynamic qualities.

But, just like the other public schools, Bemont keeps trying. And, after all, it has had its moments. In 1964, Bunty Baines (who, incidentally, has just finished her PhD in genetics) took an exhibit to the National Fair and her feat was repeated by Martin Doney of Belmont in 1974.

Next year, Island students won't have far to take their exhibits to the Canada-wide fair because for the first time it is being held in Victoria.

City-Based Firm Accused Of Driving Others Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — The owner of a Vancouver-based garbage disposal company says a Victoria firm wants to buy him out, as its parent has done with 15 other major Canadian garbage removal firms since 1971.

"We're the last big company in the country that's independently owned," said Aschner Smith, president of Smithrite Disposal Ltd.

"If they get us, they've got the whole country."

"They" is Browning Ferris Industries Ltd., a Texas giant from Houston, and Smith thinks it's going to attack him from its Victoria base.

Smith, a flamboyant man who shouts and pounds his desk for emphasis, vows that will mean open war.

He said Browning Ferris, as well as other American firms, have tried to buy out his business, but he wants to remain a Canadian-owned family operation.

Officials of Cypress Disposal Ltd. of Victoria have said they are being driven out of business by the price-cutting tactics of BFI Waste Systems, a subsidiary of Browning Ferris.

Amelia Gazsity, a major shareholder in Cypress, has said her attempts to sell to the American firm were blocked by the Foreign Investment Review Commission, a charge the attorney-general's office is investigating.

The board must approve the sale of any Canadian company with more than $200,000 in assets to any foreign company.

"A financial statement for BFI Industries for 1974 shows an income of $400 million and operating capital available as $175 million," said Robert Heath, lawyer for Mrs. Gazsity.

"It would only take $1 million to break Cypress."

But Wayne Wrigley, a BFI salesman in Victoria, said his company is gaining more customers by providing better service than Cypress.

He denied charges of price cutting.

"We've had all sorts of problems with Cypress — they are trying to make out like it's the big guy moving in and putting the little guy out of business.

"It's nothing like that. We moved into town a year ago, gave good service at competitive rates, kept our machines clean and now we have 50 per cent of the business."

One of Victoria's four small operators — mostly serving the domestic area — agrees garbage collection in the capital is becoming more competitive, especially in the commercial area where heavy equipment and large steel containers are used.

Mary Patenaude, who helps in her husband's Langford-based disposal business, supported Wrigley's contention that service counts, even when rates go up, and it remains a strong factor in customer loyalty.

She said there had been quite a bit of talk about the BFI-Cypress struggle but as far as she knew there was no attempt by BFI to develop domestic garbage business. Cypress and BFI are the only two large operators in commercial service, BFI having entered late during the area-wide strike of civic staffs a year ago.

Speaking of the disposal industry generally, Mrs. Patenaude said "They like to cut the other guy's throat until they sell out. I don't know whether BFI has been doing this with Cypress (but) if you can't cut prices you work until you almost go bankrupt.

"When you're giving good service it doesn't matter how much you raise your prices, you'll keep your customers."

Patenade has been in business about 25 years serving unorganized areas from View Royal to within four miles of Jordan River, including some commercial customers and most schools.

Wrigley said Cypress, which has had a three-year monopoly, increased rates between 50 and 80 per cent this year, while BFI increased rates only 20 per cent.

"Last month we signed up 150 new customers."

Wrigley also said people from Houston have looked over Vancouver, but said he did not know the result of their survey. The company's method is to send in a survey team to determine if a branch could be feasible.

"If so, they attempt to buy a small company or two and expand from there."

In Toronto, where competition in the waste disposal field is intensifying, Walter Drakesford of the Canadian firm, Econo Disvosal Systems, said BFI is moving in high-pressure U.S. salesmen and he expects price-cutting trouble.

"There's no question they are gearing up and want to monopolize the business," Drakesford said.

"Up to now they've kept a fairly low profile in Toronto but now their Canadian management is out completely and I'm expecting tactics similar to those used in Victoria.

"Right now they'll go in and offer to do the job 10 to 15 per cent below our rates. So far we have met their prices so we've not lost customers, but our profit margin will suffer. I expect it to show up on next month's statement.

"BFI is one of the major corporations in the U.S.—it's a giant conglomerate engaged in refuse and paper recycling."

In Houston, Steve Thomas, a vice-president in Browning Ferris' waste systems division, said his company does not have a policy aimed at takeover of the Canadian market.

He also denied any price-cutting tactics as a method of driving Canadian firms out of the market.

SETTING THE STAGE

When preparing your home to be shown to prospective buyers, use subtle showmanship to help set the atmosphere. Give your home a restful, happy, inviting look. Don't just sell a house — sell a home!

For evening inspection, brighten your home from the front porch light on through all the rooms in the house. Little decorator touches — a vase of flowers, a plant, small pillows — can add much to the comfortable feeling of a home.

If you are having your home shown in the winter, a crackling fire in the fireplace adds irresistable attraction. A working fireplace is a major attraction to home buyers.

A large mirror can make a room look larger. Properly placed, it can reflect and magnify many of your best selling points. Definitely turn off the TV and turn on soft background music on the hi-fi to create that subtle lived-in atmosphere. Your prospects are buying more than a house — they are buying a new way of life. So make your home LIVE.

Disorders Linked to Air, Food

By ERVIN WATSON

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Car exhaust fumes gave a 45-year-old man the delusion he was Jesus Christ.

A favorite salad dressing brought on severe depression and drove a 35-year-old man to the brink of suicide.

Plain milk led a 40-year-old woman into a state of deep despair.

These are three examples cited by two Oklahoma City psychiatrists who have set up an environmental control unit at a private hospital.

They believe the air a patient breathes, the food he eats or anything he comes into contact with may bring on mental illness.

Even the ingredients contained in clothing or lipstick can produce reactions when a person is sensitive to them, the doctors said.

They have set up a 20-bed hospital unit for treatment of such patients.

Dr. Harold G. Sleeper, president of the Oklahoma Foundation, which governs Coyne Campbell Hospital, has been joined in the venture by Dr. William H. Philpott, who has conducted research into such sensitivities.

Dr. Philpott said such innocent-appearing foods as cottage cheese can cause allergic type reactions causing the brain to swell, producing a mental disorder.

He said 92 per cent of the 250 patients he has tested reacted to something. Tests on the remainder were inconclusive because the patients did not co-operate.

The psychiatrists said the Oklahoma City unit is the first in the United States of its type— devoted exclusively to psychiatric problems.

The causes of an allergy are unknown, they said, adding it might be factors like heredity, nutritional deficiencies or metabolic disorders.

They stressed that research into the ecology-related illnesse is not likely to produce the solution to all mental health problems and that conventional therapy, including drugs, will continue to be used.

"Only those patients who do not show improvement under conventional care will be selected for treatment in this unit," Dr. Sleeper said.

During treatment, the patient is separated from outside influences of the environment as much as possible and all foods are withdrawn for four days. Only the cleanest, untreated water is the diet for the fasting period.

Favorite foods are often the culprit, the doctors said.

After the fast, the patient is exposed to foods and chemicals one at a time and his reaction is gauged.

A patient's reaction to some foods and chemicals may be monitored up to two years.

atry," Dr. Philpott said. "It

"This won't replace psychi will aid in treatment and the use of tranquillizers and shock therapy should be materially reduced. Conflicts and other problems must be dealt with in psychotherapy as before.

"In years to come, this treatment could become the primary treatment, though."

Killer Stalks French Women

NOGENT-SUR-OISE, France (Reuter)—Fear gnaws at the women in this drab town north of Paris because of a man dubbed "the killer in the shadows."

Anyone might become the next victim of a man who is known to have killed eight times in a run-down railway yard and patches of bleak wasteland around Nogent.

He kills without a motive. The women he chooses are murdered with a .22-calibre rifle. Each time he strips them halfnaked, but never rapes them and always steals their handbigs.

The sense of panic in Nogent's conglomeration of soulless apartments has risen steadily.

The killer first struck in 1969, claiming two victims. The daughter of the second woman caught a glimpse of a tall, well-built young man wearing a fisherman's cap and a scarf over his mouth.

Then Nogent had no sign of the killer for three years.

But in February, 1973, the third victim surfaced and on a mild night in May the killer murdered a courting couple beside an abandoned cemetery.

Since then three women have been shot through the head. The latest, a secretary commuting to Paris, was found sprawled in a garden behind a railway station on Jan. 6. She was murdered as 70 commuters stood on a platform awaiting a morning train to the capital.

The town is trembling now.

A woman at the cash register in a local supermarket said: "The latest victim really hit home. I'm scared. My husband comes to pick me up from work now."

Outside in a children's playground, the swings and seesaws are motionless.

Another woman said: "We don't go out after 4:30 in the afternoon. We barricade ourselves in. It's true, we are frightened. Many people want to leave this cursed place."

A local reporter said many local women would say the same thing. "Once the wind's up and the rain is pouring down, they are all convinced another body will be found the next morning," he said.

Police reinforcements have poured into Nogent to track down the killer. Ten inspectors have done house-to-house interviews among the town's 15,000 inhabitants.

Inspector Christian Jacob, the detective in charge of the investigation, has a cupboard crammed with files on the case.

"I'm sure somebody somewhere knows who the killer is— his mother, sister or wife perhaps," he said.

"Our killer is an intelligent man. There is no link between his victims. They are aged from 20 to 49 and from all kinds of social backgrounds."

Oil Boom Alters Traditional Life In Peru's Jungle

QUITOS, Peru (Reuter) — An oil boom in Peru's northeastern jungle is transforming traditional life in the upper Amazon.

Thousands of families have abandoned their tribal settlements on the river banks in search of lucrative work in the jungle oilfields.

About 10 yearrs ago the province of Loreto, a tangled mass of jungle, swamp and river, provided enough food for its native population and the 60,000 inhabitants of this Amazon port.

The natives worked small plots (chacras), hunted fish and animals and plied a barter trade in their dugout canoes up the inland waterways to Iquitos.

Their canoes still glide up and down the rivers and into the nearby native market of Belen, a city of floating houses which rise and fall with the Amazon flood, but they are powered today by outboard motors and many carry imported food.

In fact, less than five years since the discovery of major oil deposits in the jungle, 70 per cent of the food eaten here has to be transported across the Andes from the Pacific coast, mostly by air.

Transport costs and arrival of foreign oil companies have sparked an unprecedented rise in prices and this city, Peru's Atlantic port, has become the most expensive in the country.

The exodus from the jungle chacras has helped push up the population in Iquitos to about 160,000.

"We've got a dramatic problem on our hands—a falloff in agricultural production and an enormous influx of unproductive sectors into the city," a Loreto province government planning official said.

It is estimated that up to 15,000 people have abandoned their chacras since the oil boom began in 1971.

"Examples of the drop in food production are alarming," the planning official said. Rice cultivation had dropped by more than one-seventh.

The production drop is reflected in local prices. For example, sugar is three times what it costs in Lima. Rents are about five times what they were four years ago.

Local government officials concede they were caught unprepared by the oil boom but now are conducting large-scale studies and projects to cope with the situation.

Now that the exploratory stages of the jungle oil operation which demand the maximum amount of labor are ending, local authorities are working on schemes to absorb the expected inflow of unemployed.

"Having earned what for them is a small fortune in a few years, few of the families are going to be willing to return to their subsistence life on the chacras," the local official said.

I'M TIRED

I have been interviewing men for potential high-income sales jobs. I'm tired of the men who come to me looking for a substantial salary — older men and younger men with no ambition. Is anyone looking for a real career — not just a job?

I'm looking for an individual who likes meeting people, has a strong desire to achieve and wants unlimited income. Write Sales Manager, Box 334, Victoria Press.

New Airport Car Rental Policy PUBLIC MEETING

A new policy for licensing of car rental firms at airports operated by Transport Canada is soon to be implemented.

Interested car rental firms are invited to attend a public meeting, details below, at which opinions are being sought on the government's proposed new policy for car rental services.

Under the new policy, car rental firms will be able to bid openly for the right to obtain counters and parking space at airports operated by Transport Canada.

Any car rental firm may seek access to an airport if it has been actively engaged in the car rental business for five years, has operated in the area served by the airport for at least a year, is able to meet traffic demands at the airport, and is able to satisfy all necessary insurance requirements.

Maximum comment and consultation is encouraged at the following public meeting:

Date: February 2, 1976

Time: 9:00 a.m.

Location: Hotel Vancouver, Waddington Room, Vancouver, B.C.

Lougheed Pushers Give Up

TORONTO (CP) — The Draft Lougheed Committee has disbanded, ending its campaign to have Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta seek the leadership of the federal Progressive Conservative party, committee chairman David McFadden said Friday.

The decision, made at a committee meeting Thursday, was influenced by the mixed reaction from Albertans to the proposal that Lougheed seek the leadership, said McFadden, a Toronto lawyer.

He said the committee believed that only the people of Alberta could release the premier from his commitment to remain in office there.

However, response from Albertans indicated that half were in favor of Lougheed's candidacy and half preferred that he remain in the province, he said.

Members also believed it was in the best interests of the party that the committee disband, he said, and they did not want to embarrass Lougheed by their continued support.

Several candidates are qualified for the leadership, he said, and committee members now are free to support their campaigns.

THE GOVERNMENT OF BRITISH COLUMBIA DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING

Churchill's Grandson Slams U.S. 'Circus'

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Winston S. Churchill today accused the United States of indulging in the "endless circus" of the bicentennial and a "grotesque orgy" of self-criticism while the Soviets penetrated Africa and the Middle East.

"Detente is a disaster ... just another word for appeasement," Churchill, a Conservative Party member of Britain's parliament and grandson of the wartime prime minister, said. "Sinister, totalitarian forces are on the march.

"Yet the democracies of the West go wantonly on their way toward a cataclysm, while their politicians are more concerned with economic problems, unemployment and party bickering and our peoples are diverted ... by endless circuses such as the American Bicentennial this year," he said in a speech here.

"The great republic is celebrating its 200th anniversary by indulging in a grotesque orgy of self-denigration and party political mud-slinging," Churchill said. "The legislators on Capitol Hill are washing their dirty laundry in the Potomac while the interests of Western democracy go by default.

"These men," he said, "operating from a variety of motives, actively help the Soviet Union's imperial designs by cutting off such meagre assistance as President Ford and Dr. Kissinger had been able to get to (pro-Western) Unita and FNLA forces (in Angola.)"

Churchill said Russia won "a clear victory" in Lebanon when "the Soviet-backed, Syrian - controlled Palestinian Liberation Army" invaded that country and made it a "protectorate."

The Soviet Union is trying to make a "colony" of Angola, he said, from which it "can disrupt the free flow of food, oil and other vital raw materials around the Cape, without which the United States would suffer severe economic disruption and the nations of Europe, economic strangulation."

Churchill said the United States "must make clear (to Moscow) that any continuation of these policies must inevitably invalidate arrangements already entered into for the supply of grain, technology and capital to the Soviet Union.

"Why should we finance our own destruction?" he said.

He also urged "maximum unity," not only within the West but with the developing world and China "to bring massive diplomatic weight to bear on the Soviet Union, until she abandons her present expansionist amd militarist course."

If this does not work, he said, "the West will have no alternative but to rearm and rearm swiftly."

Research Cutback

VANCOUVER (CP) — Financial cutbacks by the federal government are likely to have serious effects on medical and scientific research, says two top University of British Columbia scientists.

Dr. James Miller, head of the department of medical genetics, said Friday the decision by the federal government to hold the Medical Research Council at $48.4 million when the uncoming budget was fo $55-million "represents a major cutback in medical research of all types in Canada."

Growing Legions Helped By Gamblers Anonymous

NEW YORK (Reuter)—Barry A. remembers the day well, his mother had died suddenly. Asked by his sister to contribute towards the funeral, he said he was broke. That afternoon he went to Aqueduct race track and blew $300 on the horses.

"That money was 'action money,'" he says, "and to a compulsive gambler like me that meant it was strictly for gambling—not anything else, not even my own mother's funeral."

Charlie W. recalls the night his wife discovered her bracelet missing. Aware of her husband's gambling bent, she asked whether he had taken the bracelet. Indignant, he denied taking it and proceeded to turn the house upside-down. "I even sifted through the garbage looking for it and convinced her I hadn't taken it," he recollects.

"Finally, I told her I thought her son by a previous marriage, who had been over the night before, had taken it. She broke down and cried like a baby."

All the while Charlie knew the bracelet was at a pawn shop where he had left it that morning to get some "action money."

As a man who had looted his little girl's piggy bank, cashed in his young son's war bonds and stolen much of his wife's jewelry, Tony B. was hardly a model father. But even he knew he had gone too far when, the week before his daughter's wedding, he withdrew the wedding money from the bank to pay off some of the interest he owed to a loan shark.

All three men are compulsive gamblers—as badly hooked on gambling as an alcoholic is on liquor or a narcotics addict on heroin. They are also members of Gamblers Anonymous (GA), a fellowship of former gamblers who gather at chapter meetings in Canada, the United States and five other countries to try to protect one another from sliding back into a nightmarish dream world.

Established by two obsessive gamblers in Los Angeles in 1957, GA now has 211 chapters with approximately 5,000 members in the U.S. About 2,000 other members belong to chapters in Canada, Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Belgium and Ireland. In Britain, where gambling is legal, there are about 35 chapters.

The over-all membership represents only the tip of the iceberg. In the U.S., there are an estimated six million compulsive gamblers. Almost half are believed to be women, but only a handful belong to GA, whose membership is more than 95 per cent male.

Using the time-tested techniques of Alcoholics Anonymous, GA is operated by and controlled by its members on the theory that "it takes one to know one, and it takes one to help one."

At a recent seminar, attended by about 50 members, one after another rose and recounted pathetic—even harrowing—tales of how they had become submerged in a morass of degradation, chicanery and outright thievery before turning to GA for help.

Under the GA charter, the only requirement for membership is "an honest desire to stop gambling." There are no dues, although contributions are solicited to help pay the rent for the meeting place and for coffee and cake. Ironically, members are generally asked for $2 at each meeting —the minimum, and traditional bet on a horse race.

Ben C., a salesman, told how he got hooked on gambling while shooting dice at the age of six. By the time he was 10, using money he stole from his parents, he was betting on horses, baseball, football and basketball. Later, as an adult, he also bet on hockey games, "although all I knew about hockey was that they used a puck and played on ice."

At age 45, Ben C. joined GA, with $20 in the bank and more than $8,000 in debt.

"After 39 years of conniving and stealing, ignoring my wife and kids, using food money for gambling, I finally rejoined the human race. Now, I've paid off my debts, have a lovely home, a good job and a happy family."

When Al C.'s wife gave birth to a seven-pound, four-ounce girl, she gave him 10 cents at the hospital and asked him to telephone her parents with the good news. "I was completely tapped out (broke) and I used the dime to call my bookmaker to place a daily-double bet on the 7 and 4 and 4 and 7 combinations," he said. "I won, but I still owed the shylocks $10,000."

Not a few GA members turned to crime to pay off loan sharks. Lou M., while a garment company accountant, swindled the firm out of several thousand dollars but never got caught. Subsequently, he served two years in prison for a robbery he staged to help pay off a loan shark who had threatened him with violence.

"While I was in prison, I gambled for cigarettes, even though I didn't smoke," he said. "It satisfied my craving."

GA has an auxiliary, called Gam-Anon, comprised of wives and husbands of GA members and based on Al-Anon, the auxiliary of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Why does one become a compulsive gambler?

Dr. Harry Perlowitz, a New York psychiatrist who is an expert in the field, says gambling is a form of self-flagellation and masochism. Many compulsive gamblers come from broken homes. Most had domineering mothers who showed them little affection when they were young.

"The compulsive gambler is buying love or a substitute form of love," Dr. Perlowitz says. Like many other psychiatrists and psychologists, he believes obsessive gamblers are self-destructive and that they have a subconscious desire not to win, but to lose.

SHE ROLLS CIGARS AND PUFFS THEM

TORONTO (CP) — She seldom takes a puff but still thinks the aroma of a good Cuban cigar is delicious.

Iris Correnti, 64, has been operating Toronto's only cigar manufacturing business since 1966.

She imports all her tobacco from the Vuelta Abajo district of Cuba, ordering through the Cuban Trade Commission and paying several months in advance.

Her only employee is Louis Rosen, 76, who started making cigars 60 years ago and came to work for the firm in 1971, after he retired.

Mr. Rosen rolls about 50,000 cigars a year and during the Christmas season both he and Mrs. Correnti worked long hours of overtime filling extra orders.

The hand-rolled cigars are sold only in boxes of 25, the cheapest costing $18.50 and the most expensive $40 a box.

Because cigar-making is almost a lost trade Mrs. Correnti said it is hard to find employees.

"No one seems to want to learn."

She is not making efforts to push sales even with the Canadian cigar shortage because she finds it difficult to keep up with the constant demand

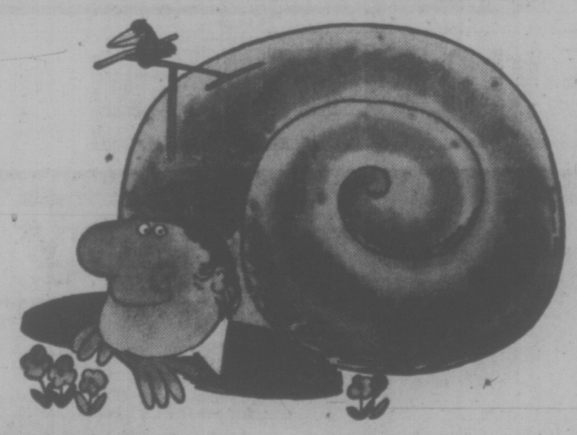
If you pay rent you could qualify for

RentAid

(British Columbia Renters Tax Credit Program)



What is RentAid?

RentAid is a program financed by the Government of British Columbia to help offset high rents, especially for senior citizens and those with low or moderate incomes.

Who can apply?

Basically, anyone aged 16 or over who was paying rent for their principal residence in British Columbia on December 31st, 1975.

As a general guideline, if your taxable income in 1975 was under $10,000 you will probably qualify for RentAid.

How much will RentAid pay?

The maximum benefit is $100.If you were aged 65 or over on or before December 31st, 1975, the minimum amount you can receive is $80. For those under 65, the maximum benefit is $100 less one percent of your taxable income. No benefit can exceed ten percent of the total rent you paid in 1975.

How can I apply?

There's a RentAid Claim Form with the Federal Income Tax Form (T-1) you receive in the mail, or you can collect one from your District Taxation Office or Post Office. You must fill out both a RentAid form and an Income Tax return when you make a claim.

You need a Social Insurance Number for your Income Tax return, Chances are you already have one. But if you don't, pick up an application form from a Canada Post, Canada Manpower, or Unemployment Insurance Commission office. Please apply as soon as possible as it can take from four to six weeks before you get your number.

What if I need more information?

Leaflets are available at most Post Offices, credit unions, banks and trust companies. You can also get information by telephoning "ASK B.C.". Dial "0" and ask the operator for a toll-free call to the Provincial Government's new central information switchboard.

For answers to other tax questions, contact your local Revenue Canada District Taxation Office

Comic Books Big Business

By STEPHEN FOX

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Antman is fuming. Not far away, Loki, god of Evil is about to destroy an entire city and still he waits in his rocket car for the Wasp, his girl-friend.

"I don't know why you have to powder your nose every time we have a mission," Antman snaps as they finally speed away to defeat Loki.

In case you haven't guessed, Antman, Loki and the Wasp are comic book characters, part of a stable belonging to Marcel Comics, the world's largest seller of comic books.

Comic books are big busines. More than 200 million are sold in the United States each year at prices ranging from 25 cents for a single issue to $1.50 for multi-story editions. Comic book conventions attract thousands of collectors each year and first editions of some comics sell for thousands of dollars.

Marvel publisher Stan Lee, whose Spiderman has overtaken Superman as the biggest selling superhero, says the human qualities of his protagonists endear them to readers. Lee, who started in comics in 1939, cites Spiderman as an example.

"People can relate to him because he's so human. Things go wrong. He's fighting a villain and his costume tears. He once was on the Ed Sullivan show and made $1,000 performing, but then realized he couldn't cash the cheque because he didn't have an account in the name of Spiderman and couldn't reveal his true identity."

Lee has written two books chronicling the increasing popularity of comic books, Origins of Marvel Comics and, of course, Son of Origins of Marvel Comics. In them he explains such things as how he came up with the name Thor, God of Thunder.

"It was short, easy to remember, and if you lisped nobody would know."

Lee said the comic book craze began in 1961, when he was turning out such classics as Xom, the Creature Who Swallowed the Earth and Thomgorr, the Anti-Social Alien. Lee created a squad of superheroes called The Fantastic Four and sales skyrocketed.

"The Fantastic Four heralded a new style of costumed superheroes—heroes plagued with the problems that torment us all: money worries, romantic hangups, feelings of inadequacy, jealousy, vanity and fear," said Lee.

Marvel sells more than 75 million comics annually, with the antics of Spiderman, The Fantastic Four and Thor reprinted is 30 languages. Next are D.C. comics, with sales of about 45 million, much of it from Superman, and Archie Comics, purveyors of Archie, Jughead and other perennial adolescents.

Marvel licenses the use of its copyrighted characters to firms making T-shirts, toys, games, puzzles, soap and vitamins. The company is also producing a full-length movie on Spiderman.

Marvel has a permanent staff of about 40 in its New York office but uses scores of free-lancers to turn out its 80 different characters. A single comic book takes about a month to complete, Lee said.

Despite Marvel's success, Lee complains that people don't take comic books as seriously as they should.

"A comic can be a great artistic creation," he said. "The comic book is one of the great unexplored mediums in the world."

Lee says comics can help problem readers because the artwork keeps them interested and aids them in understanding the text.

The 52-year-old publisher also dismisses complaints about violence in comic books.

"Violence is a subjective thing," he said. "Who would want to read about a terrible old lady who takes children and burns them in an oven? But that's the plot of Hansel and Gretel. We turn away from violence in our books."

In fact, Marvel is coming out with its own line of comic book classics, with 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea and The Hunchback of Notre Dame among the first titles.

"One of my many pet peeves has always been the young, teen-aged sidekick of the average superhero," Lee said. "If yours truly was a superhero, there's no way I'd pal around with some freckle-faced teen-ager. At the very least, people would begin to talk."

Dave Made Start Perfect for Bates

LOWER HUTT, N.Z. — You can't be any better than perfect, and that is just what pitcher Dave Ruthowsky of Bates was in Canada's opening game of the world softball championship here Saturday (Friday, Victoria time). He gave away nothing in Bates 10-0 rout of Guam.

Ruthowsky started in fine fashion, striking out the side in the first inning, and ended in the same fashion in the fifth inning, the last.

In all, Ruthowsky struck the first 10 men he faced, and 13 in the game. As a matter of fact only two batters got enough wood on the ball to give Bate fielders any action. After the first 10 Guam batters went down on strikes, there was a fly ball and a ground ball and that was the only threat posed by Guam.

The game ended in five innings because of the Bates' margin of 10.

On the other side of the ledger, the Bate hitters were equally as sharp. They pounded out 15 hits including a grand-slam home run by Bob Burrows in the fourth inning.

Bates' assault began in the first inning when leadoff hitter Reg Underwood opened with a single. He was sacrificed to second by Carl Walker and scored on a single by right fielder Harvey Stevenson.

In the second inning, the game for all intent, was over as Bates erupted for four runs on five hits. Ruthowsky knocked in two with a single, Walker another with a triple and Ken Bate singled in the final tally of the inning.

In the fourth inning, Bates went to work again.

Underwood got a double when his routine fly ball was lost in the sun. Walker singled to score Underwood. Bate then doubled, Walker going to third. With first base open, Stevenson finally was walked, bringing up Burrows.

That was it. Burrows hit a crashing line drive over the left field wall driving in three runners ahead of him.

In an earlier tournament game, delayed by a rain shower, host New Zealand defeated Japan 1-0 in eight innings.

Today Bates were scheduled against the United States and South Africa. The Bates-U.S. game is to be broadcast on CFAX, 1070, at 5 p.m.

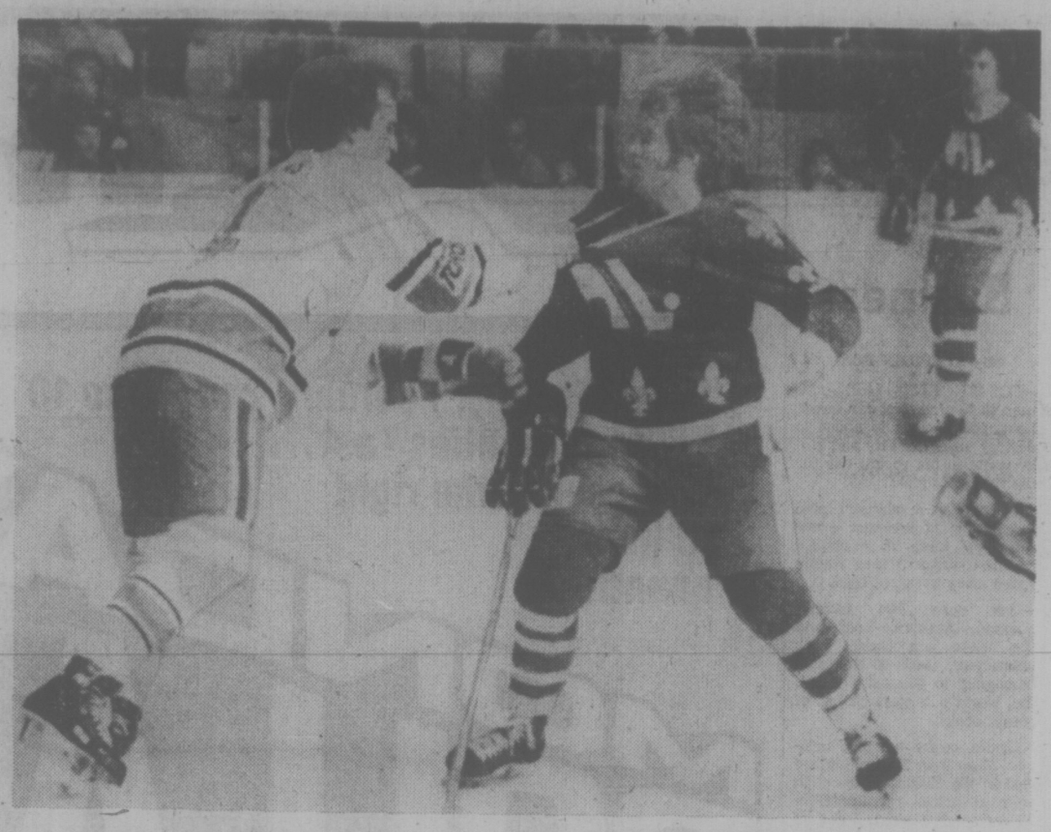
Sunday Bates are to meet Taiwan and Japan. The game against Taiwan at 1 p.m. will be broadcast.

The tournament format calls for a double round robin between the seven competing nations with the semifinals opening next Friday. The first four teams in the tournament will qualify for the final rounds.

Line score follows:

Canada	140	50	—10	15	0
Guam	000	00	— 0	0	1

Ruthowsky and Burrows; Cepeda, Rodriguez and Farfan.



COME HERE tactics are applied by Jerry Rollins (4) of Toronto Toros as he puts grab on Quebec's Dale Hoganson when fight starts in first period of World Hockey Association game Friday in Toronto. Both players wound up with major penalties and Toros went on to finish in 3-3 deadlock.

Bruins Are Weary But Still on Streak

By The Canadian Press

Who needs Bobby Orr or Brad Park or even sleep?

With Orr injured and Park ill and without much sleep, Boston Bruins are leaving Buffalo Sabres in their dust.

The weary Bruins extended a winning streak to five games and their Adams Division lead over the Sabres to seven points when they beat Atlanta Flames 4-2 Friday night.

Orr has played only a handful of games this year because of a pair of knee operations but Park has taken over admirably for him on defence since he was acquired from New York Rangers in the Phil Esposito deal.

For two key nights at least, the Bruins got along without either top defenceman. Flu forced Park to miss Friday's game and Thursday's important 5-3 win over Chicago Black Hawks and was expected to keep him from playing against Atlanta again Sunday.

The hectic NHL schedule also left the Bruins little time for sleep. By the time they beat the Hawks in Boston on Thursday night, flew to Georgia and checked into their Atlanta hotel, it was 4 a.m. EST.

"The game was tough for all the guys," said Boston goalie Gilles Gilbert. "We felt tired but we came on strong.

"I need a little rest now for three or four days. I've played 26 out of the last 28 games and I'm tired. I can't play every day."

Gilbert ran his winning streak to 11 consecutive games. The win was the 13th in 15 starts for the Bruins.

In Friday's other games, Montreal Canadiens edged California Golden Seals 5-4 and Vancouver Canucks defeated Washington Capitals 4-2.

The Flames had won only once in their last nine games and goalie Dan Bouchard, who surrendered the winning goal on a 40-foot slap shot by Gary Doak, thinks it's time they pulled themselves together.

"We had better wake up now because in another week or two it could be too late," he said. "The (New York) Rangers could catch us."

The Flames have a 13-point lead over the Rangers in the battle for the final playoff berth in the Patrick Division.

Gilbert kicked away 29 Atlanta shots and Greg Sheppard scored a goal and drew two assists for the Bruins. John Bucyk and Andre Savard had the other Boston goals.

The Bruins attracted Atlanta's first sellout crowd of the season, 15,241 fans, and the Canadiens attracted a good Oakland crowd of 10,660.

The Canadiens built a 5-1 lead, then barely survived a California comeback that fell a goal short.

Strong goaltending by Washington goalie Bernie Wolfe kept the score respectable at Vancouver as the Capitals were outshot 44-16.

Rookie Rick Blight scored his 17th and 18th goals of the season for the Canucks and Dennis Ververgaert and Gerry O'Flaherty added one each for the Canucks. Gerry Meehan and Tony White scored for Washington.

First Start Success For Rookie Jim Park

By The Canadian Pess

Fresh from a triumphant tour that took him from Smiths Falls, Ont., to Utica, N.Y., Jim Park got his big chance in hockey's major league Friday night.

The youngster came through in fine style, kicking out 37 shots for Indianapolis Racers as they upset Houston Aeros 2-1 in a World Hockey Association game.

Park was promoted from Mohawk Valley Comets of the North American Hockey League only because the Racers' first three goalies were sick or injured.

He made his WHA debut Thursday night, arriving in time to take over for Andy Brown, who had struggled through the first two periods with a bad back.

Also sidelined are Leif Holmquist, who has a hand injury and Michel Dion, who has the flu.

The chance with the Racers is a highlight of a fairly obscure career that has taken Park from Smiths Falls Bears of the Central Junior Hockey League to Jersey Devils of the Eastern League, Richmond Robins of the American League, Des Moines Capitols of the International League and Mohawk Valley.

Against the Aeros, he gave up a first-period goal to Houston's Jan Popeil, then closed the door on the Aeros, making 19 saves in the second period and 13 in the third.

The Racers scored a goal in each of the last two periods, coming up with the winner when Houston goalie Wayne Rutledge tried to freeze the puck behind his own net.

Rutledge fell and Blair MacDonald dug the puck free and passed to Brian McDonald who was alone in front of the net.

In Friday's other WHA games, Winnipeg Jets defeated New England Whalers 6-3, Toronto Toros tied Quebec Nordiques 3-3 and Phoenix Roadrunners tied Cleveland Crusaders 4-4.

Winnipeg's Bobby Hull scored his 32nd and 33rd goals of the season early in the third period as the Jets broke a 3-3 tie and opened a five-point lead over the Nordiques in the Canadian Division standings.

ANOTHER CENTURY FOR AUSSIE BATSMAN

MELBOURNE (Reuter) — Opener Ian Redpath laboured to his third hundred of the series as Australia made 263 for six on the first day of the sixth and final test against West Indies at Melbourne cricket ground today.

With the series already decided — Australia holds an unassailable 4-1 lead — there was a listless quality about the day's play. This was typified by Redpath's hundred in 314 minutes, including three quarters of an hour in the nineties.

He was eventually out for 101 and the cheer that greeted his dismissal was more for the bowler, Lance Gibb, than his drawn-out effort.

With the wicket, off-spinner Gibbs took his total of test victims to 308 — a world record. England fast bowler Freddie Trueman held the old record of 307.

Time for Work Says 'Nice Guy'

By The Associated Press

Chicago Bulls can stop calling Dick Motta a Mr. Nice Guy.

"I don't think I'm going to give my players any more days off," says the Chicago coach.

Motta was understandably distressed Friday night after watching his Bulls drop a 91-89 decision to Cleveland Cavaliers, enhancing Chicago's position as the National Basketball Association's worst team this season.

The hapless Bulls had a shot to tie the game in the last 19 seconds, but blew it. Leon Benbow took a good shot, but missed—and thus Chicago's record dropped to 14-32.

"Even though we've lost several games by two points, I can't get down on our players— but that doesn't mean they won't be working hard the rest of the season," Motta said.

Bobby Smith and Jim Chones came off the bench midway through the fourth quarter and collected six points each to help Cleveland edge Chicago. A layup by Bob Love with 3:36 to go put the Bulls ahead for the last time before four consecutive free throws by Smith and Jim Brewer gave Cleveland a three-point bulge.

In other games, New Orleans Jazz whipped New York Knicks 119-97, Detroit Pistons stopped Kansas City Kings 101-94, Seattle Supersonics trimmed Washington Bullets 123-100 and Portland Trail Blazers downed Los Angeles Lakers 121-113.

Soccer Assault On Linesman Results in Fine

OSHAWA (CP) — A soccer player was fined $200 in provincial court Friday when he appeared on a charge of common assault.

Tudor Silipovski, 27, of Oshawa was fined $200 or 20 days in jail and placed on two years probation for assaulting linesman Ralph Luppe.

Silipovski kicked the linesman in an Oct. 2 game after the official had ruled an opposing player was onside when he scored the game's winning goal. The linesman was not injured.

Clubs Tripped by Chiefs En Route to Victoria

Winnipeg Clubs, who pay their first visit of the season to Victoria Cougars tonight, bobbled a 2-0 advantage in the early going and dropped a 10-3 decision to Kamloops Chiefs in Western Canada Hockey League action Friday night.

In other games, Regina Pats thumped visiting Calgary Centennials 6-3 and Saskatoon Blades whipped host Flin Flon Bombers, 4-2.

Team-captain Darrell Ferner led Chiefs with three goals, Dave Hatheway added two and singles were chipped in by Rob Flockhart, Ryan Walter, Allen Young, Reg Kerr and Larry Lestander.

Rick Dorman, Gord Blumenshein and Kevin McCarthy replied for Winnipeg.

Lestander, who scored two goals against New Westminster Bruins on Wednesday, was involved in an off-ice legal entanglement which came to a head Thursday in Kamloops with the laying of an assault charge against Archie Henderson of Victoria Cougars (see story on page 1).

Leftwinger Greg Ing broke a 12-game scoring drought to lead the Pats with four goals. The win moves Regina out of the Eastern Division cellar, one point ahead of Flin Flon.

Blades were down 2-0 after the first period but came back to pick up the win over Bombers with three goals early in the third period.

In nine games this season, including four at home, the best Flin Flon has managed against Saskatoon is one tie. The victory boosted Saskatoon's Eastern Division lead to nine points over idle Brandon Wheat Kings.

Meanwhile, Cougars have called up centre Gary Lupul, a 16-year-old sensation from Nanaimo Clippers of the B.C. Junior League, for tonight's 8:30 meeting with the Clubs in Memorial Arena.

Lupul proved impressive on his initiation into the tier-one loop during a Victoria game against New Westminster earlier this month when he scored a goal on his first shot.

Reardon Steps In As Clipper Coach

BALTIMORE (AP) — General manager Terry Reardon has taken over as coach of Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League, replacing Kent Douglas, who remains with the club as a defenceman.

New Clubs Fine for Careful Mary

MIAMI (AP) — Mary Mills, playing cautiously with new clubs, shot a three-under-par 69 Friday to take a one-stroke lead over six others after the first round of the $40,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

The group at 70 included amateur Cathy Morse of Rochester, N.Y., who was the first player to tee off on the 5670-yard Kendale Lakes Golf and Country Club layout. Also at 70 was Japan's Takaka Kiyamoto, Kathy Whitworth, Pam Higgins, Kathy Ahern and Kathy Postlewait.

"I lost my golf clubs about five weeks ago and I'm playing with all new clubs," said Miss Mills of Boca Raton, Fla. "They were lost or stolen at an airline during the Christmas rush. I lost a wedge I've hadsince I was 12 years old, a putter I've had eight years."

Stewart In, Block Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Roy Henderson of North Vancouver and Cliff Christianson of Burnaby, emerged as the only undefeated rinks after two rounds in the Pacific Coast Curling Association seniors' final Friday.

Henderson upset defending-champion John MacMillan of Vancouver 5-3 on the opening draw and then defeated Ross Craig of Langley 11-4 on the evening draw.

Christianson edged Jake Block of Abbotsford 6-5 in his first game before trouncing Les Glover of Burnaby 18-5 on the second draw.

MacMillan rebounded from his defeat at the hands of Henderson to edge Block 7-5 on the evening draw and remain in contention.

Eight rinks began play Friday in a modified double-knockout competition to determine the PPCA's representative in the B.C. final here next week against interior champion Jim Kennedy of Prince George.

Block was one of the favorites in the current playoff but was eliminated on Friday's second draw after losing to MacMillan.

In the other second round game, Gordon Stewart of Duncan eliminated George Bayfod of Campbell River, handing him his second loss by a 7-5 score.

Tall Spartans Subdue Bays

North Surrey Spartans built up a 42-26 half time lead and then held off a desperate rally in the dying minutes to defeat Oak Bay Bays 58-56 in an exhibition high school boys' basketball game Friday night at Oak Bay.

Six-foot-ten Charles Olsen fired 24 points and six-foot-eight Bob Dudley added 13 as the Spartans, top-ranked in the province, edged the second-ranked Bays for the second time this season.

In the second half, Bays tightened their defence and closed the gap to within nine points at the start of the fourth quarter. They continued to whittle away the margin and went to a full-court press in the last three minutes but failed to collect the equallizer.

Dave Richmond led Oak Bay with 15 points, one more than the total contributed by clubmate Ken Kirzinger. Charlie Hunter added 13 points.

It was only the third loss this season for Oak Bay, who plays host to Abbotsford Panthers tonight at 8:30. Panthers handed Bays their first loss of the season.

The eighth-ranked Panthers defeated Victoria Totems 76-52 in another exhibition game. Gordon Spann led Panthers with 21 points and Forrest Partington topped Totem marksman with 29 points.

In girls' exhibition games, Victoria Tigers topped Abbotsford 35-26 and Oak Bay tripped North Surrey, 36-19.

TOURNEY RECORD FALLS

Russell Thornton lashed out for 32 points Friday to set a tournament scoring record and give Cedar Hill a 64-50 decision over Central in one of four first-round games in the fourth annual Victoria City Police Athletic Association junior high school boys' basketball tourney at Belmont High School.

The win gave Cedar Hill a berth in the semi-finals of the event along with Oak Bay, Colquitz and Belmont.

Oak Bay advanced with a 60-30 decision over Reynolds, Colquitz moved up with a 43-37 win over Lansdowne and Belmont beat Highrock, 66-28.

Tim Achtzner set the pace for Colquitz with 18 points while Ken Horwood sparked the Belmont win with 22 points.

Colquitz was scheduled to take on Oak Bay and Belmont was to meet Cedar Hill in semi-final games earlier today.

Consolation games are set for 5 and 6:30 p.m. and the final at 8 p.m.

Record Ratified

LONDON (Reuter)—The International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF) said here today it has ratified New Zealander John Walker's world one-mile record.

Walker's time of 3:49.4 set in Gothenburg, Sweden, has been awaiting ratification since last August. There was controversy over whether an illegal pacemaker had been used.

John Holt, IAAF's executive director, told Reuter the 15-member IAAF council decided to ratify the record by a large majority.

Asked whether that meant the council members had decided a pacemaker had not been involved, Holt said:

"I think it is undisputed there was a pacemaker in the race, but Walker's performance was still very valid."

BOWLERS OF THE WEEK

Collecting honors in 15th week of 13th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition are Bev Stokes and Robin May. Opening game of 219 helped Bev earn weekly award in women's tenpin section. She followed with scores of 165 and 198 for 582 series in Dockyard League at Mayfair Lanes. Robin captured contest award for first time as he set pace in men's fivepin division with 321-351-227—899 triple in Friday Classic League at Town and Country Lanes. Competition is open to all bowlers rolling in league play on southern Vancouver Island lanes.

Vikettes Hurdle No. 13; Vikings Snap Loss Streak

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

Mike Gallo indulged in some superstition Friday night while UVic Vikings tried sign language. It worked in both cases.

Gallo, coach of the UVic Vikettes, watched his girls roll to their 13th consecutive win in the Canada West University Athletic Association women's basketball league by trouncing Saskatchewan Huskiettes 73-44 at the McKinnon gym.

The Vikings snapped a five-game losing steak in CWUAA men's action by downing winless Saskatchewan Huskies 61-40 in a lacklustre affair. The win left Vikings alone in second place with an 8-5 record as first-place Calgary Dinosaurs beat UBC Thunderbirds 68-49. That left UBC with a 7-6 mark while Calgary is 12-1.

"I didn't think I was superstitious," Gallo said after Vikettes' convincing victory, "but I guess I am. I found myself thinking all day about the fact that we were going after our 13th win in a row."

So to counteract any ill luck, Gallo wore the same clothes he had on two weeks ago when his girls played their best series of the season in winning twice over Calgary. He was a vision of sartorial elegance in a powder blue sports jacket and co-ordinated dark slacks and turtleneck.

Vikettes, meanwhile, were visions of basketball excellence as all 12 players got on the scoresheet. Lorna McHattie with 13 points, Marg Mainwaring with 12 and Edna Ritchie with 10 led the way as Vikettes shot 45 per cent from the floor and 65 per cent from the foul line. They grabbed 40 rebounds and committed only 13 turnovers.

The sign language involved Jim Duddridge of the Vikings and John Jenner of Saskatchewan. The two played together for Mt. Douglas High School Rams five years ago before Jenner moved to Saskatchewan.

He was welcomed back last night by a large sign saying "We miss you J.J." and signed by Duds, Nertz, Pinky and The Juice.

Duds, it turned out, was Duddridge while Nertz was his girlfriend, Julie Mackereth, Pinky was former Mt. Doug student Mike Reimer and The Juice was Lucy Gutkowski. It was Julie and Lucy who made the sign.

Jenner got four points for the losers.

Vikings played well enough defensively, committing 16 turnovers, grabbing 39 rebounds and generally controlling the ball, but their shooting was off. They managed only 39 per cent from the floor.

Lorne Dakin led the winners with 12 points while Duddridge had 11 and Doug Mosher and Lee Edmondson 10 each. Roger Gaines fired 13 points for Saskatchewan.

In a men's junior varsity game Friday at McKinnon, UVic Jayvees edged Capilano College of Vancouver 65-63, Tom Watson counting 22 points for the winners.

Vikings and Vikettes resume their rivalry with Saskatchewan tonight at the McKinnon Building with the women's game beginning at 6:30 and the men's tipoff at 8:30.

In other Canada West men's action Friday, Alberta Golden Bears shaded Lethbridge Pronghorns 67-64 while in other CWUAA women's games, Alberta Pandas downed Lethbridge 69-45 and Calgary Dinnies dumped UBC Thunderettes 61-58.

SNOOKER KING REIGNS

LONDON (Reuter) — Ray Reardon, Britain's king of snooker, won the Masters tournament Friday with a 7-3 victory over compatriot Graham Miles in the final. Reardon, 43, beat his 34-year-old rival 79-34, 88-11, 63-1, 42-68, 73-18, 61-22, 41-95, 104-17, 11-85, 57-16 in the best-of-13 frames match. Reardon, world champion for the last three years, was at his best with a break of 90 which cleared the table in the eighth frame. He won $4000 and Miles earned $2,000.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

It's Fun for Murphy As Co-Leaders Suffer

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — Bob Murphy is having a great time playing in the $230,000 Hawaiian open golf tournament, but Hale Irwin and John Jacobs, his co-leaders through two rounds aren't having as much fun.

"It's my first tournament of the year and, like I told my wife, I'm really anxious to get out there and play golf," said Murphy. "It's not work. It' fun."

Jacobs shot a 70, two under par on the 7,219-yard Waialae Country Club course, and Murphy and Irwin matched 69s in the gusty, tricky, shifting winds. All three had 36-hole totals of 135, nine under.

Irwin is sniffling and coughing from a heavy cold and is suffering from an unusually erratic driver. Jacobs, yet to win on tour, has intestinal flu.

Lou Graham and three others were at 136 and two more players were at 137, leaving nine players two shots of each other at the top halfway through the chase for a $46,000 first prize.

Graham shot a 69 and was tied with Roger Maltbie, Tommy McGinnis and Al Geiberger.

Bobby Wadkins, with a second-round 70, and Mike Shea, with a 67, were at 137.

First-round leader Rod Curl blew from an opening 64 to a 74 and was tied with Lee Trevino, Tom Watson and six others at 138. Trevino and Watson each had a 69.

Arnold Palmer remained in contention with a 71 that left him four strokes off the pace at 139. Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller are not competing.

George Knudson survived the 36-hole cut by shooting a 73 for a 143 total. Gar Hamilton of Toronto missed by four stroke with a 148 total after shooting a 78 Friday.

Prep Rugby Play To Open Tuesday

Reynolds has returned after an absence of one season, bringing to 10 the total number of teams competing in the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League.

Regular-season play opens Tuesday at 3 p.m. with Oak Bay visiting Belmont, Reynolds going to Mt. Douglas, Spectrum travelling to Claremont, Victoria heading for St. Michael's University School and Esquimalt at Parkland.

The league has been divided into two five-team divisions with each side playing 13 matches.

Each team meets the other teams in its own division twice and teams in the other division once. Only the top two sides from each division advance to the Howard Russell Cup playoffs.

Playing in the East Division are defending-champion St. Michael's, Oak Bay, Belmont, Mt. Douglas and Reynolds.

Victoria, Claremont, Esquimalt, Spectrum and Parkland make up the West Divisison.

Visitors Receive Rough Treatment

Greater Victoria teams dominated the four opening games of the third annual Racquet Club invitational bantam hockey tournament on Friday night.

Saanich Braves mauled Port Alberni 12-0, Racquet Club defeated Powell River 7-1 and Juan de Fuca downed Capilano Winter Club, 5-3.

The only visiting team to win was McPherson Winter Club, which topped Nanaimo, 5-1.

Marty Irvine led the Saanich attack with four goals while Ron Burton and Sean Connors added two each.

Racquet Club was led by two-goal productions from John Langen and Brian Martin.

Mike Adamek fired two goals to set the pace for Juan de Fuca and Randy Vowles played an outstanding game in goal as the Winter Club held a 20-8 edge in shots.

Anthony McMurchy led McPherson with two goals as the Mainland club outgunned Nanaimo, 32-16.

The 10-team tourney is scheduled to continue through until 10 tonight and resume at 6 a.m. Sunday. The final is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

BOB COKE SWIM COACH AT OAK BAY

Bob Coke, former Canadian record-holder in the 200-metre freestyle event and national collegiate champion in 1968, has been appointed coach of the Oak Bay Swim Club.

Appointment of Coke, a 26-year-old Winnipeg native, was announced by club president Norm Dixon.

Other members of the club's executive for 1976 are John Conklin, vice-president; Bill Stewart, treasurer; Hazel Ravehill, secretary, and Stuart Reid, team manager.

Information on a two-week, free tryout period for swimmers in all-age classes can be obtained by calling Dixon (592-6603) or Reid (382-0543).

Richmond Takes Title

Richmond captured top honors with a 13-1 record in the Greater Victoria (District 61) elementary school girls' volleyball tournament which ended Friday at Lansdowne Junior High School.

Victoria West tied for second place with George Jay in the eight-team, round-robin affair while defending-champion Doncaster tied for fourth with Gordon Head. Tillicum and Fairburn were deadlocked in sixth spot. Blanshard ended up eighth.

Mt. Douglas 'A' Team Shares Shuttle Lead

Defending-champion Mt. Douglas "A" topped Spectrum 18-2 Friday to take over a share of first place in the Greater Victoria High School Badminton League.

Mt. Douglas "A" won by a 10-2 count in boys' singles and doubles and took the eight girls' points by default.

Victory moved Mt. Doug "A" into a tie for the lead with the combined independent schools squad of St. Michael's University School and Norfolk House.

Victoria downed Parkland 15-5 in the only other contest.

Tests Show Lower Fraser 'Unfit'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A report by the Westwater Research Centre says that much of the Lower Fraser river is unfit for drinking, swimming, boating or irrigation because of high bacterial levels.

Findings of the three-year study, show concentrations of trace metals are approaching the "threshold of harm" for aquatic organisms in the lower Fraser.

The Fraser, however, is not afflicted with oxygen depletion, excessie amounts of nutrients or pullution from chlorinated hydrocarbons because of the river's huge flow volume, the report says.

Ken Hall, asssistant director responsible for scientific research as Westwater, said that sampling of coliform bacteria, used as indicators of the presence of dangerous organisms like salmonella, indicated that the water at Hope was "marginally drinkable," but by the time the river reached Mission it was unfit even for swimming.

At the Pattullo Bridge in New Westminster, the bacteria count had rison so that the water was not safe for any use:

Improvement further downstream was sufficient so that Annacis Island and Garry Point are listed as "marginally acceptable for non-contact recreation and irrigation," but the counts shot up again below the Queensboro Bridge to the "no use" level.

At Fraser Street here, the level was more than 10 times the maximum level for irrigation and boating.

No Fraser Valley communitie take drinking water from the Fraser, while Richmond used water from Horseshoe slough for irrigation.

The average combined level of the trace metals copper, lead and zinc was near an accepted threshold of harm for aquatic organism at most stations, although no station exceeded that level, Hall said.

Hall said scientists could detect no increase in nutrient concentrations below Hope that could be attributed to man's activities

B.C. Hydro Must Pay $36 Million

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court ruled Friday that B.C. Hydro must pay $36.1 million in damages to contractors despite an appeal against the judgment.

Mr. Justice James Macdonald, who awarded the damages in November, 1975, said the contractors can have the award on the condition they pay it back if Hydro's appeal is successful.

The contractors were those who had built the Peace River power project in the 1960s under contract from Hydro.

Hydro has filed an appeal against the judgment won by Morrison-Knudsen Co. Inc., Northern Construction Co. and J. W. Stewart Ltd., Morrison-Knudsen Co. of Canada Ltd., Perini Pacific Ltd. and J. A. Jones Construction Co. (Canada) Ltd.

Hydro had applied for a stay of execution of the judgment pending the appeal, but Mr. Justice Macdonald ruled the money must be paid.

He said that an implication of the judgment of the court was that for some years the defendant had made use of the $36,124,000 found owing to the contractor and had the benefit also of revenues from the sale of electric power from the completed power house.

The judge said that the work was performed in 1966 and 1967, and that through the same time period the plaintiffs have been deprived of the use of the money.

Mr. Justice Macdonald said that after an appeal to the B.C. Court of Appeal and, possibly, to the Supreme Court of Canada, his judgment maybe set aside and the case remitted to him to continue trial of the plaintiffs' specific claims and the defendant's counterclaim.

RARE PAY SNAG AT CARE CENTRE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pooh Corner Day Care Centre workers have asked the British Columbia Labor Relations Board to appoint a special officer to investigate an unusual salary complaint.

The workers, members of the Service, Office and Retail Workers Union of Canada, negotiated a first contract last November providing them with a base rate of $959 a month.

More than two months later, they are still working under their previous rate of between $600 and $700 a month.

The employees, however, are not mad at their employers. The problem is that the day care centre simply can't afford the new wages.

A union spokesman said Pooh Corner agreed to the new contract because the previous New Democratic Party government had indicated per-child subsidies to day care centres were about to go up.

Bill Vander Zalm, the new human resources minister, has told the day care there will be no extra money coming from the government, the spokesman said.

The union doesn't want to prosecute the centre for reneging on a collective agreement because the individual parent-operators of the centre would be stuck with the bill.

In addition to applying to the labor relations board, the union has called upon Vander Zalm to ensure that the society which runs the Stanley Park centre has the necessary funds to abide by the union's contract.

UBCM Wants More $

RICHMOND (CP) — British Columbia municipalities must get $45 million more from the provincial government in 1976 than they got last year just to maintain the status quo on services, Muni Evers, president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, said Friday.

The UBCM executive concluded a two-day meeting last Friday.

Evers, mayor of New Westminster, said requests for $141 million, compared with $96 million provided by Victoria in 1975, are contained in a letter going to Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis.

Curtis has promised the municipalities would get "no less' than in 1975.

Evers said that because of inflation and the deferral of necessary items, the municipalities need $45 million more to stay even.

The UBCM is making no suggestions on how the money should be distributed and will be willing to accept the extra funds through a share of the natural gas revenues, per capita grants and other provincial grants, he said.

The UBCM is pointing to 1977 for a start of significant sharing of provincial revenues, the UBCM president said.

Curtis said a new formula for revenue sharing with municipalities may be introduced in time for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

Casino Deal Denied

VANCOUVER (CP) — A nightclub owner says he held meetings for more than a year with an intermediary who said he represented British Columbia's former New Democratic Party government in a proposal to set up a gambling casino as a pilot project. Danny Baceda said Thursday the intermediary told him he represented then premier Dave Barrett and attorney-general Alex Macdonald in a proposed experiment to use Baceda's club as a casino. Macdonald said Friday it is not true there were such negotiations on his behalf.

'Guilty' of Murder

Vancouver (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court jury Friday found Frederick Lorne Downey, 25, of Calgary guilty of murder punishable by life imprisonment in the beating death of Peter Hall Nov. 18, 1973, in a lane outside a Canadian Legion hall in the city's East End. Downey will be sentenced Feb. 11 by Mr. Justice D. E. Andrews.

Flooding Opposed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Institute of Agrologists says further flooding of the Peace River Valley would have an adverse effect on agriculture in the province. In a brief to the provincial government, the institute says any flooding of the valley would remove permanently from agriculture virtually all the land in Northern B.C. capable of producing root and vegetable crops. The brief specifically protests proposed B.C. Hydro dams near Taylor and Clayhurst on the B.C.-Alberta border.

Hotel Owners 'Guilty'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The lives of three persons would have been saved if owners of a city hotel had installed a sprinkler system required by city bylaws, Judge G. B. Ladner said Friday in County Court. He made his finding in ruling that St. Lawrence Investments Ltd., and Vanagas Holdings Ltd., were guilty under the Criminal Code of Canada of unlawfully "causing" a fire by violating Vancouver City Fire Bylaw 2193. The judge said he will sentence the two firms Feb. 20.

Kamloops Smelter Plans Proceed

The Social Credit government will not interfere with an arrangement worked out between Teck Corv. of Vancouver and the previous New Democratic Party government for construction of a copper smelter near Kamloops, Mines Minister Tom Waterland said Friday.

Waterland said the smelter project, to be built eight miles southwest of Kamloops, will go ahead as planned with only a change in some of the details due to the governmnt's new mining policies.

He said in an interview the previous government agreed to give the company two cents per pound for each pound of copper smelted and allow an abatement of one cent a pound on the royalties charged.

But since the Social Credit government will be removing the royalties, a new formula will have to be worked out, the minister said.

Waterland said he told Teck Corp. that when the government changes the royalties legislation, the company will be no better but no worse off than it was under the arrangement worked out with the NDP.

Teck Corp. has already made financial commitments of $80 million based on the arrangement, he added.

The Kamloops smelter will be located at the Afton Mines Ltd. property and employ 450 during the construction period, It eventually will have a permanent payroll of 350 employees.

OFFICER WINS

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police constable David Singh was acquitted Friday in British Columbia Court of Appeal on a charge of perjury found against him last May 21, by provincial court judge Lawrence Goulet.

Const. Singh, 30, was sentenced to six months by Judge Goulet after he found him guilty of giving perjured evidence in a provincial court trial.

The officer was charged with perjury after he was asked during the trial "did you hit him" and answered "no, I did not".

It was argued for Singh that the provincial court judge erred in finding that Singh knowingly gave false evidence with the intention of misleading the court.

It was also claimed for him that Judge Goulet did not give sufficient weight to testimony of three city police officers who gave evidence for Singh at the perjury trial.

The appeal court — consisting of Mr. Justice H. A. Maclean, Mr. Justice A. E. Branca and Mr. Justice A. B. Carrothers — acquitted Singh after reviewing the evidence at the perjury trial and after hearing submissions by lawyers for Singh and for the crown.

Surgery Changes Prisoner's Sex

VANCOUVER (CP) — The final procedure to change the sex of a prisoner of the Canadian Penitentiary Service took place at a British Columbia lower mainland hospital Friday, said Javc Stewart, regional administrator for public affairs of the CPS.

Prisoner Leigh-Ann Phillips, 24, underwent the first two stages of the operation, including castration, several years ago and a name change to Leigh-Ann from Gary Frederick Phillips also occurred prior to incarceration.

Stewart said the operation was undertaken in accordance with CPS guidelines which specify medical sevices be provided to attain and maintain the physical and mental well-being essential to each prisoner.

Phillips began serving a three-year term for drug trafficking July 16, 1975, at the B.C. Penitentiay and was transferred to Matsqui, a medium security institution in the Fraser Valley, Oct. 4.

Stewart said that Phillips, due for release June 30, 1977, would be transferred to an institution for female offendes following post-operative recovery.

He said the only federal penitentiary for women is at Kingston, Ont., but arrangements might be made to transfer the prisoner to a provincial institution.

The penitentiary service refused to give Phillips home town, or to name the hospital where the operation was performed.

Prescription from a Big Pusher

CINCINNATI — The conviction of a Memphis, Tenn., doctor who wrote nearly 29,000 prescriptions for amphetamines and amphetamine-type drugs in 22 months has been upheld by a federal appeals court.

The U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals said Dr. Howard Ellzey "distributed like a pusher."

Ellzey has been sentenced to three years in prison and fined $18,000.

"About one-half of Dr. Ellzey's patients were 'diet patients,'" the court said. "They would come into his office, would be given a vitamin B-12 injection by the doctor or an assistant, and would be given an amphetamine prescription, usually preludin.

"Diet patients paid $15 cash for these visits, which usually required from 30 seconds to five minutes with the doctor. . . . the usual greeting by Dr. Ellzey was, 'what do you want?' he would then write the prescription for the drug named by the patient.

"Dr. Ellzey's practice attracted the attention of people interested in purchasing amphetamines for resale. They would recruit a carload of overweight men at the employment office, and would pay them to visit Dr. Ellzey's office and obtain prescriptions for amphetamines.

"These carloads would go to one office of the doctor in the morning, and then the same people were taken to his other office in the afternoon."

Declared the court, "the prescriptions written by Dr. Ellzey were illegal prescriptions."

"He did not observe generally accepted medical practices, but distributed like a 'pusher.'

A Little Election Hocus Pocus

NAIROBI — A witch-doctor frightened voters in Kenya's 1974 elections by shining a mirror into their eyes and saying their children would be burned by the sun unless they voted for a certain candidate, the Kenya High Court was told Friday. The court was taking evidence from the agent of unsuccessful candidate Nteere Mbogori who asked the court to declare invalid the election of Lands and Settlement Minister Jackson Angaine.

TORONTO — The Canadian Opera Company, in a cost-cutting move, says it will eliminate singer Jan Rubes's job as head of the touring troupe.

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. — Broadcaster Gordon Sinclair is honorary chairman of the Canada Games for the Physically Disabled to be held here June 20-27. The event will mark the first time that blind persons, amputees and persons confined to wheel chairs compete in the same set of Games.

DETROIT — The lawyer for four members of the New Jersey Teamsters union questioned in the disappearance of James Hoffa filed a $4-million libel suit Friday against Hoffa's son and federal prosecutors. William Bufalino, who brought the suit in Wayne County Circuit Court, accused young Hoffa and the prosecutors of defamation of character, libel, slander and conspiracy to defame. He acted on behalf of himself and nine unnamed plaintiffs.

On way to rehearsal, concerto performers are, left to right, Jackie Spring, May-Ling Kwok, conductor George Corwin, Sandra Pumphrey and Rolf Gilstein.

A Unique Experience at UVic

Something unique in the story of the young and thriving music department of the University of Victoria, is an event which will take place next Friday at the MacLaurin building auditorium.

This is a special concerto concert presenting four fourth-year Bachelor of Music students whom George Corwin, a senior member of the music faculty, describes as "young professionals."

They will be backed by the University Chamber Orchestra conducted by Corwin.

The students are Sandra Pumfrey, oboe; Jacqueline Spring, French horn; Rolf Gilstein, cello, and May-Ling Kwok, piano. The concertos they will perform are, respectively, Handel's No. 3 in G minor for oboe, strings and continuo; Haydn's horn concerto No. 2 in D Major; Tchaikovsky, Variations on a Rococo Theme for cello and orchestra, and Beethoven's piano concerto No. 4.

All four soloists have had considerable concert stage experience, were winners in the provincial music festival and as a result were sent to Toronto to compete at the national level.

Owing to the interesting and brilliant nature of the concert it is anticiated that it will result in a sell-out. Those wishing to attend should purchase their tickets early through the music department office, Room 163, MacLaurin Building. Enquiries can be made by phone, 477-6911, local 361.

Starting time for the concert is 8 p.m.

SUSPECT 'KILLER RING'

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — Tanzanian police have arrested 91 suspected contract killers, believed to be operating a murder ring in the northwestern part of the country, the government said today. A government statement said "gangs of criminals" did the killings "for the sake of getting rich and earning quick money.".

8 Drawn For West Lottery Final

WINNIPEG — Clarence Weatherhead of Burdett, Alta., a father of eight, was one of eight lucky ticketholders eligible to win $250,000 in the final draw of the Western Canada Lottery at Edmonton Feb. 11.

The Weatherhead ticket, No. 1486742, was picked at the lottery's preliminary draw Friday night.

Weatherhead, who with his wife Ethel has just celebrated his 40th wedding anniversary, also has 12 grandchildren.

Asked what the family plans to do with the money they will win, Mrs. Weatherhead said, "we'll see how much we win and then decide what to do with the money. We have a large family, and plan to spread it around to the members who need it most."

The eight go into the final draw at Edmonton Feb. 11, to be broadcast on the CTV network. At that time, in addition to the $250,000 winner, there will be a prize of $100,000, one of $50,000, and five of $25,000.

Also drawn at Edmonton will be 21 additional numbers including another $250,000 grand prize, three of $25,000, seven of $10,000 and 10 of $1,000.

The last four numbers drawn at Edmonton also will be the basis of additional prizes of $5,000 or $100, the total prize pot depending on the number of tickets sold.

2 Experimental Plays for City

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Two new plays will be brought to Victoria by the experimental arm of Vancouver's professional Playhouse Theatre Centre, the New Company.

The plays will occupy Open Space's theatre arena at 510 Fort, starting Tuesday with Vancouver playwright Sharon Pollock's much discussed documentary dramatization, The Komagata Maru Incident.

In 1914 the Komagata Maru, a Japanese freighter, arrived in Vancouver harbor carrying 376 East Indian immigrants. Due to a technical loophole in the law the passegers were not allowed to disembark and were forced to live aboard in wretched conditions for two months.

Fear and racial hatred flared among the white population of the city while resentment spread and swelled in the Sikh community.

The tensions climaxed in the murder of the senior East Indian interpreter for the Immigration Department.

Komagata Maru Incident will be performed at Open Space Tuesday through Friday at 8 p.m.

Kennedy's Children is the title of the second play which will be seen from Feb. 10 through 13.

It has been a major success of New York and London seasons and was extremely well received when the New Company presented it in Vancouver last October.

Robert Patrick's play is a critical examination of the decade of the sixties. It takes place in a sleazy New York bar and takes the form of alternating monologues spoken by five diverse characters — survivors of the various social pneumonia of the sixties: a Kennedy idolizer, a Marilyn Monroe fan, a Vietnam veteran, a student activist and an underground actor.

Smarter Brother ...Dumber Film

A Movie Review
by
Nora Hutchison

About three-quarters of the way through Gene Wilder's film — The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes' Smarter Brother — Albert Finney, in a cameo appearance, turns to the audience and demands "is this rotten or wonderfully brave?"

Apparently, he's asking our opinion of a comic opera, staged for the benefit of the film's characters, but it's all you can do not to reply loudly, "it's rotten, Albert, the whole movie is rotten."

It's a pity too, because Holmes' Smarter Brother could have been a nutty, zippy movie. It certainly has all the elements for a high parody of the period-piece mystery genre: a looney hero named Sigerson Holmes who is insanely jealous of his older brother Sherlock; a plucky little sidekick known as Orville Stanley Sacker, who has a "photographic sense of hearing;" a luscious music hall singer and mystery woman who lets us know that she's the heroine by introducing herself coyly as Jenny Hill — "I'm simultaneously funny and sad," she says, batting her lashes; a couple of wonderfully evil villains — Dr. Moriarity and his cohort, a pudgy Italian opera star called Gambetti; a missing state secret from Queen Victoria's files; and plenty of thick "peasoup" fog.

But Wilder has written a script with a mystery that doesn't jell, and with a plot so incoherent that you can barely figure out how the characters get from A to B, much less unravel the clues that led them there.

If there ever was a story line, Wilder must have forgotten about it when he began to create the comic bits and pieces. The movie looks like a collection of unrelated gags, thought up over a series of boozy, gregarious lunches with his cast. Funny, yes, but there's no connection between these set pieces and the mystery Sigerson's trying to solve.

What I don't understand is how Wilder let so many comic possibilities slip through his fingers. He's a natural clown with an inspired sense of nonsense, and yet he missed the opportunity to develop the film's central theme — the rift between the two brothers. Certainly the contrast in styles between Sherlock's impeccable manner of detection and Sigerson's method of lucky guesses is loaded with comic potential. But the character of Sigerson lacks definition — whether he is really smart or just dumb and lucky is never made clear, and it's evident that Wilder-as-actor or Wilder-as-writer didn't have the time to sort it out because Wilder-as-director was too busy behind the camera.

ROLLING STONE

A Classic Punk Rocker Makes It Big

By JOHN GRISSIM

LOS ANGELES — Before the afternoon sound-check at the Forum, Ronnie Montrose was sitting cross-legged on the dressing room floor using a soldering iron to rewire the circuitry of a guitar. Pale and unshaven, wearing denim pants and a faded khaki shirt, he looked tired but reasonably healthy for a 28-year-old veteran rocker near the end of a 2½-month, 51-date tour.

The near sell-out concert this winter night featured three heavy-metal, power rock groups; Montrose was second to Aeromith on a bill to be opened by Mott.

"Right about now it really gets gruelling," Ronnie said after finishing his repairs. "The gigs have been good but after two months into the tour the thrill of rock and roll is absolutely gone. The only time it's good is on those magic nights when everyone's playing good together."

Ronnie continued talking while changing the strings on a '58 Gibson Sunburst, conversing eclectically, mentioning how much he hates the term "crotch rock." He plugged the guitar into a practice amp, and ran through some lovely rock-tinged blues, easily interweaving both rhythm and lead lines. He held the guitar very still, his lean fingers fretting with surgical efficiency.

Moments later he took the guitar on stage for the sound-check.

The remaining four members of Montrose — keyboard player Jim Alcivar, drummer Denny Carmassi, singer Bob James and bassist Alan (Fitz) Fitzgerald — were also on hand. Collectively they were young, clear-eyed, slim-hipped and unpretentious — except for Fitzgerald whose private eyes, close-cut bard, receding hairline and black turtleneck sweater gave him the look of an angst-ridden Beat poet.

Ronnie played the same riffs through a huge PA, sending massive waves of sound echoing at immense volume throughout the 19,000-seat arena. Now the blue lines hovered on the threshold of white noise. Here was the core problem with Montrose's execution. I anticipated a concert without music.

Ronnie Montrose would be just another heavy-metal rocker were it not for his obvious excellence as a musician and his impressive credits as a former sideman with some of the best artists in rock.

Back in his sixth-floor hotel room he sipped clam chowder and rattled off his life story: tales of being raised in San Francisco, running away to Colorado at 16, turning delinquent, spending time in juvenile jails and reform schools for various misdeeds — "The usual stuff, burglary, car theft and bad-cheque cashing" — then discovering a natural talent for guitar. A classic punk rocker.

"I migrated between Denver and San Francisco for a long time, playing in small bands. Then I got married (he's since divorced), had a kid and for a while did carpentry, odd jobs 'cuz I couldn't find a paying gig. In fact, when I first met Bill (Graham, his manager), I was helping remodel his offices. Eventually Bill's partner, David Rubinson, heard me play and began using me on a lot of sessions.

"Then in '71, when David heard Van Morrison was looking for a guitarist, he told me to go try."

Ronnie joined Morrison's band for a '71 U.S. tour, and followed it with another tour the same year backing Boz Scaggs. Then in early '72 he flew to New York, auditioned for Edgar Winter, was hired on the spot, and immediately found himself on the road again.

"I couldn't believe it. Edgar's group was the type of music I'd always wanted to play, but I was inexperienced. It was like being thrown into the gladiator pit — all those giant crowds waiting to hear guitar, and there I was never having played a solo. So in the space of a week I went from a mild little one-bedroom house in the San Francisco suburbs to playing huge arenas. Those first few nights were an incredible rush. I was in heaven."

After 18 months with Edgar Winter, Montrose left the group amicably, having tired of being a lead guitarist playing second fiddle. Signing with Warner Bros. in '73, he recorded the first of three albums in three years. There were a series of management and personnel changes. Eventually he stabilized the line-up and found a manager in his friend Bill Graham, who handles only one other act, Santana. All that remains now is to stabilize the Montrose image.

DAVID

A Wide Range Of Study

At the age of 18, violinist David Sabey has had international experience as a student, having studied on two continents as well as in England.

Born in Sheffield, England, he was a pupil of Frederick Griuke at the Royal Academy of Music in London, attended the Institute for Advanced Musical Studies and was a student of Zino Francescatti.

David also studied with Ayla Erduran of the Geneva Conservatory, Charles Castleman of the New York String Trio, and Andre Gertler of the Brussels Conservatory.

He came to Victoria 18 months ago to study with Harry Cawood at the Conservatory of Music and has now become a student of Sydney Humphreys.

Teaming up with pianist Robert Holliston he has given recitals in Victoria and on television and the two young artists are planning a concert tour of England in the near future.

A member of Victoria Symphony Orchestra, David was top prize winner in the Musical Art Society's scholarship competition and a scholarship winner in the Victoria Music Festival of 1975 which he will be entering again this year.

"An incredibly literate, astute, lovely-to-look-at, charming and chilling movie that is guaranteed to open both your eyes and mouth in shocked disbelief. I want to warn that this film isn't for the faint-hearted, nor those given to blushing. A sparkler you won't forget for a long time." —Liz Smith, Cosmopolitan

"The perceptive eye that first brought Brigitte Bardot to screen fame, whose first three marriages were Bardot to Stroyberg to Fonda, has lost none of its skill. Roger Vadim has found Sirpa Lane, and she is really something to contemplate, whether dressed, or undressed, close-up or from afar." —Archer Winsten, N.Y. Post

'As long as this land shall last'

An Oblate priest from the Northwest Territories will give a talk on Indian land claims at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in Newcombe Auditorium.

Father Rene Fumoleau of Yellowknife will make other appearances in the area as well.

He has lived with the Indian people of the Mackenzie Valley for more than a quarter of a century. He speaks their language and is the author of a book on Treaties Eight and Eleven between the Canadian government and the Indian people.

These treaties have been in the news in connection with controversy over the Mackenzie pipeline.

Fumoleau delved into church and government sources to get the picture of negotiations for the treaties beginning in 1870 and their aftermath up to 1939.

The title of his book — As Long as This Land Shall Last — is taken from the promise made to the Indians that they could live and hunt in the Mackenzie Valley "as long as the sun rises, as long as the river flows and as long as this land shall last."

There is no charge for the talk in Newcombe Auditorium Sunday afternoon. It is sponsored by an inter-church project on northern development. Fumoleau will give a 45-minute slide show as part of the program.

He will repeat the show and talk at the Student Union Building, University of Victoria, at 12:30 p.m. Monday.

At 9:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday he will preach at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church.

Citizenship court

Bibles going strong

Frank Martens, the man who for many years was colporteur with the Canadian Bible Society in British Columbia, is still presenting Bibles to new citizens as they receive their papers at citizenship court in Victoria.

Now retired from the Bible society, he is engaged in an outreach and education ministry at Emmanuel Baptist Church.

Last year he gave about 480 Bibles to new citizens.

"There has been a steady demand for Bibles at the citizenship court here," he said recently, "even during the summer. Many new citizens express their thanks at the time of presentation."

He told the story of a boy of 14 who eagerly watched every detail of the procedure in court, concluding with the signing of certificates and cards.

"Then he moved ahead of his parents to my desk," Martens said, "reached out his hand with a dead earnestness that touched my heart, to clasp the Bible I handed him. The man ahead of him argued that he would not take a Bible since he didn't believe in it.

"The boy explained that he had now become a citizen of Canada, through his parents, and wanted all the rights and privileges as a faithful citizen. He clutched the Bible to his heart as he thanked me for it."

Since these presentations began in 1955, more than 470,000 new citizens have received a Bible or Testament from the Canadian Bible Society in citizenship courts in Canda.

The word colporteur comes from the Latin words for neck (collum) and the verb carry (potare), and presumably refers to the carrying of books in bags or pouches whose straps were worn round the neck. The word was used for bookhawkers but came to refer specifically to those distributing Bibles for societies.

De Roo to speak to United Church

Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo of Victoria will be guest speaker at the 11 a.m. service Feb. 8 marking the 117th anniversary of Metropolitan United Church.

A congregational supper will be held at 5 p.m. the same day, and will be followed by an evening of historical review and future planning.

"We have some exciting plans for the future and for our participation in the life of Victoria," Rev. Dr. A. E. King, the church's pastor, said this week. "We will discuss them that evening."

One of the plans is the publication of a history of the church.

PERSPECTIVES and PREJUDICES

Earnest prayer way of making God a reality

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

Sometimes when we pray — when we do pray, that is — we have almost the emotional posture of a dog begging for a bone. But prayer, as prayer is under stood in the Judaeo-Christian heritage, is not a method for getting God to serve our selfish purposes, for badgering God into changing circumstances on our behalf, for asking God to manipulate other persons for our advantage. Prayer is essentially a way of learning God's will for us and of being directed and energized to serve His purposes for us.

Soren Kierkegaard, the great Danish Christian thinker of the 19th century, put it very simply: "Prayer does not change God, but it changes the one who offers it."

Part of our difficulty comes from our need to use words when we pray. We use words in prayer not because God needs them but because we need them. When we pray we are not telling God anything he does not already know. In prayer we use words to direct our thoughts, to fix our attention, to open our minds, so God can make Himself real to us and make known His will for us.

Often when we pray we have serious reservations — even though we do not care to acknowledge them. (We are not generally as candid as St. Augustine was when, in his young manhood, he prayed, "Give me chastity, O God — but not yet.")

When we pray we must be sure that we really wish to be guided by God. Martin Luther said that the first law of prayer is this: "Don't lie to God." He was not suggesting that we can fool God in our prayers, but he was saying that if we lie to God we will be fooling ourselves and making our payers of no real effect. An old-time evangelist used to put it in this way: "Many a fellow is praying for rain with his tub the wrong way up!"

Real prayer, effective prayer, is never easy. Prayer is difficult, taking time and effort. You may say — as some people say — that you cannot pray because God is not real to you. That is quite understandable. But it is often a putting of the cart before the horse. It is a basic reality of the life of faith that God does not make Himself known to the person who never prays. God always respects the freedom with which He has endowed us. He simply stands at the door and knocks, but He never uses a battering-ram or tries to pick the lock. It is for you to open the door by prayer.

If you sit around waiting for God to make Himself real to you before you pray you'll never pray. It is one of the paradoxes of faith that even though God may not seem very real to you you must pray to Him. It is from your hesitant, stumbling beginnings in prayer that you learn to pray — and as you learn to pay God becomes increasingly real to you. The only demonstration of the effectiveness of prayer is in prayer itself.

Truth centre plans lectures on Unity

A series of talks on the beliefs and work of the Victoria Truth Centre will be given at 8 p.m. Wednesday and on two subsequent Wednesday evenings, Feb. 18 and 25.

Subjects covered will pertain to Unity, a Christian movement dating from the turn of the century, with which the centre is associated. Headquarters of the movement are in Unity Village, Missouri.

Followers believe that the source of life is within each of us and that the realization of this will lead to a healthier and more fulfilled life.

The centre holds healing meetings at 2 p.m. each Tuesday.

The minister, Dr. Emma Smiley, in inviting the public to participate, says "Join with us on Tuesdays at 2 p.m. so that we may go forward together in the realization that, through prayer, we may find our way to the Kingdom of God where all things necessary to our complete unfoldment already exist."

The Senior Young People's Society has changed its meeting time to 7:30 p.m. Sundays in the Church of the Golden Key at the centre. Young people 16 and over are welcome.

The monthly prosperity meeting will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday.

Film shows way back to God

A film depicting the change from a life of disillusionment in drugs, violent protest and witchcraft to a hopeful new beginning will be shown at 8:30 p.m. Sunday in Victoria Gospel Chapel, 935 Pandora.

The film, in color, is titled Isn't It Good to Know? and includes brief appearances by Billy Graham. The free showing is open to the public.

Bronx bishop has double life

Mechanic made hierarchy quickly

By JOHN F. BURNS

NEW YORK (NYT) — To the man who answers his home telephone, he's the Most Rev. Anthony Bishop of New York and pastor of the Eastern Orthodox Monastery of St. Andrew in the Baychester section of the Bronx.

But to the men who oil, grease and tune the wrecking trucks, snowblowers and cinder-spreaders in the automotive shop of the Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority, he's Bill Prazsky, assistant supervisor.

William Anthony Prazsky, a gnome-like figure who looks more like a character out of Snow White than a bishop or an auto mechanic, is in truth a man who leads two lives.

Five days a week, he rolls up the sleeves of his grey mechanic's uniform and pitches in to keep the authority's vehicles on the road.

Sundays, he dons a gold-thread mitre and surplice and ministers to his flock in the small brick church he built himself at 2213 Hunter, beside three bungalows that serve as rectory, convent and parish hall.

"You'd never think he was a bishop, the way he is on the job," said Joe Puccio, a clerk at the workshop on Randalls Island, "He doesn't preach at you. He jokes and kids around, and doesn't mind getting his hands dirty."

The bishop, who is 60, started with the authority as a garage helper in 1945. He was born in Manhattan, son of an immigrant millwright from Czechoslovakia, and got his first job during the Depression, loading 600-pound bales of rayon onto trucks for $12 a week.

Bishop Prazsky in vestments

Because, he said, "the Lord was always good to me," he started night classes for the Eastern Orthodox ministry in 1965. He was ordained three years later, and in what must be something of a record in ecclesiastical promotions, almost immediately was consecrated bishop by the new Slavonic Orthodox Catholic Archdiocese of the United States.

The archdiocese, headed by his son, whom he refers to as Archbishop Andrew, is a breakaway institution founded by Czechoslovak-Americans in protest against the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968.

Father Raphael, a sometime college professor who describes himself as Bishop Anthony's secretary, says the church has a congregation of about 500 families in New York and perhaps 1,000 more in six other American cities.

When not greasing trucks, the bishop devotes himself entirely to his parishioners, donating his $20,000 salary to the church and living on a meagre stipend. He separated from his wife, Petronella, 65, because the church requires celibacy, and installed her, with his 85-year-old mother, in the convent beside his rectory.

Cordova Bay church maps faith journey

Journey in Faith is the title of a series of 11 sessions at St. David-by-the-Sea fellowship hall, 5184 Cordova Bay Road, starting at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Rector of St. David's, Rev. Gordon Walker, who is leading the meetings, terms the journey "a friendly gathering of interested people in the informal atmosphere of a club room to consider questions we face in daily life."

Similar "journeys" have been held at the church over the past 15 years.

They have proved helpful, Walker said, not only for teachers, leaders and church workers but also for seekers after the truth, especially those troubled with honest doubt. High school and university students as well as parents, young and old, may profit from the sessions, he said.

This Sunday evening will be taken up with an introduction to the course and with consideration of such questions as: What is Man? Why does he do what he does?

It will be followed by a social time to enable participants to meet and discuss the program.

"Come along and find out for yourself what it's about and, if it appeals to you, then register for the whole journey," Walker said. Registration for the 11 90-minute sessions is $1.

"Come dressed informally and bring a friend or neighbor," the rector said.

Subjects for subsequent meetings are: What's our trouble?, a look at our deepest problems: Who can help?, looking at the help Christianity has found; Where can we find help?, discovering Christ; How does help come? the way love and healing are communicated; How can I renew my life?, channels of grace; How can I be me?, the nature of personal encounter with God; Who is THE helper? recognizing the God who acts; How do we decide?, discovering the Lord in daily life; What is my destiny?, exploring the nature of death, judgment, heaven and hell; How does it show?, identifying the Christian's expression of his life.

Gay males receive some papal leeway

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican daily Osservatore Romano has expanded on a papal document dealing with homosexuality, saying such acts may on occasion not be sinful because of the psychological and physical factors of the participants.

It urged churchmen Thursday to adapt general rules to individual cases.

A Vatican document released two weeks ago reasserted that homosexuality and other sex acts outside marriage are sinful in principle.

But Osservatore said homosexuals were suffering from "discrimination which is unjust except for some reservations— unjust because homosexuals often have a richer personality than those who discriminate against them." The newspaper did not elaborate.

Osservatore said the Vatican document of two weeks ago "was aimed not at men— and in particular young people — who experience drama and tension in their sexuality, but at the theories that reduce sexuality to mere playing, limitless playing, with physical love."

The article was signed by the Rev. Domenico Capone, Italian president of the Rome Institute of Moral Theology.

Homosexuality in itself is a moral disorder, Osservatore said.

Then, refering to the Vatican document's statement that modern science indicated that some homosexuals may be "incurable" owing to physical and psychic factors, it said:

"In judging the behavior of a homosexual ... it is necessary to remember that there may be no guilt, either owing to lack of liberty, as the declaration hinted, or because the inextricable complexity of the situation may have brought about an evaluation which, sometimes, may even be called invincible ignorance. And the same applies in other cases."

Metropolitan marks 117th anniversary

Roman Catholic Bishp Remi De Roo of Victoria will be guest speaker at the 11 a.m. service Feb. 8 marking the 117th anniversary of Metropolitan United Church.

A congregational supper at 5 p.m. the same day will be followed by an evening of historical review and future planning.

"We have some exciting plans for the future and for our participation in the life of Victoria," Rev. Dr. A. E. King, the church's pastor, said this week. "We will discuss them that evening."

One of the plans is the publication of a history of the church. The basic work for the history has been done by Mrs. Thelma Johns, daughter of a former pastor, Rev. Dr. W. J. Sipprell, who served the church from 1920 to 1930.

Analysis workshop scheduled

An introductory workshop on Transactional Analysis will be given by Ann Chandler, RN, of Kansas City, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday in the medical lecture room of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The concept of Transactional Analysis was developed by psychotherapist Eric Berne, author of Games People Play and What Do You Say After You Say Hello?

It has been made popular by books such as I'm OK—You're OK by Thomas A. Harris and Born to Win by Muriel James and Dorothy Jonegeward.

Sunday's workshop has been arranged by a local group, Growth Unlimited, 2852 Admirals Road. Cost for the day is $20.

Adventists relocated

The community services centre of the Seventh-day Adventist Church has been relocated at 645 Dunedin, just one house off Douglas, and will hold an open house from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday.

The centre provides people in need with clothing, furniture and food. It will be open from 10 a.m. till 2 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, or by appointment. The phone number is 479-2733.

Anyone wishing to donate useful items may get in touch with Mrs. Eleanor Wyness or Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, directors of the centre.

Actor, model —and priest

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. David Mulholland occasionally leaves his work at the Mission to Seamen on Toronto's waterfront for a modelling assignment or television appearance.

The 38-year-old Anglican priest has modelled men's fashions in magazines and catalogues and played small parts on the CBC, CTV and educational television networks.

A $7,500 sports car and three university degrees—two in theology and one in the arts—were financed by modelling and acting jobs taken during the 12 years Mulholland was a student.

Ordained in 1974, he is working on his master's degree in theology at University of Toronto. And although he still does a few modelling or acting jobs, he says, "My main interest now is serving the needs of the sailing folk who come to Toronto from all over the world."

He described the Mission to Seamen as a "tea and sympathy" operation. The mission is housed in three connected trailers where sailors play cards, watch television, make long-distance phone calls to their homes and pick up mail.

Full Gospel group picks president

The new local president of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International is Don Mathison.

Mathison succeeds Dr. Douglas Roberts, who stepped down after serving the Victoria chapter for the past six years. An award was presented to Roberts at the recent annual meeting.

According to Charles Shave, public relations officer, the "aim of the fellowship is to spread the gospel to businessmen to let them know what Christ is doing in the lives of other businessmen."

Dinner meetings are held at 6:30 p.m. the last Monday of each month in Holyrood House. Attendance averages about 200 people. Most denominations are represented.

Through the initiative of Victoria businessman W. H. Scott the television grogram Good News, produced and sponsored by the international fellowship, now is available at noon Sundays on Channel 8.

Other officers elected at the annual meeting; Ross Perry, vice-president; Hugh Bradford, treasurer; David Geddes, secretary; Tom Taralson, administrative officer, and Jack McNeill, member-at-large.

Directors: Larry Jackson, Shave, Ken Jennings, Bruce Murray. Scott is international director.

Athens New Business Hub

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek capital has become the new Middle East headquarters for many multinational businesses which have fled violence-torn Beirut. The Greek government is doing everything to encourage the migration.

The move from Lebanon to Greece, however, has resulted in some local criticism, including protests against privileges granted the multinational firms.

There are also fears that the influx will mean a rise in inflation and higher housing costs. Some Greek newspapers have even alleged that foreign intelligence agents working under cover of the multinational companies would be moving their base of operations from Beirut to Athens.

A United States embassy official said 38 to 40 American companies formerly based in Beirut "are at some stage of legalizing their permanent status in Greece." Many others are operating in Athens either on a temporary basis or through their local representatives.

All these companies are being established under laws which grant tax exemptions and other financial benefits but which forbid commercial activities within Greece itself, so as not to compete with Greek concerns.

The U.S. Embassy official said businessmen from Beirut find the Greek capital "has absolutely everything necessary for these multinational companies apart from one drawback? It's not Arab."

He explained that many of these companies' clients are Arabs who are reluctant to see them settle in a non-Arab capital. Arab business delegations have been visiting Americans in Athens and recently Jordan passed tax laws aimed at attracting foreign firms.

"This is certainly no coincidence," the embassy official said.

He added: "Many of these companies are maintaining their Beirut operations even if only on paper, just in case the situation there smoothes out. But again, they want permanent Greek status to cover all eventualities."

The official said, however, that it cost certain American companies up to $50,000 to move their staffs and operations to Athens, and they would be reluctant to undertake the expense of returning.

for better hearing

If you work in excessive noise without ear protection the chances are that you have some hearing loss. This starts off being unnoticed but in time, with no protection will gradually affect your ability to hear clearly, "I hear but it sounds fuzzy." If this describes your condition see your doctor who will refer you to an Ear Specialist and wear your protectors.

ASSORTED COMPLAINTS

OTTAWA (CP) — Nearly half the 30,175 consumer complaints received at the department of consumer affairs' box 99 involved food, real estate or motor vehicles, the department said in its annual report, just released.

The total number of complaints was up from 24,278 the previous year.

The price of food was the area of most concern, the department reported, as it was in the previous year. The quality of food was the next most frequent complaint followed by non-receipt of goods and services from sales promotions, the quality of motor vehicles and non-receipt of goods and services in real estate.

The report said that mediation was the most frequent method of resolving consumer complaints where there is no specific covering legislation or where no other government department or agency has jurisdiction.

In these cases, officers of the department attempt to re-establish communication between the disputing parties.

Ten-Year Plan: What Canada Must Do

elizabeth forbes

My last column in which there was a brief description of the Ten Year Plan of Action put together at the United Nations International Women's Year conference in Mexico last year, has brought a spate of phone calls asking for further details.

Therefor, I'm going to devote this second column to the Plan, with thought of enlarging on selected areas that will require action by Canada in an over-all ten-year span.

These areas include population (birth planning), legislative and administrative measures, political involvement, health, nutrition and social services, education, economic roles, and the mass media.

In connection with population (birth planning), it is proposed that individuals and couples should have access, through an institutionalized system to the information and means that will enable them to freely and responsibly determine the number and spacing of their children.

Also that to make this information easily accessible "all legal, social or financial obstacles to the dessemination of family planning knowledge, means and services should be abolished."

In the political involvement area it is pointed out that women hold a small percentage of leadership positions in the various branches of government.

Also that if this situation is ever to be corrected, "governments must establish goals, strategies and time-tables for increasing, within the 1975-85 decade, the number of women in elective and appointive public offices and public functions at all levels."

Efforts to achieve these objectives, TYPA says should include "issuance of special governmental instructions for achieving an equitable representation of women in public offices, and the undertaking of special activities for the recruitment, nomination and promotion of women especially to fill important positions, until equitable representation of the sexes is achieved."

The Plan also ealls for the full involvement of women in policy-making at the international level as well as the national level.

Concerning women and health, TYPA says governments should "give high priority to and ensure investment in community health programs; mobile units to inform women of basic health rights; introduce measures to prevent all forms of discrimination and cruelty against women; provide adequate aid aid assistance where suffering results from the lack of understanding of institutions, in particular in health, maternal and child care and family planning services."

They should also "establish priorities in medical research and training of health personnel for prevention and cure of women's health problems."

In view of the scarcity of medical doctors in many areas, the suggestion is made that specific action should include "using trained paramedical workers to the fullest extent for such services as the provision of contraceptives and adequate follow-up for protection of the health of the users."

On the economic roles of women, TYPA observes that "the vast majority of women are concentrated in a limited number of occupations and at lower levels of skill, responsibility and remuneration."

Moreover "women often experience discrimination in pay, promotion, working conditions, and hiring practices."

Thus, governments should formulate policies and action programs expressly directed toward equality of opportunity and treatment for women workers, and the guarantee of their right to equal pay for equal work.

Governments should also establish specific target dates for achieving a substantial increase in the number of qualified women employed in skilled and technical work, and make special efforts to increase the number of women in management and policy-making in commerce, industry and trade.

In the area of specific action, one suggestion urges establishment, in goverament departments and other appropriate bodies, "of positive policies and targets for employing women in both the public and private sectors, with special emphasis on employment of women at the policy and planning levels."

Another suggestion spells out the need of access for women to credit on equal terms with men and encouragement of the establishment of co-operatives.

In recognition of the role of education in society, TYPA urges governments to provide equal opportunities for both sexes at all levels of educaion and training within the context of lifelong education and in accordance with the present and future needs of the communities concerned.

Textbooks and other teaching materials should be reevaluated it says and, where necessary, rewritten to ensure that they "reflect an image of women in positive and participatory roles in society."

Specific action should ensure that courses on population, education and on family life education are integrated into school curricula at all levels and in programs of non-formal education, to raise awareness of the relationship between demographic trends and social, economic and cultural conditions and to prepare young people and adults of both sexes for responsible marriage and parenthood.

TYPA recommends that unmarried mothers be granted "full-fledged status" as parents, and that children born out of wedlock have the same rights and obligations as those born in wedlock.

In the area of legislative and administrative measures, suggestions for specific action include "establishment of special units to study the present situation of women in the different government departments, and to promote ameliorative action."

These are only a few of the main points in the Ten Year Plan of Action

Enough, I hope, to make it perfectly clear United Nations International Women's Year was not — as so many would have us believe — a one-shot effort.

Rather, it opened the door and pointed the way to a vital on-going plan with targets and priorities that should bring the full equality and integration of women in society very near withing the next ten years.

If you would like to know more about this exciting Plan, write for the outline I have before me.

The address is Advisory Council on the Status of Women, 63 Sparks Street, Box C.P. 1541, Station SUCC B., Ottawa, Ont., K1P 5R5.

Camera Care

By HARRIET HART

Proper maintenance of your photo equipment is just as important as your technical know-how of photography!

The 12-page illustrated booklet "Maintaining Your Still And Movie Camera and Projector" ("Entretien de vos appareils photo et cine et de vos projecteurs") explains the simple but essential things you should do to keep your photographic equipment in top condition. Most of the tips apply to all cameras and projectors, still or movie.

Among the many hints about camera care in the booklet is how to clean it. A dirty lens can ruin a unique scene. Keep your lens clean by using lens-cleaning paper or a clean, soft, lintless cloth. Fine dust can work itself into the camera from the outside, so clean both the inside and outside of your camra.

There is also advice on how to store your camera. Don't put it near a heated or humid area. If you leave it in your car, a good spot is on the floor behind the front seat. Do not leave it on the rear-window deck or in the glove compartment.

You are also urged that before you start to clean any part of your projector, to give it time to cool. As a rule, your projector will not need any lubrication. Before you apply oil to any part, consult your instruction manual.

FOR SALE SOON: BODY PARTS

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — They won't be the same as used in television's $6 Million Man by the Univesity of Utah's artificial organs division will soon be offering a wide array of mechanical body parts.

The centre hopes to provide future recipients with everything from nuclear powered hearts to eyes, ears, arms, legs and a portable artificial kidney.

In reviewing recent research at the centre, Dr. Willem J. Kolff, division director, said Wednesday the arm should be ready within one year. Kolff said the doctors and engineers hope to expand their arm research into development of artificial legs.

Dr. Steven Jacobsen, an engineer who helped build the arm, said it should be able to lift at least two pounds, enough for most normal tasks. The arm's mechanics are based on a series of string-like "muscles" which shorten when twisted.

Jacobsen said the arm is controlled by a series of electrodes implanted in the shoulder muscle. He said the arm can predict and duplicate normal arm motions "with a considerable degree of accuracy."

Further in the future are an artificial eye and nuclear-powered artificial heart.

How to Stretch Butter —Reader's Suggestion

MARY MOORE

LETTER: Since someone is interested in stretching butter and you gave them your whipped butter idea I thought you might like my butter stretcher . . . "A Recipe Clipper."

ANSWER: I appreciate your butter stretcher idea but I do not appreciate unsigned letters.

I tested your butter stretcher and think it may have some virtue but I found the water in the added evaporated milk leaked away from the mass of butter when it was refrigerator cold. NOTE: Readers who are making a big batch of sandwiches or who can use this butter-stretcher quickly without refrigerating may appreciate.

STRETCHED BUTTER

½ lb. butter (room temperature)
⅛ tsp. salt
1 6-oz. can evaporated milk.

Measure butter into beater bowl, add salt and beat until creamy. SLOWLY add the evaporated milk, scraping down sides of bowl 3 or 4 times until free milk is blended into butter. Turn into small bowl or butter container. Use for spreading bread. Do not use for sauteing as the milk will flow out.

QUESTION: My sister in Kamloops says you have a smashing recipe for Sweet 'n Sour Chicken . . . Myra.

ANSWER: Right!

CHINESE SWEET AND SOUR CHICKEN
(Serves 6 to 8)

Chicken Ingredients:

8 whole chicken legs, cut at joint (15 pieces in all)
¾ cup flour
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ cup butter

Sauce

1 cup hot water
¼ cup cornstarch
¼ cup sugar
6 tbsp. vinegar
4 cups hot water
6 tbsp. catsup
3 tbsp. soy sauce

To prepare chicken mix flour, salt and pepper in strong paper bag and shake dried chicken pieces in them to coat. Melt Butter in large shallow baking dish (or use two medium pans), add chicken pieces, turn each over to coat with butter, add hot water and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 45 to 50 minutes, turning once.

To make sauce mix sauce ingredients together in order given in large saucepan and cook stirring with wire whip until slightly thickened. Transfer meat from pan to platter or chafing dish and pour hot sauce over.

This dish obviously should be served with fluffy boiled rice and is highly recommended especially for Chinese food devotees.

Baby Food Manufacturer Tries to 'Scare' Mothers

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — One of the United States' largest makers of baby foods is trying to scare mothers away from using homemade foods for their infants, the city's consumer affairs department has charged.

Roberta Wielosznyski, the city agency's director, said Wednesday she has subpoeaned executives of the Baker Beech-Nut Co. to a Feb. 4 hearing to justify distribution of 760,000 flyers warning of the potential dangers of homemade baby food.

"While it may appear to be self-serving, our intent was to inform mothers to avoid particular items," countered William Mallison, vice-president of Beech-Nut. "We felt we were performing a public service."

A Beech-Nut lawyer added that the city has no jurisdiction over the firm, because "Beech-Nut is not engaged in doing business in Syracuse."

Mrs. Wielosznyski replied, "If the flyer could be supported, why not do so? Why suggest to Syracuse mothers who've been buying Beech-Nut products that the company doesn't do business in Syracuse? I'm sure that must come as some surprise to people who have trusted and bought Beech-Nut products in Syracuse stores."

The flyer warned mothers of the danger of exposing their babies to a disease called methemoglobinemia by feeding them home-cooked baby foods. A survey has shown "exactly one such case" in the United States, Mrs. Wielosznyski said.

The Beech-Nut flyer also warned mothers that homemade baby foods lack the nutrients in commercial baby foods. The company admitted this warning was based on a 27-year-old study, Mrs. Wielosznyski said.

Handicapped Get Free Day At Big Fair

Victoria Jaycees have set aside a day at their fair this year when handicapped children will be admitted free and given free rides and food, publicity chairman Dave Trace said Friday.

The Jaycee Fair, an annual event, will be held May 17 to 22 at Memorial Arena.

Trace said there are no limits on the number of handicapped children who can attend but the Jaycees will not be able to provide transportation to and from the fair for them or supervise them while they are there.

He said Meeker Shows will provide the entertainment at this year's fair and the midway will be enlarged to include four spectacular rides, three of which have not been in Canada before. One of the rides will be bumper cars

Doing the Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

"The honor of your presence" . . .

As far as we can make out . . . about the only really elegant ball left in Victoria is the Annual Symphony Ball, staged by the members of the Victoria Symphony Society Women's Commmittee, and taking place on Feb. 14 for the 26th consecutive year! . . . Now here's an opportunity for many of you to enjoy a really red letter social occasion . . . wear your most elegant evening attire . . . and help our very fine symphony orchestra all at one and the same time! The Ball is to be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel . . . where a smorgasbord dinner (including the Empress' famous baron of beef as a piece de resistance) will take place at 8 p.m. . . . followed by dancing until 1 a.m. . . . Mrs. J. R. Strickland is convening the event, proceeds of which go to the Symphony . . . Dress is formal (dinner jackets quite acceptable for the gentlemen) . . . Tickets are but $30 a couple, and are limited in number so there'll be no overcrowding . . . Wouldn't you like to be a guest at this gala Ball which promises to be THE memorable event of the year? . . . Then phone Mrs. Strickland (preferable in the evening) . . . She'll see you get your tickets in plenty of time . . . Victoria Symphony Women's Society Committee, Mrs. J. R. Strickland, 598-5844.

Indian and African motifs are embroidered on Rome's Pino Lanchetti spring designs.

Sunny clothes from sunny Mexico, ole! . . .

We're not saying a trip to Mexico wouldn't be delightful . . . and shopping for distinctive Mexican clothes fun . . . but if you can't manage it the next best thing is a visit to Eaton's Townhouse, where a super collection of choice Mexican fashions is now on display . . . Unbleached cotton tunics lavish with brilliant hand embroidery . . . ditto long dresses in natural or orange cotton . . . and a particularly pretty one in black cotton . . . There are also dressy long skirts tucked and lace trimmed . . . All very cool and eye-catching! . . . We like the sets of three tote bags . . . brightly striped or ecru with stripes around the middle . . . Each size different so one fits into the other . . . $21 for the set . . . Some attractive matte jersey dresses by Ann Tjian for Brodkin Sport . . . Long ones with deep square neck front and back, soft full body and sleeves . . . separate scarf which could be worn as a waist cincher . . . Silver grey and chocolate brown . . . reasonably tagged at just $130 . . . while the same dress in a short style . . . powder blue or rust . . . is only $90 . . . Ideal dresses for travellers because they won't crease . . . can take on different guises with changes of accessories . . . All these are new at . . . Eaton's Townhouse, 382-7141, loc. 367.

For your Valentine . . .

Nothing speaks more eloquently of love or caring as a nice piece of jewellery from him to her on Valentine's Dav . . . And he doesn't have to spend a fortune to get it either if he visits Y.De Lima's in search of the perfect gift! . . . All of their gold and silver jewllery comes from Trinidad . . . hence is distinctly different and . . . we think . . . very beautiful! . . . Some new pieces arrived just this week . . . 10 kt. gold earrings, in three different shapes . . . diamond, triangle and oval . . . with a filigree design set in each. Very dainty, and only $28.45 . . . Noticed some small plaited hoop earrings . . . and silver drop earrings in a diamond cut design, as well as tapered hoops . . . You wouldn't believe how pretty the new synthetic star sapphire rings are . . . The stars actually glow when they catch the light! . . . One set in white gold costs $49 . . . another in yellow gold is but $39 . . . While an opal (real) in a wide openwork gold band is only $54 . . . So go see all this new Caribbean jewellery . . . At the same time, have a look at all the items Y.De Lima's are clearing at 33% off . . . Dressing table mirror trays . . . tiled cheese boards . . . ice buckets and matching cocktail shakers, stainless steel breakfast and condiment sets, plus a host of other desirable items space prevents our mentioning! . . . Y.De Lima's, 762 Yates St., 384-3512

You'll see fewer floral prints, more solid colors and stripes this year.

An investment in chic for home and abroad . . .

It's been our experience that every successful travel wardrobe starts with an Idea . . . and while we specify travel, it's only because the Idea we're about to describe is so eminently right for, say, a compact cruise wardrobe! . . . Machine-washable, uncrushable, unflappable! . . . We'll start by saying Gibson's have just received their exclusive shipment of Gina Paoli clothes from Italy . . . And now on to the Idea which consists of two of these particular outfits . . . one a 4-pce. ensemble consisting of plain navy polyester knit pants, long-sleeved white blouse with soft tie neck . . . Chanel-type jacket and soft skirt in navy with an interesting sprinkling of blurry turquoise dots . . . The second is a navy evening dress with narrow shoulder straps, in the same navy polyester knit with a lighter-weight V-necked batwing sweater streaked with the finest of white stripes . . . Now you start playing around with these various pieces . . . Long dress with suit jacket . . . sweater with pants for a dressier pantsuit . . . blouse over long dress for more casual late-day wear . . . plus any other combination you can devise . . . You might add as extras a pair of white pants, a sporty top and some bright scarves to these two basic outfits, and start combining all over again! . . . There you have a whole cruise wardrobe . . . nucleus of any home wardrobe, and thus a great clothes investment! . . . Gibson's, 708 View St., 384-5913.

Book your spring perm now . . .

We just got ourself a new permanent at the House of Glamour, and must say it makes us look . . . not to say feel! . . . like a new woman! . . . Just the ticket to counteract the effects of this miserable weather we've been having! . . . Too bad, though, we didn't wait a few days longer . . . because starting Monday, Feb. 2, and right through the entire month of February, H. of G. will be holding their big semi-annual special on all their regular permenents . . . This represents a real saving . . . so to anyone who wants a new perm to put a bounce in their hair for spring . . . we recommend they pick up the phone and make an appointment with one of the talented stylists at House of Glamour . . . The popular Charles, who cuts our hair, tells us that short hair is going to be big again this spring . . . with oriental styles still to the fore, but with variations to suit the individual . . . The very latest look . . . and we saw a living example of this . . . is cut short at the sides, longer and flipping out at the top . . . It's very becoming to the right face . . . and knowlegable H. of G. stylists are the people who can tell you if it's right for yours! . . . Anyway, no matter what your hair style, chances are it will look better with some type of perm or body wave, so take advantage of their big February perm sale at . . . House of Glamour, 1175 Doublas St., 386-6188.

Only three women now belong to the Chambre Syndicale of the Haute Couture in France.

Eaton's can help take a load off your mind! . . .

Last Monday we dropped in to Eaton's Bridal Registry while one of the consultants was busy answering questions and giving advice to a young bride-to-be . . . So we just sat in a corner and listened in . . . Nothing we hadn't heard before, of course . . . but it was like a shot in the arm to us because we realized anew what a truly wonderful service the Bridal Registry renders! . . . The young woman was given a gift preference list to take home and fill out . . . a list covering everything imaginable for her new home . . . She chose her wedding invitations and was assisted with the wording . . . serviettes and matches and other personalized items for the reception . . . all of which will be taken care of by Eaton's . . . And she got some sound advice on a number of other things which help make a wedding go smoothly . . . When she finally arose to leave . . . armed with her notes and two great gifts from Eaton's . . . a modern Household Encyclopedia and a Bride's Book . . . she was grinning from ear to ear . . . and turning towards us with a sigh of relief, announced "Well, that's a big load off my mind!" . . . We tell you this true story so you may draw your own conclusions . . . If you're planning on getting married, go visit Eaton's Bridal Registry . . . It will cost you nothing . . . you'll get all sorts of goodies for free . . . and best of all, it will be a big load off your mind! . . . Eaton's Bridal Registry, 382-7141, loc. 373.

Happy feet help make happy people! . . .

Being one of those people whose feet always seem to be hurting . . . our enthusiasm almost ran away with us when we saw a revolutionary new product at McGill & Orme's Surgical Supplies, Broad St., this week! . . . It's called "Happy Feet!" and consists of inner soles with a liquid core . . . (on the principle of water beds) . . . that cushion your feet, distribute pressure all over so you feel you're actually walking on water . . . It supports your entire foot with a cushioning flow of water that flows from your heel to your toe while you're walking or standing . . . Has a gently massaging action . . . You can wear these in any of your shoes because they're removable and washable . . . come in sizes to fit men and women, and in either white or turquoise . . . These "Happy Feet!" insoles have to be the greatest for people who are on their feet a lot . . . like doctors, nurses, salespeople, postmen . . . people like us who love to walk . . . and certainly people with a weight problem! . . . We know so many of the latter who find getting around a chore! . . . If you'd like a new experience in blissful foot comfort, get yourself a pair of "Happy Feet!" at . . . Surgical Supplies Ltd., 1012 Broad St., 384-8433

Welch Medical Report

Just a very few years ago, it was difficult to find a menopausal woman who had not been persuaded by "authoritative" articles in popular magazines that female sex hormone treatment would not only turn off the hot flashes but keep her forever young as well. Also, it would prevent her from having coronary artery disease.

The latter promise was based on the statistical observation that before the menopause the incidence of heart attacks in women was much lower than in men; after the menopause the incidence tended to rise until it equalled that in men.

Now the recently reported statistical rise in the incidence of uterine cancer among some post-meriopausal women, who have taken estrogen supplements to relieve the various side effects of the menopause, has had a predictably frightening impact on millions of American women.

The telephones in doctors' offices are again jangling with anxious inquiries as they always do after every news story that breathlessly announces the latest medical statistic.

A few weeks ago it was "the pill" that was the villain, especially for women over 35. It included in its formulation the same hormone that would have presumably prevented heart attacks in men 20 years ago. Yet now it was threatening women over 35 with the prospect of heart attacks.

A few weeks before that, it was announced that the children of women whose pregnancies, some 20 years ago, had been sustained with a female hormone were now candidates for various kinds of genital cancer.

How can a woman be expected to make sense of all this confusing and ominous news, much less trust what her doctor tells her?

The answer, it seems to me, lies in remembering that there is no medication strong enough to do one thing that may not be expected to do several other things as well. And the corollary of that fact is that every choice in medicine, as in most serious transactions, does not involve a choice between absolute good and bad. Rather it is a decision between the relative hope of good and the relative knowledge of the risk of bad.

The question of whether or not a menopausal woman should take estrogen ought not to be decided only on the basis of a newspaper reporter's account of statistics, the significance of which he understands no better than most readers.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've found a heavy rubberized-like dog-heating pad, which I think will make a great gift for Lady. She often lies in her bed shivering after she's been out and gotten cold and wet. My husband thinks a good rubdown with a towel would be better for her, besides saving energy. Is he right?—F.G.

DEAR F.G.: If your husband's volunteering to be on hand and expend his energy to give Lady a rubdown when required, then I'd agree he's right. Lady would benefit from the attention as well as the drying process, and he would save a kilowatt or two. Otherwise, I think your gift idea is a good one. For that matter, Lady, might think it's a good idea anyway.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Laser was a part-Siamese, stunted waif whom I adopted. In the last 12 years, she has remained cuddly, unaltered, unmatched, and contently housebound. Recently while I was lubricating my hands with some household petrolatum jelly, she nosed up and I teasingly put a daub on her tongue. Surprisingly, she lapped it up and has been doing so ever since, about half a teaspoonful a day. Would this seem to indicate something lacking in her diet such as fat, which she detests? Shall I keep on giving her the jelly? She seems to relish it. Can it have any harmful effect on her?—B.F.

DEAR B.F.: Felines frequently find faint-flavored petrolatum jelly a tasty snack. This is useful should the animal actually need an internal lubricant, which is what the jelly is. It shouldn't be considered a simple snack, however, but saved for use as an occasional laxative or for regular weekly use, more or less, as a hairball remover. The average dose would be about a teaspoon. Harmful effects from daily usage would run from constant diarrhea to interference with digestion to over-dependence on laxative effect and a consequently weakened intestinal wall.

DEAR DR. MILLER: The guinea pig babies we used to have, that was when we used to have guinea pigs, were always weaned from their mother by three weeks. Fuzzy's babies, she's our first rabbit, were seven weeks old today and still nursing. Are her babies all retarded? —G.G.

DEAR G.G.: Before you fault Fuzzy's babies for being so low, consider their gestation period is only half that of the guinea pig. G.P. babies are far enough along when born. They've no need to remain tied to mother's apron strings, for food that is, for more than two or three weeks. Baby rabbits, on the other hand, normally linger longer and may be dependent on mama's milk for up to eight weeks.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My cousin is a corporate personnel manager in a compamy that sells, among other things, bird supplies. His company has a large parrot, a macaw, which he claims is the smartest of all birds. Edgar Allen Poe, a crow, was the smartest bird I ever saw or knew. If he'd been a corporate bird, wouldn't he stand up well against a parrot?—M.A.

DEAR M.A.: The macaw might make it as the top corporate bird-brain based, among other things, on his plumage and conversational ability. Still, on the basis of dollar return for brainpower purchase, the common crow would be the best bet. (These birds would probably break even with the macaw on a fair I.Q. test.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: Can there be anything wrong with a tail that wags? It's attached to Deli, my dog. It looks sort of puffy and strange at the base, but really, if it were sore or something seriously wrong, she wouldn't be wagging it, would she?—N.V.

DEAR N.V.: Presumably a wagging tail's in better shape than one that won't. Even so, you shouldn't wait for the last wag before seeking professional help for this posterior problem. The swollen tail base could signal anything from abscess, to skin or spinal problems, or a tumor. Don't let Deli's determination to keep it moving delay professional assistance.

FAMILY DARLING is Rimmer, the family pet, seen relaxing with Jens Hansen, six, of Herning, Denmark, by the television set. Jens' father, a pet shop owner, bought Rimmer three months ago when the lion cub weighed 30 pounds. The cub now weighs 70 pounds, and puts away 10 pounds of meat a day, besides other tidbits like rugs, cushions and television cables.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: My wife and were invited to play bridge at the home of a couple we recently met. During the game, I happened to look in a mirror across the room, and I saw the other man put his foot right next to my wife's foot! The way it looked to me, my wife didn't make any move to take her foot away.

This happened several times during the bridge game. On the way home, I asked my wife about it, and she said she felt this man's foot a few times, but she was sure he didn't mean anything by it.

Should I tell this man the next time I see him that he should be more careful where he puts his feet? Or do you think I am making something out of nothing?

We are all in our 60's.

BRIDGE PLAYER

DEAR PLAYER: Only a dummy would accuse a recent acquaintance of playing tricks with his wife on such flimsy evidence. If the old boy was trying a finesse, it didn't work. Pass.

DEAR ABBY: Our 20-year-old daughter is planning to be married in six months. She's had only five dates with her fiance. He lives in a distant state — too remote for them to get together again before the wedding.

They write each other daily and talk long-distance once a week. Father says (and means it) that he will never accept the young man even if they do marry. He figures that his daughter wont get married without his approval, but he is wrong).

I am not in favor of our daghter marrying a man she knows so slightly, but if they marry I will accept him warmly.

My husband is angry with me. He thinks that because he disapproves of this marriage, I should do likewise.

How do you size up the situation?

MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your husband is making a serious mistake in saying "never." He can't prevent a daughter of legal age from marrying, so he's foolish to take such a stubborn, negative attitude.

I hope he reconsiders.

Misconceptions About Pruning

This column, together with the illustration, is designed to clear up some misconceptions about the pruning of newly-purchased fruit trees. That these misconceptions are widespread is verified by the number of questions asked by home gardeners.

The story goes like this; a fruit tree was purchased and planted last fall. A kindly neighbor with a knowledge of fruit growing has suggested the tree should be pruned before growth starts this spring.

The owner of the tree disagrees, saying it is only a tiny bit of a tree and pruning would leave nothing more than a bare stick. Great difficulty had been experienced in finding a "good" tree with lots of shoots and twigs, and after all the trouble and time that was spent, why should any growth be cut off? This is misconception number one, that a young tree should not be pruned, and that the biggest looking tree is the best buy.

It has been my experience, and possibly the experience of every nurseryman selling fruit trees retail, that when the customer is given a choice the selection will always be the largest specimen regardless of whether it is the best in health or habit, or that a smaller size would become established much faster and outstrip the larger one in four years.

More for the money usually means cheaper materials and correspondingly lower quality in any product, and home gardeners would do well to remember this when purchasing either plants or seeds.

During the time I was selling fruit trees I would offer to do the necessary pruning after the customer had made a selection, an offer gratefully accepted, but obviously regretted as 90% of the shoots and branches were cut off. To maintain the good will of the customer I would explain the procedure step by step.

Drawing in the illustration is a diagrammatic depiction of a representative fruit tree, devoid of unnecessary frills, but somewhat exaggerated for clarity. The growths at the top radiate in all directions.

To obtain a solid framework of branches that will not interfere with one another as they increase in size, that will bear a heavy crop without breaking, and be in a position to obtain the maximum of light (to ripen the fruits) and air (to lessen fungus diseases), certain top growths are selected and retained and all others are removed.

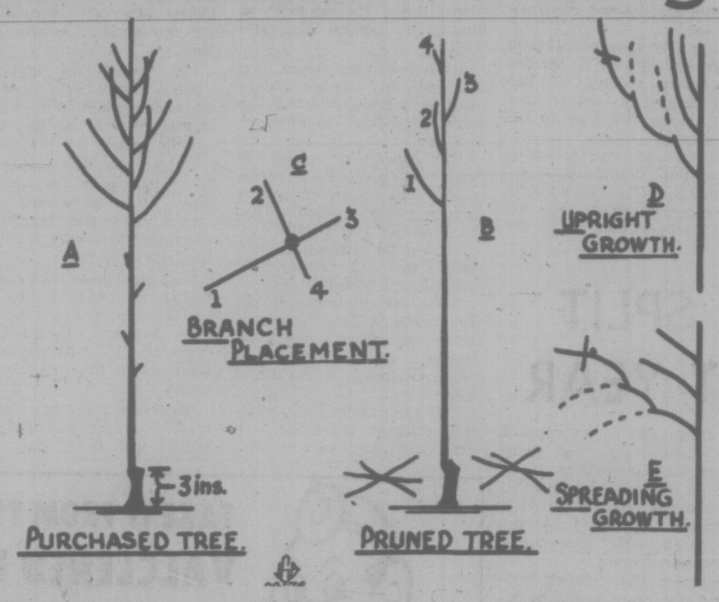
Misconception number two is that a branch, now a small shoot at a given distance from the ground, will move higher and increase this distance as the tree grows taller.

Trees increase their height from growth cells at the top of the trunk, not as so many gardeners imagine, by elongation of the trunk at root level.

This means that wherever a growth develops on the trunk it will always remain at that level in relation to ground level. So the first thing to decide is at what level you wish the lowest branches to be, and remove all growths and growth buds below that level.

Diagram C shows the ideal placement of branches when looking down on the top of the trunk, the numbers corresponding to the branch numbers as shown in diagram B.

In this instance, four well-placed branches have been selected, but frequently we can find onl ytwo, and others will be chosen in succeeding years from buds that develop on the growing tip of the trunk.



Misconception number three is that an entire branch system has to be made from the existing growths the first year. Nothing is gained (excepting later problems) from settling for poorly placed shoots, especially when better placement will be found next year.

The selected branches are then pruned approximately half way along the new growth made the previous year. New and old growth can be distinguished by the color and texture of the bark, but most of the growths found on a young tree (2-year-old) will have been made last season.

Misconception number four is that these growths should not be cut back because it will take longer to make a full size branch.

Shortening is necessary because the growth buds at the centre of the new growth are the strongest, and from these centrally located buds we get the strongest branch. When growth is allowed to continue from tip buds, the branch becomes thinner and weaker, develops a weeping habit, and will need props when carrying a load of fruit.

Before making any shortening cuts, study the habit of the tree. Some trees, and some varieties of the same kind of fruit, have an upright habit of growth as shown at D. To open up the tree for light and air to penetrate, always cut to a bud facing outwards. The result is clear from the drawing.

When the tree has a spreading habit, the branches leaving the trunk almost at a right-angle, cut just beyond a bud pointing upwards, as in drawing E. The branch then assumes a more upright growth and is less likely to break from the trunk under a load of fruit or wet snow.

At the base of the trunk in drawings A and B is an exaggerated depiction of the place where the scion of the known variety of fruit was attached to the dwarfing rootstock, to produce what many retailers call a dwarf tree.

Actually, true dwarfs (to 6 ft.) are not suited to our climate, and the trees sold are semi-dwarfs to 15 or 18 ft.

For the tree to remain dwarf this budding point must remain 2 to 3 inches above soil level, otherwise the scion section will produce roots of its own and overcome the dwarfing effect of the rootstock. The tree will then become a standard and stretch to 25 or 30 feet in eight.

Check for this distance. Replant the tree immediately (before new growth starts) on a well packed mound of soil, if the budding point is below, or nearly at, ground level.

Underground Forest

KELLOGG, Idaho (AP) — The Johnny Appleseed of Northern Idaho has gone underground.

A small forest has sprouted more than 3,000 feet below the surface where a mining company has found an unlikely place to grow 4,000 pine trees.

Ed Pommerening, who likes to call himself a modern-day Johnny Appleseed, has found a 75-degree ventilation tunnel in the bunker hill mine an ideal place to grow trees to revegate the bleak hills of the Coeur d' Alene mining district.

Over the years numerous fruit trees have sprouted in the 99-year-old mine from pits and seeds in miners' lunch pails. The underground gardens were tended by miners, requiring only occasional fertilizer, water and the light supplied by incandescent bulbs, and crops have included flowers, fruits and vegetables.

Americans Pessimistic —Poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most Americans believe the U.S. still is in recession and are pessimistic about an economic recovery during election year, according to a Harris Poll published this week.

A survey conducted by pollster Louis Harris among a cross-section of 1,400 adults across the U.S. between Dec. 20 and 30 last year showed that a substantial 79 per cent thinks the country is in recession now compared to 80 per cent in December, 1974.

Only 13 per cent feels the country is not in recession against 11 per cent a year earlier.

Asked whether they think the country will still be in recession in 12 months time, 54 per cent said it would against 60 per cent polled in December, 1974.

But 25 per cent feels the nation will have recovered against 17 per cent in the earlier survey.

The main reason for the pessimism is that the American consumer lacks conviction that the back of inflation has been broken, Harris said.

PAKISTAN 707 JET NEARLY HIT STACK

FRANKFURT (UPI) — A Boeing 707 of the Pakistan International Airlines carrying 82 passengers missed the smokestack of an oil refiney by only 60 feet Friday during a landing approach to Frankfurt's Rhine-main airport.

A spokesman for the federal flight safety authority said the crew "apparently had not followed the procedures required in instrument landing approach."

The spokesman said there would have been a catastrophe if the plane had struck the smokestack and crashed into the refinery.

Boxing Club Set for New Round

By PETER MEDWID
Times Staff

A place for the athletically-minded complete with lounge, sauna, showers, exercise facilities and gym will open in Victoria within the month.

The London Boxing Club on Quadra, re-organized after suffering through 18 months of major executive changes, court cases and law suits, is finally seeing the end of the road.

Derek Elcoate, who does public relations for the club, says if some way can be found the building "will be open 24 hours a day.".

Although purchased by the club five years ago, no activities have taken place in the former First Baptist Church.

The provincial government, through the Community Recreation Facilities Fund, has pumped more than $265,000 in 1973 and 1975 to renovate the building and reduce the mortgages.

To get the government help a new society — The Quadra Recreation Society — has been formed to ensure that the facilities are open to the community.

There is a representative from the Blanshard area, James Bay Community School, Fernwood and the University of Victoria on the board. Fred Goddard, president of the London Boxing Club, is also president of the Quadra Society.

The club started 13 years ago with Harry Morris taking in six kids who were in trouble with the law and got its name from the sponsor at that time, London Fish and Chips.

Its development since then has been fast and it's mainly because of this growth that the club found itself in financial trouble.

"We operate or sponsor 19 teams in baseball, lacrosse, soccer and hockey and up to now no person using the club facilities has paid a fee.

"It was all financed through bingo as will this year's operations," added Elcoate.

While the children may not be paying a fee this year, adult members may be charged. A fee proposal is being discussed by the directors.

"We can pay for club activities through bingo but we can't pay any part of the mortgage. This will have to be done through renting the facilities for dances and public use."

Elcoate sees the place as a meeting spot for all sports-minded people in the Capital Region. Vic Sage, who has looked after the renovations for the society, echoes this hope.

"We are hoping that the various teams will come to the centre after their games, shower or exercise and then use the lounge.

"Right now they are going to various pubs but we can offer them more and also they'll have the benefit of meeting and talking to others involved in sports."

Sage says there is no reason the centre can't become the social gathering place for athletes. Physical education students at UVic will act as instructors in the general program.

Sage says there has been a terrific response from the public and says that even though the club has not yet opened, the phone has been ringing steadily the past six weeks with kids wanting to get in the boxing program.

"All we're waiting for is the lounge licence and final inspection by the city. Once that is done we'll hire a resident caretaker and open up," said Elcoate.

Sage credits past president Ian Duddy and Goddard for revitalizing the club.

"With the court case against former president Morris, lein holders moved in and some of the directors who had put their homes up as collateral for loans, were in danger of foreclosure.

"It was a bad period for all of us but we pulled it off," says Sage.

"It's the old story . . . when you're told you're finished, you somehow rally and settle down. It's been a bloody good show by a lot of people (ladies auxiliary for one) who had faith and who wouldn't say die," says Elcoate.

Silicone Injections Outlawed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California assembly has approved a measure outlawing silicone injections to enlarge women's breasts.

The bill was sent to the senate Thursday on a 42-30 vote.

If signed into law, persons prescribing or administering silicone breast injections could receive up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine. The measure does not apply to surgical implantation of silicone bags in the breast.

Assemblywoman Leona Egeland declared physicians should "cease and desist" performing the injections "until the industry proves they are safe."

REVENUE SPLIT PLAN NEXT YEAR

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new revenue-sharing formula between the provincial government and British Columbia municipalities could be ready by next year, says municipal affairs minister Hugh Curtis.

Curtis said he hopes to introduce the formula, promised by Social Credit in the recent election, for the 1977-78 provincial fiscal year.

Under the present setup, municipalities depend largely on their own local taxes, plus an annual per capita grant of $34 from the province, to finance their operations, along with a portion of provincial natural gas revenues under a program introduced by the former New Democratic Party government.

Premier Bill Bennett promised the grant would be replaced with a financial formula giving the municipalities a firm share of income tax revenues. Sales tax and resources income.

JAPANESE REAL CHUMS, DONATE SALMON EGGS

SEATTLE (AP) — The Japanese government has agreed to send five million chum salmon eggs to Washington to bail out the state's skimpy chum run, the state department of fisheries reports. Fisheries director Donald Moos said a Japanese biologist will accompany the eggs and will stay to share some enhancement methods with biologists here.

The Japanese are furnishing the eggs at no charge, even though that nation's fishermen don't enter Washington waters or fish off the coast for salmon, a National Marine Fisheries Service spokesman said.

"I think this is a tremendous gesture on the part of the Japanese," Moos said. "If we can adopt some of their techniques, maybe we can keep this exceptionally low chum salmon escapement from happening again."

Esquimalt Boom In Recreation

Recreationally speaking, Esquimalt is in the middle of a vintage period.

Harold Moist, recreation director for the municipality, has put the finishing touch to a program that will see all school gyms and activity rooms being used by residents.

Esquimalt Recreation Commission and Greater Victoria School Board have signed an agreement whereby the Rec Centre has booked all gyms and activity rooms.

No money has changed hands for use of the schools after hours. The students are using, free of charge, all municipal recreational facilities.

Co-ordinating the expanded program is Maureen Cooper who is developing an extensive program to start in the spring. The summer program is in doubt.

"We are looking at this part of the program. During the summer schools are painted and renovations done and this may create some problem for us. Also, we don't know if there is a real need for an indoor recreation program in the summer," says Moist.

The recreation centre on Fraser has been open a year and already is bulging.

"Some nights we can't get any more people into this building. In rentals, the rooms are fully booked on Saturdays to the end of June and on Friday, the rooms are 90 per cent booked in the same period," adds Moist.

The most popular courses at the centre are yoga, keep-fit and ballet for children.

"We have to turn newcomers away for these, but there is room in some fo the craft classes."

During the day the Silver Threads have prior use of the facilities and there are about 400 involved in this program, at no cost to the senior citizens.

The seniors help instruct others in carpet bowling and also teach crafts once a week to students from Lampson Elementary.

The centre has a full-time staff of 14 and costs the municipality $117,000 to operate. Revenue for the year is about $60,000.

Moist said the basic policy of the centre is to respond to the needs of the community.

"If the residents want a specific program we will develop it for them but we do not pre-plan activities."

At the beginning of the 20th century, there were about six completely reliable and effective pharmaceutical preparations for doctors to fall back on. The main ones were: aspirin, digitalis, morphia, quinine, ether, a diptheria anti-toxin and immunization against rabies and small-pox.
Since World War II, substances and chemicals with which to fight and cure disease have been produced in startling numbers. In spite of all the research involved, the testing, packing, transporting, high standards involved in general, and the inflation spiral, some of our most commonly used drugs — for instance, penicillin — have gone down in price since the early days of use. Your prescription today is still one of the greatest bargains available. Always be sure to follow instructions carefully, and choose a druggist you feel at ease with.

Crowds have left, Holland's all yours

AMSTERDAM (CNS) — The Dutch of this at-once patrician and seedy sort of a place turned 1975 into a memorable year.

Their home, this town that may well be the most popular and sophisticated large village in the world, was having a birthday. So a party was in order.

But it was not just another birthday. It was Amsterdam's 700th anniversary, an occasion calling for grand-scale celebration. And that the burghers had.

Rather than having one big blast on the official anniversary day, Oct. 27, Amsterdammers scheduled a year-long agenda of fairs, concerts, exhibits, restoration projects and other events.

In retrospect, the outstanding feature of this long-winded bash is the after-the-party life of many of the projects created or completed to celebrate the city's birthday.

For example, the fabulous Amsterdam Historical Museum, which opened in October, will no doubt delight millions for years to come.

Visitors came from all over the world to join Amsterdam's party of the century. But now, during the winter months, the crowds are gone. The town's many attractions are, of course, still around, but now you have elbowroom.

It may be nippy, and at times outright cold, but there is a briskness in the air outdoors and a coziness by the fireplaces that are fixtures in most restaurants and homes which you can taste only at this time of the year.

The folks browsing for antiques in the shops on Spiegelstraat, admiring the impressive collection of 17th century paintings of civic guard companies in the glass-domed hall of the Historical Museum, or looking at the latest in clothes, furs, glassware and books in the stores on Kalverstraat turn out to be Amsterdammers during these days when only the trees are scantily dressed—rather than tourists.

And, of course, the so-called off-season is when everything (including air fare!) is cheaper. Though it boasts many inexpensive hotels and restaurants, Amsterdam actually is one of Europe's most expensive cities.

In fact, almost all of Holland—whose citizens enjoy a very high standard of living—can be a rather costly travel experience, however rewarding and memorable.

The enterprising Dutch however, have come up with a dandy program aimed at budget-minded visitors. Conceived a dozen years ago, this season's "Stay on the House in Holland" bonus package can save you anywhere from $85 to $200, depending on the length of your visit.

Available through your travel agent, the new and expanded program is good now through March 31 in Amsterdam, Rotterdam and The Hague. It costs you nothing to get the Stay on the House certificate which you redeem for a book of vouchers in any of the three cities.

The only requirement is that you fly directly to Amsterdam on a scheduled airline (charter passengers do not qualify for this program), or jet home from here if you arrive in Europe through another gateway.

Whether you make Amsterdam your arrival or departure point, these are some of the goodies you can get in exchange for the vouchers in the Stay on the House booklet:

Your first or last hotel night is free in a choice of 15 Amsterdam hotels, seven in elegant The Hauge, one in the charming university town of Leiden, and seven in the modern port city of Rotterdam. In addition, for a $6 surcharge you can live it up and stay in one of 11 deluxe hotels in Amsterdam.

Another coupon gives you free use of a cr, available from any of eight rental companies with offices at Schipol Airport, for one day. Since this is a very compact land, you can get a good taste of the delightful Dutch countryside in a day. You pay for gas, mileage and insurance.

There are also coupons for free sight-seeing tours in each of the host cities.

One tour includes a visit to one of the famous porcelain factories of Delft, near The Hague; another takes in the 17th century port of Delfshaven, one of Holland's most interesting restoration sites.

Free admission to four major museums, including the superlative Rikjksmuseum here; a symphony concert in Rotterdam; several free drinks and snacks, shopping discounts, etc. are to be found in the booklet.

One coupon you should definitely use is one at the beginning of the booklet that reads, "Your free motor-launch cruise along the canals of Amsterdam."

Nothing will help you capture the mood and beauty of this city of fixed bridges, drawbridges, pontoon bridges and whatnot bridges—1,200-plus bridges in all—better than a comfy 75-minute cruise aboard the heated motor launches that putt-putt through the canals.

An excursion launch inches its way through one of the many canals that ring the heart of Amsterdam.

Old castle wants to make a mint!

HALL, Austria (AP) — The 600-year-old Hasegg Castle has a past. They say here it also has a future.

Josef Posch, mayor of Hall, said, "We do not only want to renovate the castle; we want to reactivate it."

He wants it to become a mint again, or at least a mint museum. Renovation now has passed the halfway mark, and work towards reactivation has at least begun.

The huge castle, which dates back to the 13th century, housed a mint from 1477 to 1809. It minted the first European "silver dollar" in 1486.

This clashes somewhat with the general belief that the first taler coin was made in 1518 at Joachims Thal in Bohemia. The word taler was taken to the New World, where it became dollar.

Posch and other Hall town officials said the reason that the Hasegg mint did not get general credit for minting the first big silver coin was because its coin was called guldiner, and thus was confused with the guilder, which at first was principally a gold coin.

This picturesque Tyrolean town has declined since the mint closed and especially when the salt mines ceased operation in 1967.

They started to ask, "Why can't we mint silver coins again?"

The trouble is that the Austrian mint, with all the machinery required for making coins, is located in Vienna and there appeared to be little chance of transferring it to Hall.

But officials here have not given up.

A first step was the minting at Hasegg Castle of Olympic coins in 1975. The 1976 Olympic Winter Games will be held in early February, 1976, at Innsbruck, which is next door to Hall.

Two huge minting machines were moved from Vienna to the historic tower of Hasegg Castle to make the Olympic coins.

Inside of building forms city lure for bird lovers

DURBAN — Natal province in South Africa now has a new oasis for bird lovers — on two floors at 320 West Street, Durban.

More than 50 species of birds from all over the world (but none from South Africa itself) thrive in a huge well-lit enclosure with lush foliage and lots of water for the water birds. Plump Malayan goramis swim around in the pools looking like sizeable carp.

Birdworld, as it is called, is a haven for more than 200 exotic birds in their natural surroundings and from such places as New Guinea, Timor, South America, India, Burma and the Celebes Isles.

Among them are the sulphur-breasted toucan, the scarlet ibis, pekin robin, fairy blue bird, Indian green-wing doves and crown pigeons.

Hong Kong having a ball

STAN DELAPLANE shares big fete

HONG KONG — The Year of the Dragon arrived yesterday. All Hong Kong will be on holiday until Wednesday. Tsao Chun, the kitchen god, has gone to heaven to report to the Jade Emperor. (Tsao Chun keeps an eye on household affairs. What better place than the kitchen?)

For Chinese, the New Year is the best of holidays. Everything rolled into one. We've observed Big Cold Day and Small Cold Day. Lu Pan, the god of carpenters, had a day. It was a good day to get married.

Today is a chancy day. Be careful not to break dishes. Don't spank the children. Don't sweep the floor and don't use needles.

Gung Hay Fat Choy! Happy New Year!

Cameras are a big buy in duty-free Hong Kong. A camera buff tells me: "Best cameras are 25 to 40 per cent cheaper than at home. But bring along a magazine like Popular Photography that has prices for comparison. Sometimes a low price means the shop keeper is offering a look-alike but a last year's model. You have to check model numbers."

Cash is better than credit cards for shopping. In bargaining, you can usually get 5 to 10 per cent further reduction if you say you'll pay in cash.

If you are celebrating the Year of the Dragon over a can of Chung King, put some flowers in the house. Good blooms bring good luck and, at this time, Hong Kong is a flowered city.

At New Year the boss gives a party for his employees. Banquet chicken is served whole. If the head of the chicken points to you, it means you're fired. This keeps everybody nerved up until they go in and look for their place cards. Then everybody falls to heartily. Except the man who is eyeball-to-eyeball with the chicken. He's lost his appetite.

This delicate notice of dismissal is called "pointing the chicken."

"You mentioned the French workman's clothes in the south of France and how they were trendy. Is there some place to buy them except off the workman's back?"

Yes. A friend of mine returned from Paris says: "The big thing on workmen's clothes has been picked up by the department store Samaritaine who has a 'workmen's clothes' section. Not only the faded French blue baggy stuff on the road workers and gardeners. They've put in waiters' jackets. Airport mechanics' overalls. Lab technicians' smocks. Prices are reasonable."

Samaritaine is a couple of blocks from the Place de l'Opera. Don't know what "reasonable prices" means in Paris where the dry martini now goes for $3.50 a pop.

If Samaritaine has gone for trendy work clothes, you can bet Galeries Lafayette and Printemps will have them too.

You might like this Chinese custom: If you have a lazy little boy, put a lantern in his lazy little hand. Put a basket of hard-boiled eggs in the other. You then walk him around the streets crying: "Laziness for sale." When he's sold all his eggs, he will no longer be lazy. Will make his bed without being told and get straight "A's" in school. Happy New Year!

"Speaking of good buys in Hong Kong, what have you bought?"

I used to buy a tailor made suits when they were $50 to $75. Now they're $150 to $200. I can do better at home. Hong Kong tailors are being priced out by rent increases. The most valuable thing in the colony is real estate. A businessman told me: "Last year I paid $40 a month for a downtown parking garage. This year they raised it to $100. But what can I do?"

Gung Hay Fat Choy! The dragon is the most important of the 12 animals in the Chinese lunar calendar. We've just ended the Year of the Rabbit. An admirable animal who goes liperty-loperty, but the best thing you can say about him is he makes love not war.

Dragons are handy fellows around the house if you treat them right. They come five toes, seven toes and nine toes. The more toes, the more power.

Going down south? see your doctor!

VANCOUVER (CP) — If you're planning to travel south this winter, it might be a good idea to see your doctor before and after to avoid the importation of tropical diseases.

Dr. David Hopkins, a Prince Rupert pathologist, said that in the last year six cases of malaria, one of typhoid fever and two of amoebiasis similar to typhoid have been diagnosed in one area of British Columbia and it's likely similar figures exist in other parts of the province.

"Most of the diseases are either brought here by people vacationing in South America, Mexico, Africa, the Middle East or Southeast Asia or by immigrants from those places," he said.

He said vacationers should check with their doctors before they leave to find out which diseases to look out for and to get prescriptions for preventive drugs.

"These drugs should be taken at least a week before departure, during the whole vacation and for a month after returning home," said Dr. Hopkins.

"And it's a good idea to have a full medical examination after the trip."

Dr. Hopkins said some diseases, particularly malaria, can lie dormant in the body.

"So if you're pronounced healthy when you come home but get a fever or nausea or feel ill sometime later, see your doctor immediately and remind him of your holiday."

He said malaria sometimes tends to imitate other diseases, such as flu or colds. Malaria is not contagious and can only be contracted through tropical mosquitoes. Symptoms include irregular fever, headaches and chills, followed by sweating and sometimes drowsiness.

Dr. Hopkins said typhoid and amoebiasis are contagious and generally spread by poor hygiene, unclean surroundings and contaminated water. They can be contracted anywhere in the world.

"But the diseases are more common in hotter climates and unclean countries and are not often seen in Canada."

The symptoms are similar to malaria, but with diarrhea and backache.

Cases of all three diseases must be reported to the provincial department of health, said Dr. Hopkins.

"This way, the public health departments are kept aware of which diseases are where and can warn anybody who goes on holiday."

Dr. Hopkins also said the public should be aware of rabies, which can be contracted most easily in the southern United States and Mexico.

Skinny dippers lure tourists

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Skinny dip tours are turning into money for San Diego.

"San Diego is one of the more popular designations because it is the only city in the country with an official nude beach," said Barry Plaxen, spokesman for Town and Country Travel of Manhattan.

He said 2,000 persons a year are booked on the skinny dip tour. The trip to San Diego and the tour costs New Yorkers $350 to $400.

Last week the city council rejected a recommendation to terminate the city's two-year-old experiment with a legal "swimuit optional" zone on an isolated north city beach.

It's no paradise but peace is heavenly

CAYMAN BRAC (LAT) — Paradise it isn't.

Its beaches aren't particularly attractive. Getting there takes patience. During certain seasons of the year squadrons of mosquitoes fly regular sorties across the entire island.

Certainly other Caribbean sand piles are infinitely more beautiful. But what Cayman Brac lacks in certain creature comforts and sophistication it makes up for with its refreshing peacefulness.

Twelve miles long and mile wide, it lies soaking wet in perfectly clear salt water a couple of air hours out of Miami.

There is but a single hotel on the entire island. Fourteen rooms. Period. That's it, although the owners are presently in the midst of a major expansion program.

They're adding 10 rooms.

They call their property the Buccaneers' Inn, a nondescript, homey shelter on the western end of the island. Fans spin in the ceiling, conjuring up memories of forgotten days and more peaceful un unhurried times. Both shores of the island are visible from the hotel, with green and blue waters reaching all the way to infinity.

Miami or Waikiki? Neither. The legions who join such a pilgrimage would be utterly miserable on Caymn Brac. There is abolutely nothing to do. Well, that's not altogether true. The skin diving is a job, bone fishing is excellent and the skies are mostly clear so that the sun worshipper comes away satisfied.

But nightlife is practically nonexistent. There is very little to speak of. Only a couple of times a week when a calypso band kicks up a fuss at the Buccaneers' Inn.

Or you can hike "downtown" to Hanson's store where upstairs they screen movies. Long forgotten films. Thirty years old, perhaps.

The audience sits in folding chairs and the sea breezes blow in through the windows.

Mostly, visitors to Cayman Brac are content to sit beside the hotel's saltwater pool and enjoy the warmth of the Caribbean sun and the pages of a good novel.

If that isn't satisfying, there are picnic excursions to neighboring Little Cayman Island.

For divers, though, it is Mecca. Whether you explore the depths or snorkel on the surface, the sea surrounding Cayman Brac is a silent, unpolluted world of freedom and fascination.

For divers, the Buccaneers' Inn provides a special package deal which includes hotel room, meals and daily diving trips by boat for $40 a day. The rate is available for groups of 10 or more.

Otherwise a single room with meals come to $32 a day or $55 double (add 20 per cent for tax and gratuities). Something on a grander scale will cost a couple $63 a day, except during the off season when prices drop appreciably.

If you go there you're bound to meet Peter Sanford. He pope up constantly. Genie-like, he appears at the airport to claim your luggage. He also drives the hotel "limo."

It's a three-minute run to the Bunccaneers' Inn where he hurries inside and is waiting to register guests at the reception desk.

Sanford is also the bellman, maitre d', dive master and sometimes bartender.

The proprietors are members of a pioneer family whose ancestors have been on the island for seven generations. Ever since the original clan was shipwrecked during a storm in the 17th century.

Gloriene Scott manages the Buccaneers' Inn. Her family — they're Scottish, Irish, English — tend cattle, sell groceries and operate a rock crusher, among other endeavors.

The liver suffers, though, Cayman Brac's per capita consumption of alcohol is the highest in the Caribbean. At least that's what Glorien Scott is told by liquor distributors who visit the island frequently.

Presently there is a population of 1,203 including the members of eight American families. Among them is a DuPont heir.

Racially, the island is tranquil, the happiest in the Caribbean.

Still, the police force has doubled recently. Before there was one officer. Now there are two. But this was only because traffic is increasing and the roads must be patrolled.

Otherwise, the police have little to do. There is no crime on the island. No burglaries, no robberies, no rapists, no muggers. Only an occasional obstreperous drunk, which is the only time the jail comes to use.

Along with the cocktail shacks there are many churches, and the islanders pay frequent calls to both.

"They are very religious," said Gloriene Scott, "but sometimes I'm afraid they are not so godly."

In the late 20th century Cayman Brac suffers from a lack of natural resources. Once it produced an abundance of coconuts. But the trees were attacked by blight in the early 1900s. And after this a hurricane swept the island clean.

By 1915 barely 300 souls remained.

Even today Cayman Brac's primary export is human life — seamen who go away as youngsters and return old men, having saved enough to secure their retirement.

Now there is this wish for tourism. There is much talk of a jet runway and new hotels and a golf course and tennis courts.

The tourists are needed, they say, to sustain the island. Otherwise the young men will continue to leave home and Cayman Brac's women will continue to brood and be lonely.

It is inevitable that change will come. No doubt a modern air terminal eventually will replace the colorful, ramshackle tin-roofed hut which presently serves arriving visitors.

Big new hotels will rise. Traffic will increase. (Perhaps it will be necessary to double the police force again, who knows?)

If the Caymanians get what they're after — big time tourism — they'll inherit such accompanying negatives as jet noise, big crowds and confusion.

Presently, though, Cayman Brac remains relatively inexpensive, save for gasoline which is $1.30 a gallon.

In the Caribbean there are lovelier islands, but few so peaceful. Go there.

Just don't tell anyone I told you about it.

JERRY HULSE gets away from it all

Prices in Ireland are in our favor

They opened the Buccaneers' Inn 20 years ago with six rooms. This was after Cayman Airways established service to the island. Before this only schooners sailed to Cayman Brac, dropping anchor infrequently to deliver provisions for the handful who lived there.

Even now there is no jet service. Visitors fly from Maiami to Grand Cayman Island by Southern Airways, Cayman Airways or LACSA, the Costa Rican airline. After this the transfer to the old DC-3 prop plane which makes the daily one-hour hop to Cayman Brac.

As for the islanders, occasionally somebody admits to being bored. But there is seldom a cardiac. The pace is too slow for that.

Denis Hanrahan, senior vice president for Aer Lingus, Irish Airlines in the U.S. and anada, is boosting the idea of tours, including the open road freewheeeler, the farmhouse vacation, the Irish Cottage holiday and various combinations of Ireland and Britain including the Dublin-London Theatre Tour. You can stay for one, two or three weeks; go it alone or with a friend, or if you prefer take an escorted tour.

"Above all" notes Hanrahan, "we have selected the tours for their price. We feel that too many people tend to think that Ireland and Britain are as hard hit by inflation as other European destinations. They have inflation, of course, but with the strong dollar value against the pound sterling, Ireland and Britain offer the visitor probably the best buys in Europe today."

He points out that in the past 12 months North American tourists in Ireland have received a 15 per cent bonus on their money. The dollar traded against the pound sterling at $2.40 a year ago and is now $2.03. Thus a visitor will pay $203 this year for £100 as opposed to $240 a year ago.

Hanrahan notes that a one week stay in Ireland with free car, hotel and guesthouse accommodations comes as low as $70 in April and as low as $90 in peak season.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for

By SYDNEY OMARR

Sunday, Feb. 1

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Friendly "intervention" enables you to finish what you start. Accent on increasing outlets for interests, talents. You get what you need if willing to let go of outmoded procedures. Libran and Aquarian are in picture.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): New start in new direction is favored. Accent on achievement, promotion, ability to be more independent, inventive and aggressive. Leo and Aquarius figure prominently. What starts as opposition ends as "helpful challenge."

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with journey, long-distance communication. You feel more secure. You receive needed information. You are more at peace with yourself. One who is spiritual impacts blessings.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Highlight humor, versatility. Deal with Gemini, Sagittarius persons. Dig beneath superficial indications, especially where finances are concerned. Count your change. Expand operations, but be aware of lease, tax, legal and other requirements.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Lie low—play waiting game. Be patient, thorough. Be aware of public relations—and don't affix signature to document without expert counsel. Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio persons figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Light touch is better now than insisting, cajoling or chiding others. Be ready to make intelligent concessions. Thoughtful appraisal of "love" situation is necessary. Be analytical. Take nothing for granted.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): You are happier, more harmonious where surroundings and family are concerned. Creative restlessness is present, but you will find constructive outlet. Young person makes amends for recent mistake.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Refine techniques — define terms, see in light of actuality. Avoid self-deception. Pisces, Virgo could figure prominently. Value of home, real estate or other property could be spotlighted. Don't give up something for nothing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Accent on putting idea into action. Accept more responsibility. Stand tall for principles. Be sympathetic to relative who confides problem. But live your own life—let others know you intend to make the most of your own assets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Accent on evaluating time, motion, costs and possible gains. It might be time to let go of situation that provides tension and little else. Aries, Libra could be in picture. You might locate missing article.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Popularity soars—you can win your way. Assert needs—be independent. Cycle continues high —obstacles are removed. Views are vindicated. Leo individual, who once chided you now will become an ally.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Much that occurs is done in quiet, almost secretive manner. Be discreet—remember obligation to one who might be confined to home, hospital. Aquarius, Scorpio and Leo could be in picture. What appears to be a restrictive influence is but temporary.

IF FEB. 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are independent, creative, popular with opposite sex, somewhat self-centered, determined and stubborn. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. This is to be an outstanding year, with September your most significant month. If single, wedding bells ring.

Astrological Forecast for

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Your natural pioneering qualities surge forward. Take a chance on yourself. Those who express fears, doubts may be jealous, insecure and could be, worried that you will "forget" them. Message will be clarified.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): What you gain is result of co-operation from one who has your best interests at heart. Co-operate with family member, but don't abandon freedoms, independence. Make clear that you do have life of your own to live. Study Aries message.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Diversify — dazzle with humor, wit, ability to utilize material at hand. Emphasis on achievement, winning ways, some delays due to legal technicalities. Be wary about affixing signature to documents. You'll soon get the picture!

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Check details in thorough manner. Prepare for long-range policy, project on solid base. Leave nothing to chance —do homework, familiarize yourself with basic concepts. Aquarius, Taurus and Leo figure prominently.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Be analytical. Refuse to be satisfied that something happened—insist on digging and discovering why it occurred. Gemini, Virgo could be in picture. Emphasis on taxes, investment potential, special understanding involving partner, mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Lie low—wait and observe. Some persons, willing to take risks at your expense, urge you to go on — and on. Key is to be shrewd, mature, to know difference between real friends and those of fair-weather variety.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Study Virgo message; avoid snap decisions. Don't fall for proverbial sob story. Some basic issues are subject to change, revision. Relatives, at this stage of game, want to "revolt." Pisces, Virgo could be featured.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Lunar aspects point to extravagance, taking chances, lovers' quarrels. Know when to draw line. Protect basic interests. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently. Organize priorities. Fun is fun, but fireworks can eventually give one a headache.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Don't attempt to change the world overnight. You have many loose ends to tie. Know it and complete projects. One you loved in past could "get in touch." Be sentimental, not foolish. Be kind, not masochistic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): New approach is necessary, especially where close neighbors, relatives are concerned. Leo, Aquarius could figure prominently. You may be confronted by individual who prefers fantasy to fact. Don't feel you must convert—state truth as you see it. That is all you can do.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Accent on values — personal and professional. Loyalty also is spotlighted—and there could be apparent conflict between duty and family. Key is to be flexible, to open more lines of communication. Informational feedback will aid in resolving dilemma.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): What starts as reprimand ends as accolade. You make comeback—cycle is high and you receive credit for efforts. One "at top" repays favor. Prestige is on upswing. Judgement, intuition combine—you get finger on pulse of public trend.

IF FEB. 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY You are sensitive, loyal, considered psychic by many — others insist you are shrewd, somewhat selfish and capable of manipulating situations and people. You are capable of perceiving trends, of driving a hard bargain when necessary. Capricorn, Cancer persons play important roles in your life. August will be your most significant month this year—and you will gain wider recognition and be rid of losing proposition.

There's an Erie Silence Surrounding Fabled St. Paul's

LONDON (Reuter) — For the first time in three centuries something like eerie silence enfolds St. Paul's Cathedral, London's scenic landmark and symbol of durability.

All traffic except buses has been banned from streets surrounding St. Paul's in a six-month experiment to ease congestion in the crowded commercial heart of London.

But the uncharacteristic calm has been shattered by taxi drivers who protest that the limitation, imposed Nov. 23, makes their work more difficult.

It is the latest controversy in the story of St. Paul's, whose majestic dome, crowned by cupola, golden ball and cross, is a familiar London sight.

The cathedral's foundation was laid June 21, 1675, by Britain's greatest architect, Sir Christopher Wren.

Purists often question its architecture but the old building at the foot of Fleet Street still draws some four million visitors annually.

The blitz days of the Second World War sealed London's love affair with St. Paul's.

It became a symbol of wartime resistance and fighting spirit. Through devastating air raids it stood miraculously untouched, its distinctive dome seemingly swimming atop a sea of flames.

Memories of that wartime inspiration helped evoke a big response to a 1971 appeal for 3 million to save the cathedral from collapse.

After the war, tourists sometimes paid workmen as much as £5 for chunks of souvenir shrapnel lodged in church masonry.

St. Paul's received probably the biggest single anonymous donation ever made in Britain — £1 million — and the smallest as well, a shilling from "13 loyal Scots."

As a showpiece of humanity's piety, intellectual boldness and sometimes excess, St. Paul's has seldom been rivalled.

TOGETHERNESS: It's obvious that this flock of seagulls has never heard of Jonathon Livingston Seagull as they line up on a cable near the Lake Michigan shoreline in Milwaukee.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

CITY OF VICTORIA
FEBRUARY, 1976

MUNICIPAL BY-ELECTION FOR ALDERMAN

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to the Electors of the Municipality of Victoria that I require the presence of the said Electors in Committee Room 1, City Hall, 1 Centennial Square, in the aforesaid City on MONDAY, the NINTH day of FEBRUARY, 1976, at TEN o'clock a.m. for the purpose of electing a person to represent them as to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Alderman Robert Samuel Bawlf and to serve for the residue of his two year term, 1975 and 1976.

The mode of nomination of Candidates shall be as follows:

Candidates shall be nominated in writing by two duly qualified electors of the municipality. The nomination-paper shall be delivered to the Returning Officer at any time between the date of this Notice and TWELVE o'clock noon the day of nomination. The nomination-paper may be in the form prescribed in the "Municipal Act," and shall state the name, residence and occupation of the person nominated, in such a manner as to sufficiently identify such Candidate. The nomination-paper shall be subscribed to by the Candidate.

In the event of a poll being necessary, such poll will be opened at the building known as the Senior Citizens' Activity Centre, 4 Centennial Square, in the City of Victoria aforesaid, on SATURDAY, the TWENTY-EIGHTH day of FEBRUARY, 1976, between the hours of EIGHT o'clock a.m. and EIGHT o'clock p.m. of which every person is hereby required to take notice and govern himself accordingly.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that for those qualified electors signing a statement that they expect to be absent from their voting area on Polling Day or who are for reasons of conscience, prevented from voting on Polling Day or who through circumstances beyond their control, will not be able to attend the poll on Polling Day, an Advanced Poll will be held in the City Clerk's Office, City Hall, Victoria, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY and FRIDAY, 25TH, 26TH and 27TH FEBRUARY, 1976.

Given under my hand at Victoria, British Columbia, this 29th day of January, 1976

F. M. WALLER,
RETURNING OFFICER.

Irish Coffee Honored

SHANNON, Ireland (CP) — A plaque has been unveiled here to the man who invented Irish coffee.

Irish coffee, as it is known throughout the world today, made its first appearance in 1944 when it warmed passengers disembarking from a transatlantic flying boat at Foynes.

Before then the drinking of tea or coffee laced with whisky was quite usual, but on that day at the old flying-boat base on the Shannon Estuary, the recipe of coffee, whisky and sugar topped with whipped cream made its first appearance.

The recipe was devised through trial and error by chef Joe Sheridan, a Dubliner who became the first chef at the terminal when catering operations at the base were taken over from British Overseas Airways in 1943.

One of the first requests made by passengers who had spent some 10 to 15 hours crossing the Atlantic from the United States was for a hot drink. Hot coffee, tea or whisky, and sometimes tea or coffee laced with whisky were served. Then Irish coffee made its memorable appearance.

Sheridan spent five years at the base before emigrating to the U.S. He worked in San Francisco, Las Vegas and Honolulu and died in Midway Island in 1962.

The subsequent world-wide popularity of Irish coffee was credited to American writer Stanton Delaplane, who informed millions of readers about Irish coffee through his syndicated columns.

It soon appeared at many fashionable establishments throughout the U.S. and Canada, most notably at the Bona Vista restaurant in San Francisco, which became a rendezvous for Irish coffee drinkers.

Speaking at the unveiling of the plaque, Brendan O'Reagan, chairman of Shannon Development, the non-profit corporation entrusted with developing Ireland's mid-west region, described Sheridan as "a singularly imaginative man."

Irish coffee fans will drink to that.

Crocks in Cellar

LATINA, Italy (Reuter) — A 33-year-old man, who kept 150 crocodiles in an underground pool at his villa, has been charged with cruelty to animals. Police said he sold the crocodiles to a local butcher who killed them for skins.

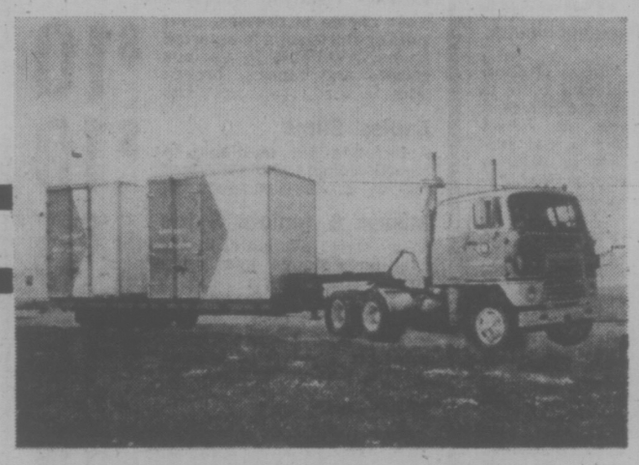
take a look at this vehicle . . .



it's a moving van, right?

Wrong. It's the latest thing in long-distance moving. It's called Domestic Container Service

WHAT'S THAT, YOU SAY?

Domestic Container Service is a form of unitized moving. Shippers and transport companies have been doing it 20 years. Now *United Van Lines has introduced this accepted concept to domestic moves. It results in on-time loading and delivery and eliminates unnecessary handling of furniture.

THIS NEW WAY OF MOVING:
- DECREASES COSTS
- PROVIDES BETTER SERVICE
- REDUCES DAMAGE
- REDUCES FRUSTRATIONS, UNEASINESS

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO YOU?

- On-Time Loading and Delivery. No other person's shipment can interfere with your loading date and time.
- Reduced Transit Time. There is no delay in transit caused by the need to "fill out" a furniture van.
- Complete Security. Your household goods are enclosed in strong, waterproof, tested fibreglas containers—by themselves. Each customer has own container or containers.
- Less Handling. Once your goods are loaded, wrapped in Sanitized furniture pads, they are sealed in, not disturbed until you break the seal at your new residence.
- Exclusive use of containers means more protection for you and your family. Your goods are not mixed with someone elses'. All our containers and pads are sanitized frequently to ensure your safety.
- Defined Responsibility. Places the responsibility for loading, transporting and unloading where it belongs—with your United member at origin and destination.
- Air-Ride Transportation. Air-ride suspension trailers menas your containers are gentled from one place to another.
- Computer Control. Computer knows where your container is at all times, tells us when delivery will take place—for sure.

this is the way we move you long distance now:

1. All household goods are packed and prepared for transportation in the normal manner;
2. On loading day United's container loading specialists arrive with specially-designed containers, clean, Sanitized and locked;
3. The ease of loading will please you, and if you wish, a seal will be provided that you yourself can seal the container doors with;
4. Your container shipment is gently handled by fork-lift from the local container *trailer onto the highway container-trailer;

Chinese Year Begins

Burdened by winter rains, thoughts of car insurance premiums, tax returns?

Take heart — it's new year's day today in the Year of the Dragon and better times are on the way.

By the Chinese lunar calendar we've just entered the year 4674, symbolized by the celestial dragon, bearer of peace and prosperity, symbol of life and growth.

But . . . a note of caution. The ancient Chinese almanac warns those born during a dragon year that while they'll be healthy and ennergetic, they'll also be short-tempered, excitable and stubborn.

The sages say dragon people have strong likes and dislikes, are somewhat fastidious, lack tact and worry a good deal for no good reason.

As for the rest of us, a dragon year can lead to great changes and it's wiser to refrain from undertaking new ventures, moving or changing occupations.

History suggests there's something to all that. During the last dragon year, in 1964, the Soviet presidium ousted Nikita Khrushchev, China exploded its first atomic bomb.

The dragon is the fifth of 12 animal symbols in the zodiac. In order, they are the rat, ox, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, rooster, dog and pig.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Dennis R. Tabish of Courtenay, who pleaded guilty to escaping from the minimum security camp at Jordan River on Jan. 25, was sentenced by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Friday to five more months in jail.

The court was told he was serving time for forgery, uttering a forged cheque and breach of probation.

He was due to be released on April 27, 1977.

Tabish said he left the Jordan River centre because of marital problems.

The judge noted there are several types of institutions and programs for prisoners.

"This is a good thing, but there are too many escapes from certain types of institutions," he said.

Anthony Lambert, 51, of 215 Oswego, pleaded not guilty to a charge of bigamy. He chose a trial before a judge and was remanded to April 8 for preliminary hearing.

John Edward Murphy, 17, of 1017 Balmoral, and Lars Walter Fenske, 17, of 1580 Pembroke, pleaded guilty to a joint charge of loitering at night Thursday near a home at 1003 Redfern. The owner was in hospital.

They were also charged with attempted break-in of a home and possession of housebreaking instruments.

They were remanded for a week for further hearing on that charge and possible sentence for loitering. Bail was set at $500.

James Reid, 41, of 138 Robertson, pleaded guilty to wilful damage and was fined $50 and ordered to pay $30 for repairs to a door.

The charge arose when Reid went to a home at 2531 Dowler in search of his 15-year-old daughter who had left a school dance with a friend.

The court was told that he hit the arm of the man in charge of the resident with a bat, and later battered the door with an axe handle. Reid denied hitting anyone with a bat.

William Harkness, 24, no fixed address, was remanded one week to consult a lawyer after he appeared on a charge of theft of a car.

Judge Ostler asked the court probation officer to find a place for Harkness because he had no home. The officer said the Salvation Army was willing to take him.

But Harkness mumbled he would not go.

"I just don't like it," he said.

"There are entirely too many prima donas this week . . . either enter into the recognizance or take your choice and stay in jail, Ostler said.

Darlene May Cadorin, 18, of Nanaimo, facing a charge of forgery, also refused to be released on her own recognizance to live with her father.

Ostler said: "It is not satisfactory that she should dictate where she is to go. I'm not prepared to have her dictate to the court. She can stay in custody or she can obey the orders of the court and I don't mind which she does."

Pretty, 22-Year-Old Recommends Plural Marriages

Victoria Times
SATURDAY, JANUARY 31, 1976 37
FOURTH SECTION

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Monogamous marriage is a major cause of unhappiness in America, says Joan Joseph, one of more than a dozen wives of polygamist Alex Joseph.

"Where do divorce, illegitimacy, adultery and other miseries come from? They come from a monogamous society," said the pretty, 22-year-old college dropout from Montana.

"If a monogamous marriage, you can sluff along. But plural marriage is a life style that forces you to either fail miserably or succeed. I like putting myself on that kind of line."

Joan and more than a dozen other young women live with Alex, a 39-year-old ex-marine, ex-cop and ex-Mormon who leads his own religious cult in the southern Utah desert.

Joseph, who was excommunicated from the mormon church for his belief in polygamy, lives most of the time in Glen Canyon City, a dusty construction town on the Utah-Arizona line. He operates a cafe, curio shop and business.

In an interview, Joan described life in her polygamous family and how she became part of it.

Plural marriages force family members to get along and liberates them to develop their own interests, says Joan. Each shares in the work.

"But we have the freedom to be what we want — more freedom than in a monogamous marriage. We respond to the work according to our talents.

One of the girls is a former law student and handles Joseph's legal affairs. Several are good seamstresses. Another likes animals and tends the livestock. Joan said she likes to write and do art work, so she handles the family's correspondence.

Joan denied there is any jealousy among the wives, but admitted there is competition for Alex's attention.

"But it's not a destructive competition," she said. "You learn very quickly you can't quarrel. It makes for too much unhappiness.

"Alex (as the wives call him) has favorites. He is a fair man and he favors those who help him the most."

Some wives haven't been able to cope with the arrangement and have left the family, she added. And Joseph asked one to leave.

"She refused to believe that Alex was Alex. She wanted to have a monogamous relationship," Joan explained.

Alex sleeps with all of his wives, one at a time, and his principal goal is to produce children, she said.

"We don't do weirdo things and we are not lesbians," she added.

"He sleeps with everybody and it's a healthy, generative union. That's what marriage is. My highest ambition is to have a child by Alex."

Joseph has fathered six children in five years of plural marriage and a seventh is on the way.

"That's not many," Joan conceded. "But then how long did Abraham wait for Isaac? It wasn't for lack of practice."

Joseph preaches a strict moral code for his followers, forbidding abortion and contraception. Although polygamous men in his sect have a variety of bed partners, women do not have the same privilege.

Wives must remain faithful to their husbands, and they apparently want it that way.

"If you had any idea how aware we are of Alex's superiority, you would shrivel up," Joan said. "We see no better examples of manhood anywhere."

The polygamist receives an average of three letters a week from women all over the United States proposing marriage.

He also receives a lot of threats from people who disapprove of his lifestyle and he usually packs a gun for self-defense.

"His wives marry him knowing they are candidates for widowhood," Joan said. "But I would rather be Alex's widow than anybody else's wife.

"I met Alex through Eric Lassen, a former assistant professor of philosophy at Montana State University, in 1972. He kept telling me about this amazing guy who was living all the things he, Eric, wanted to do," she recalled.

Lassen took her to a picnic with Joseph and other polygamists and later proposed to her.

"I was engaged to another guy," she said. "I agonized over what to do, but the more I thought about it, the more polygamy seemed the best thing."

But she turned Lassen down after he married her sister.

Then came more meetings with Joseph.

"I spent two nights of intense talk with Alex and another wife, discussing religion and polygamy. Two days later, I was engaged.

Three weeks after that, she dropped out of school following completion of her fourth quarter and went to California to marry the polygamist.

Joseph has married all his wives in religious ceremonies performed by members of the sect, instead of in civil ceremonies, in order to avoid prosecution under bigamy laws.

Joan says the number of wives living in the family is vague because some are not permanent residents, coming and going when they are able. Some have jobs in nearby towns and keep their identities secret so they will not lose them.

But about a dozen of the girls live in Joseph's home at Glen Canyon City — working in his cafe, the Red Desert Inn, or collecting the herb ginseng, which grows wild in the surrounding countryside.

The family earns a major part of its income by selling Indian jewelry to tourists and ginseng under the brand name Cocochi to health food stores.

Some Asiatic cultures believe ginseng acts as a cleansing agent in the body, restoring youth and working as an aphrodisiac.

"It is the most valuable herb in the world," Joan said. "It's an aphrodisiac in the sense that it makes your body clean running. It cleans your blood."

According to Joan, her husband preaches a brand of religion based on the teachings of Joseph Smith, the founder of the Mormon church, Smith and other early Mormons practised polygamy, but the church repudiated the practice in the 1890s when Utah was seeking statehood.

Sweeps Speculation 'Totally Untrue'

DUBLIN (AP) — The Irish Sweepstakes are in no danger of folding, the organizer, Hospital Trust, says.

A spokesman dismissed as "totally untrue" speculation the sweepstakes face closure because of financial trouble.

"The four yearly sweeps continue to gross between $25 million and $28 million a year," he said.

The speculation resulted from the Hospital Trust's admission that ticket sales for the quarterly sweepstakes, based on four major British and Irish horse races, have been hurt badly by inflation and competition from state lotteries in North America.

Hospital Trust has applied to the Irish government to set up a national weekly lottery based on greyhound racing, run independently from the four horse races, to increase the take.

The trust gives 30 per cent of its take to Irish hospitals and claims to have donated more than $500 million since the sweepstakes were launched in 1930.

A Quick Thinker

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A police officer here says that jaywalkers must be the most imaginative offenders of the law. When the officer arrested a man for jaywalking, the straight-faced offender insisted that he thought the Don't Jaywalk sign was an advertisement for the bus company.

CAREER SALES TRAINING

Recent changes in market conditions demand a professional approach to the selling of real estate. Tight money trends can limit sales for those who lack the tools of the progressive real estate company.

Block Bros., western Canada's largest realtor, will train you in modern professional marketing methods that are a proven success.

Management opportunities arise from time to time within the company and the training offered to our staff is an asset competing for those positions.

If real estate is your career, our training methods can assist you in reaching your goal.

REALTORS

If your present job isn't making you the kind of money you feel you're worth, now is the time to move into real estate with Excel Realty. An interview will convince you that you do have a better opportunity to become a success with Excel and the reasons are simply this:
1. We supply the listings; you get the commission.
2. Maximum team work — unlimited leads.
3. No waiting for commission.
4. Profit sharing plan and pension fund.

At Excel we work as a team — ask our realtors, they will tell you; we're building a new kind of togetherness, it's great — it's fun, and we're all making money. So drop in, have coffee, meet me personally; my name is ANN PHONSE president of Excel, and I sure would like one or two sales ladies to join my team of all male realtors. So call me soon — just for fun. Call me now at 386-7733. You may be pleasantly surprised with our togetherness approach.

LADY WISHES RIDE TO AND from Esquimalt Legion Bingo, Tuesday and Thursday night. Will share gas. Quadra-McKenzie area. 386-7614.

BUSINESSMAN SEEKS YOUNG lady, 30ish, for discreet afternoon meetings. Confidence assured. Victoria Press Box 513.

MALE WISHES FEMALE OR male to share room in Honolulu March 1. Victoria Press Box 414.

WHO CARES IF YOU ARE pregnant? Birthright does. Phone 384-1431.

39 PERSONALS

WHERE ARE THE NICE GIRLS? Just opened a business here, only to find after 5 p.m. stimulating conversation and sincerity gets lost in cabarets. I'm 29-years-old, sharp looking guy who enjoys good food, music, dancing, sailing, etc. A giver gets hurt, sometimes however real "in love" is worth a chance. Take a minute and reply to Victoria Press Box 392. The meeting will be fun.

ALEXANDER FRANCIS "Sandy" Gammie. Would the above named Sandy Gammie, age 22, or anyone knowing his recent whereabouts, please contact his sister, Mrs. Judy Samson, 1075 Holt Road, Kamloops, British Columbia, or phone collect to Kamloops, British Columbia, 376-9384. This is a matter of some urgency and personal concern.

I, JOHANNES WILHELMUS Franciscus Boudewyn, also known as John William Frank Boudewyn, of 2555 A. Blackwood Street, Victoria, British Columbia, will not be responsible for any debts occuring in my name after this date, without my written permission.

LADY, ATTRACTIVE? SERIOUS, many interests, early sixties, would like to meet gentleman 65-70 approx. with a pleasant serious character, for companionship and outings, who would make an exception answering this ad. Victoria Press Box 327.

VERY LONELY REFINED FAther, lovely children — 2 boys, 2 girls, would like to meet lonely mother, 20-35, slim (welfare OK), with one or two children, for companionship and love for all. Photo appreciated. No triflers please. Victoria Press Box 416.

EDUCATED, ACTIVE MAN 5'7", 47, invites companionship of intelligent, healthy, attractive lady, 30-47, non-smoker. Voice, culture, mother, identical twin, prized characteristics. Victoria Press Box 377.

THERE ARE MANY SWINGING couples in Victoria. Our group would like to meet you at our social. Couples 20 to 50 invited. P.O. Box 123.

MAN 27, WISHES TO MEET INtelligent easy-going and sensitive young lady 24-30. One child OK. Confidence respected. Please write Victoria Press Box 417.

MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS CAN BE cured if diagnosed early. 652-2392.

GETTING TO YOU?
Let us ease the pain with an Economy IMPORT or small DOMESTIC (If we have any) from our Super Selection. Remember, Insurance is only ONE factor in automobile ownership.

75 VOLVO 145 WAGON, automatic, a beauty, in Dark Blue with rich Burgundy interior. Custom Roof-Rack, CIBIE HEADLIGHTS and accessory Fog Lights, Custom Hitch (never used) and radio. One SCOTTISH owner for 9000 miles, some Warranty still left — '75 Fiat 128 3 Door Wagon, keeps the kids corralled in safety, huge luggage area courtesy of FRONT WHEEL DRIVE. One fanatical Fiat owner (traded on an X1-9). Only 2600 miles. PIPPIN RED with oatmeal interior. Lots of warranty. BIG BIG savings on new 76 prices — 74 Fiat X1-9 Bertone. GORGEOUS Red exterior with black decal stripe, wheel trims, wheel arch protectors, radio. MID-ENGINE, POP-TOP, SEXY WEDGE. — 74 Austin Marina 2 door coupe with console automatic. Deep BURGUNDY with fitted side moulding (not the stick-on) radio and wheel embellishers. 2000 MILES only from new retired DR., owner purchased a new LANCIA BETA — in the low priced area we have a 1970 Cortina, 2 door 4 speed only 38,000 MILES. Just tested (has the new round 76 sticker). Gift price of $1295, also a 63 FORD GALAXIE, 4 door, 6 cylinder (economy!) 3 speed, just great transportation, long test sticker and good rubber. Only $295.

T. L. C. NEEDED!

Tender-loving care is needed to realize the full potential of this charming vine-covered bungalow in Sidney. It has 5 bedrooms. The 2 in the attic are 'head crackers' for tall people, but the others are good size. There is only one bathroom, the smallest I have ever seen, but there is a comfortable sauna. A nice entrance hall with slate floor, a beamed ceiling living room with antique pot belly stove and a lovely large dining room with fireplace are some of the plusses. There is also a large studio and a small, hide-away den. Some alterations and maintenance are needed. The property is just over one ac. very secluded and produces some delicious fruits. This M.L. 14128 has terrific future potential! Asking $23,000 cash to $54,000 mortgage.

Shipyard Gears For $5M Refit

Conversion of a Norwegian offshore drilling ship for work in the Canadian Arctic will be done at Yarrows shipyard at a cost of about $5 million, general manager Donald Challinor said today.

The yard will require about 150 additional tradesmen for the rush job scheduled to start with arrival of the Mv Havdrill from the North Sea about March 15, in order to ready the ship for Arctic service in July. Completion target is June 23.

"We're anticipating bringing some from Vancouver," said Challinor, who expects qualified men in various shipyard trades may be hard to find.

"It will be a real challenge for Yarrows employees to do such a job on a rush basis," he added.

Some of the steel work is already under way at Yarrows' sister yard Burrard Dry Dock Co., North Vancouver.

Challinor said the contract on behalf of Dome Petroleum's subsidiary, Canadian Marine Drilling (CANMAR), will provide Yarrows with a "shot in the arm".

The 500-foot ship also will be changed from Norwegian to Canadian registry, entailing alterations to meet anti-pollution standards, and it will undergo a four-year survey of engines, boilers, bows and propellers required by underwriters to meet classification standardss.

Challinor said most of the work will be in steel fabrication and pipefitting.

The hull must be widened with the addition of sponsons, and strengthened internally with reinforcing members.

Two additional boilers will be added and all living and working accommodation insulated.

The ship was designed to operate in waters affected only by wind, waves and currents, with automated position control that would keep it on station over a drill hole. Four transverse thrusters in its bow enabled it to do this, but these will be not be affective in ice.

A system of heavy anchors will be installed to replace the function of bow thrusters while the vessel is in ice, and the conversion will include installation of four large winches and underwater fairing for anchor leads.

CANMAR has only about 120 days to conduct exploratory drilling in the Beaufort Sea region because of ice and weather restrictions.

Three drilling support ships recently completed for CANMAR by Burrard and Yarrows shipyards are berthed in the Inner Harbor awaiting assignment to northern duty within two weeks. This will include towing, supplying and fending off floating ice after drilling commences.

Havdrill's large drilling rig will be partly dismantled when the ship gets here. This was necessary to allow it to pass under bridges in the Panama Canal.

Leper Aid Cash Not Deductible

The Better Business Bureau said Friday a Montreal organization soliciting donations in Victoria to help lepers in India is misleading the public.

Manager Bill Tindall said the organization, Help for the Lepers (Canada) Inc. is claiming that donations are tax deductible when they are not.

He said he was advised by the federal income tax office that the tax exemption registration number for the organization was revoked in January, 1975.

Despite that, the organization is continuing to issue receipts which claim the donations may be used as a tax deduction.

Tindall said one such receipt was turned into his office by a Victoria resident who had donated $25. It was dated Jan. 7, 1976.

Tindall said he has asked the BBB's Canadian headquarters to investigate the organization.

The organization came to the bureau's attention earlier this month when a circular was sent to Colquitz Junior Secondary School advertising a "Care and Cure" campaign which began Nov. 4 and ends this Easter.

An accompanying brochure says an offering of $25 "ensures recovery" and means "one leper can be treated for one year and cured."

"Just from a layman's point of view the statement seems contradictory," said Tindall.

The brochure also says schools contributing to the organization will receive "our heartfelt thanks and a beautiful certificate."

It adds: "Our young students were kindhearted in the 1974-75 campaign with the tremendous competition throughout Canada."

ADVERTISERS DO YOU HAVE AN IMAGE?

• I DON'T KNOW. WHAT DO YOU MEAN — DO I HAVE AN IMAGE?"

A good advertising image is a mental picture that reflects the kind of merchandise or service being offered for sale. For example: A quality furniture store should LOOK like a quality furniture store not a bargain hunter's paradise. And a budget priced store should always look like what it IS — so that it attracts the kind of people who are looking for the kind of merchandise it sells.

• YOU MEAN THE RITZ SHOULDN'T LOOK LIKE JOE'S DINER?

That's exactly what we mean. And Joe's Diner shouldn't look like The Ritz either.

• HOW DO I GET AN IMAGE?

Well, first, you decide what kind of store you are — what sort of people you're appealing to, and then you design all your advertising to fit. You stick to the same style, so that people recognize your ad as YOURS as soon as they see it.

• WHAT'S THE ADVANTAGE?

Well, like we said — you attract the right kind of customer to begin with. You're not going to sell a $900 dining suite to someone who's looking for a 79.95 kitchen set anyway, so why waste your advertising dollars? And people who want elegant dining facilities are going to be disappointed if all you serve is chili-burgers for 1.69

• ANYTHING ELSE?

Yes. By seeing your company advertise in a consistent manner, the public learns to gain confidence in YOUR firm. It establishes YOU in the mind of the people as a reliable, ongoing firm that knows its business — one that is going to be there to stand behind what it sells for years to come.

• BUT I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT DESIGNING ADS. THEN WHAT?

That's what your two daily newspapers can do for you. We have a team of sales people who've been in the business a long time. They are trained to advise you on your budget. And, backing them up, is a team of artists and copy-writers who are trained to design an advertising campaign that will reflect your image and up your profits by increasing your business at a sure, steady rate.

• WHAT IS AN ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN ANYWAY?

That's a planned series of advertisements designed to do a specific job. It's the only way to advertise effectively. You establish your goals; our account representative brings them to the creative people; who work out the best way to reach your target. They use their imagination and their knowhow to think up something especially for you.

• HOW DO I KNOW I'LL LIKE IT?

You're given an artist's rough of your ad campaign so you can discuss it with others in your firm, and with your account rep. before you start the series. And re-vamp if necessary. Then, you get proofs of your ads after they've been typeset and the art is in place.

• HOW DO I KNOW I CAN AFFORD IT?

Because your account rep. knows your business; he knows what your advertising budget should be, based on your volume and what your cost-to-sell figures should be. So, when the creative department designs your ads, these figures are borne in mind so that the amount of space you buy fits in with what you can afford.

• BUT ISN'T IT EXPENSIVE TO HAVE THIS SPECIAL TREATMENT?

It costs no more than just buying space. Our creative team has books and books of headings, borders, drawings, sketches, and many different type styles to utilize. They are creative people who can put these things to good use for your benefit at no extra charge. They'll make up a series of ads that reflect the image you want to create, so that your ads are YOURS and YOURS ALONE.

Talk to one of the helpful account representatives at Victoria's two daily newspapers soon

USC Sets Record

The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada annual campaign in the Capital district has officially closed with a record total — $23,928.56.

That's almost $3,000 more than last winter's record result and just shy of the $25,000 target for the campaign just finished.

The USC, a federally chartered charitable organization led by Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, has no denominational ties. It has been pumping assistance into deprived countries, mainly for the benefit of children, for 30 years.

Since the Victoria Times began sponsoring the Cup-of-Milk campaign in 1953, local residents have contributed over a quarter-million dollars in food, milk, self-help programs and used clothing.

PUBLIC SECTOR WORKERS

Strike Curbs Eyed

OTTAWA (CP) — Strict measures to curtail illegal strikes and lockouts in public service contract disputes are proposed in the draft report of a special Parliamentary committee studying employer-employee relations in the federal public service.

The Citizen says that the confidential draft report recommends fines as high as $250,000 for unions representing workers in essential services if those employees walk off their jobs. Public servants in jobs designated as essential services by the treasury board do not have the right to strike.

Liberal MP Hal Herbert Vaudreuil, a co-chairman of the joint Commons-Senate committee, said that the draft report has not yet been approved by committee members "so I imagine there will be a number of additions and possibly some deletions."

The report endorses the principle of collective bargaining in the public service and says that unions should continue to have the right to choose between compulsory arbitration or the conciliation-strike route in contract disputes.

But there is a need "for additional limitations and more appropriate remedies for unlawful activity."

The designation of essential government services — now covering those working in jobs involving the safety and security of the public — should be expanded to include factors of health and the protection of property.

The report further recommends that the president of the Privy Council be empowered to refer a contract dispute to an inquiry commission for investigation. Such a body might have the authority to determine what effect the strike is having on the public interest.

There have been more than 50 unlawful strikes since federal employees gained collective bargaining rights in 1967, the report says.

"When the public interest becomes adversely affected, government and Parliament should be prepared to intervene."

Thumping Trade Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada lost $795 million in international trade in 1975 — a sharp reversal from the surplus of $1.52 billion in 1974, figures released Friday show.

The dramatic turnaround in Canada's trade picture produced the first full-year deficit in merchandize trade since 1960.

Statistics Canada reported the value of goods exported to foreign countries rose two per cent to $33.106 billion. But the total paid for imports jumped by 10 per cent to $33.901 billion.

Sales of crude oil, copper ores, lumber and non-ferrous metals dropped substantially from 1974 levels.

At the same time, there were hefty boosts in the value of imported automotive and related products — up by more than $1 billion — and machinery, as well as increases in coal and raw sugar purchases.

Oil imported during 1975 for Eastern Canadian consumers cost $650 million more than in 1974, but the agency said most of this resulted from further price increases.

The actual volume of both exports and imports was down from 1974 levels while prices were up in both cases.

The volume of exports dropped eight per cent, but the volume of imports was down only five per cent. The prices Canada received for exports were up an average of 10.5 per cent but the prices paid for imports jumped by an average of 16 per cent.

The total value of exports in 1975 was up two per cent from 1974. This compares with a jump of 27 per cent in 1974 from the previous year.

On the import side, purchases from the U.S. rose 10.5 per cent from 1974, and those from the United Kingdom and the six EEC countries increased nine per cent.

Oil Export Cut Means More Puget Tankers

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Federal Energy Administration admitted Friday that new rules allocating dwindling Canadian oil imports will increase tanker traffic in Puget Sound.

The FEA said there will have to be four or five additional 60,000-ton tankers bringing oil into the area every three months to make up for reduced Canadian imports. This will begin in March.

Canada had asked the FEA to take special account of the peril to the British Columbia environment if tanker traffic increased, raising the risk of a major oil spill.

But the FEA has at least temporarily rejected Canada's plea, made by the federal government in an aide-memoire to the State Department.

The FEA also rejected similar pleas by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and by Washington State.

The EPA had urged first priority allocation of Canadian oil to refineries in the Puget Sound area.

"The FEA has carefully considered the environmental and energy impacts and has concluded on balance that for at least the first six months such special consideration is not warranted," the new rules state.

After six months, the FEA said, it will review the situation.

The first priority for Canadian oil will go to refineries with no other source of supply. These are mainly in the "northern tier" of border states such as Minnesota, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Montana. Washington State refineries are considered capable of getting alternate supplies from Alaska or other tanker routes.

The Canadian National Energy Board has been allocating the oil imported by the U.S. and will continue to do this for the first three months of the year. But in March, the new FEA rules will come into effect.

The FEA said this will mean that Puget Sound refineries have to find about 20,000 barrels of oil a day from other sources.

This would be the equivalent of four or five additional tankers arriving every three months, the FEA said.

"Such an increase in tanker traffic does not give rise to more than an extremely low risk of an oil spill," the FEA claimed.

NEWS BRIEFS

Irving Contract To Administrator

OTTAWA (FP) — In its first such action, the Anti-Inflation Board yesterday referred the labor settlement at Irving Pulp and Paper Ltd., Saint John, N.B., to the administrator for action. The administrator is responsible for imposing penalties under the anti-inflation legislation.

The Irving settlement with 475 members of the Canadian Paperworkers Union provided for an increase in total compensation of 23.8 per cent in the first year.

Olympic Go-Ahead

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — The International Olympic Committee confirmed today the Montreal Olympics would open July 17 as planned. The IOC's nine-man executive board questioned Dr. Victor Goldbloom, the Quebec public affairs minister, for 10 hours fore deciding to go ahead.

House Starts Rose

VANCOUVER (CP) — Preliminary statistics released Thursday by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. say housing starts in urban British Columbia more than doubled in December, 1975, compared with 1974. The study said 2,780 units were started in 19 urban centres last December, compared with 1,331 in 1974.

No IRA 'Blackmail'

LONDON (AP) — British authorities will let a hunger-striking Irish Republican Army guerrilla die before giving in to "blackmail," says Home Secretary Roy Jenkins.

"I wish no one to starve themselves to death, but I am not going to give in to blackmail," Jenkins said in a television interview Friday, referring to IRA threats to bomb British cities if 34-year-old Frank Stagg dies.

$89,000 for Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — A one-shot advertising campaign to tell 6,500 companies they must file certain financial reports to the anti-inflation board by Feb. 27 cost the board $89,000, a board official said today.

The advertisements appeared in about 200 daily newspapers on Thursday, advising companies they could pick up the required forms at national revenue offices.

Fire Kills Woman

VANCOUVER (CP) — Collette Cayer, about 45, was killed Friday night in a fire that gutted the living room of her home about 6:30 p.m. Police said that the fire was believed to have been caused by a cigarette that had been smouldering in a chesterfield.

CIA 'Paid $74M'

TURIN, Italy (AP) — The newspaper La Stampa says the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency paid $74 million to Italian politicians since 1948, most of it to Premier Aldo Moro's Christian Democrats.

GOT A LIGHT?

Puffing away on the award-winning total of 35 stogies is Paul Mears, champion of the University of Winnipeg's annual cigar-smoking contest. Last year's mark was 32 and contest officials say both are world records.

U.S. Satisfied On Gander

WASHINGTON (CP) — United States officials say they are basically satisfied with information they have been given by Ottawa about the use of the Gander, Nfld., airport by Cuban aircraft flying to and from Angola.

State department spokesman John Trattner said late Friday: "I believe it (the flights issue) has been solved."

Canadian authorities are reported to have told their American counterparts that unscheduled stops by two Cuban aircraft this month had no direct military connection with the Angolan civil war and that Cuba has been warned against using the base for military purposes.

Meanwhile, military experts here, who asked not to be quoted directly, said that statements by Canadian officials that only two Cuban planes have made unscheduled landings this year tend to understate the situation.

They said Cuba was ferrying a lot of men and equipment to Angola late last year, using numerous airports and planes that were registered in other countries.

Several U.S. officials said they had hoped to keep the whole affair of the landings on a strictly confidential basis between the two governments.

State department officers took issue with a Canadian Press report which said the U.S. had formally asked Canada for information on the Cuban lights. They said the request had been informal. The officials said contacts between the two countries had not been intensive.

Officials indicated, however, their earlier concern had been borne out by Canada's acknowledgement that Cuban aircraft going to and from the area of Angola-torn by a civil war in which Cuba is involved — had in fact landed at Gander.

Temperature Plummets In Europe

LONDON (AP) — Seven women police cadets were trapped in a tent on blizzard-swept Dartmoor in southwest England today as Western Europe experienced its coldest weather in four years.

The conditions turned the sea to ice off southeast England, freezing gales battered ships in the English Channel, and at least four persons perished in Britain and France, authorities reported.

The seven trapped women were cut off from rescue by deep snowdrifts after they collapsed exhausted during a hike across the desolate moor, police said.

An RAF helicopter rescued a pregnant woman from a snowbound village in a 70 mile-an-hour blizzard near Dartmoor and was almost blown out of the sky, an air force spokesman said.

"It covered eight miles in 40 minutes," he said. "If the winds had been any stronger, the chopper would have been flying backwards."

Weather experts in London forecast the big freeze will continue with snow, sleet and gales for another week.

7-LEAGUERS A JUMP AWAY

MOSCOW (UPI) — A couple of graduates of an aviation institute have come up with a new idea in low-flying devices: motorized boots.

The newspaper Pravda said the boots still are considered unsafe for human legs — they have so far been tested only with an iron rod inside — but appear to be a feasible proposition given further development.

Like the storied seven league boots, the new footwear will propel a man in giant three-yard strides at a speed of up to 15 miles an hour, Pravda said.

Stepping on the heel produces compression of gasoline which is then ignited, propelling a latter-day Mercury almost one foot into the air with a pressure of more than 1,200 pounds.

Pravda said this is less than the heel pressure produced by a triple jumper in athletics. The technique for using the boots would be similar to that used in the triple jump, except that the wearer would be able to make as many as 100 jumps a minute.

"A person wearing these boots could run for hours behind a tram, neither lagging behind nor getting tired, in spite of the fact that each boot weighs more than six pounds," Pravda said. But it warned, "special coaching would be needed."

Pravda said the boots could be used by shepherds, rural mailmen, geologists and tourists.

"Quite possibly, a new form of sports competition might be born," it said.

Ginnell Threatens Boycott

Pat Ginnell, owner-manager-coach of Victoria Cougars, is threatening to boycott a Western Canada Hockey League game Feb. 8 in Kamloops after learning a charge of assault causing bodily harm was laid there Friday against Cougar Archie Henderson.

Failure to appear would mean forfeiture of the $5,000 performance bond each team is required to post at the beginning of each season guaranteeing an appearance at each scheduled game.

The assault charge stemmed from a fight during a game last Sunday in Kamloops in which Larry Lestander of the Chiefs received a concussion after Henderson allegedly punched him in the face.

Crown prosecutor Bob Hunter of Kamloops said the warrant would not be served on Henderson until the Cougars return for the scheduled game Feb. 8.

"We won't be there unless that charge is lifted," Ginnell insisted, adding he has called for an emergency meeting of WCHL governors to discuss the situation.

"It could really open up a can of worms right across Canada," Ginnell said, adding that "every lawyer in the country will be at games trying to represent players who think they have been assaulted."

Lawyer Ellis Achtem has been asked to represent Henderson, who received a three-game suspension from league president Ed Chynoweth earlier this week as a result of the fracas.

Lestander, who was released from hospital Monday, scored two goals against visiting New Westminster Bruins on Wednesday and scored once Friday night against the visiting Winnipeg Clubs.

NOOSE VOTE FREE

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Friday a free vote will be held on capital punishment after the government presents an abolition bill to the Commons next month.

A free vote means that members of Parliament do not have to vote along party lines.

Allmand indicated he would prefer a vote along party lines but said a free vote on capital punishment has become a House tradition in the last 10 years.

"If we can win a free vote, it has more credibility, I suppose," he said in an interview.

Ginter Suits Pile Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three lawsuits tatalling more than $4 million were filed Friday in supreme court against industrialist Ben Ginter and one of his companies.

Ginter's holdings were put into receivership earlier this week by the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commece.

The bank is suing Ginter for $165,214, which it claims he owes it after guaranteeing the liabilities of Uncle Ben's Beverages Ltd.

It also seeks $1,012,658 under a similar bond guaranteeing the liabilities of the beverage company, and seeks $2,948,303 under a bond in which Ginter is said to have guaranteed the liabilities of Ben Ginter Constuction Ltd.

The bank also seeks a court accounting of funds it says Ginter owed in connection with a mortgage on land in Prince George.

The final suit was filed by British Columbia Hydro, which is seeking $18,656 it claims is owing against Uncle Ben's Industries Ltd. for carriage of goods between June, 1973 and June, 1974.

Cannery Cheques Bounce

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The Port Simpson connery — the Indian self-help project launched with a $10 million commitment by the former New Democratic Party government — is in serious financial trouble, according to the Vancouver Sun.

The newspaper says payroll cheques totalling at least $60,000 have bounced at the Bank of Montreal here and much larger accounts with various suppliers are believed to be outstanding.

A $200,000 operating account of the Pacific North Coast Native Co-Operative, which opened the cannery last year, has been frozen pending an examination by provincial government officials.

The cannery is located in a small coastal village about 30 miles northwest of here.

Labor Minister Allan Williams, the minister responsible for Indian affairs in British Columbia, said Thursday the entire scheme, conceived by the old Social Credit government of W. A. C. Bennett and promoted by the NDP, is under review.

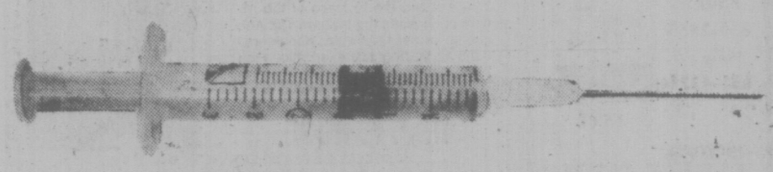
He declined further comment, however, until all information on the matter is analyzed.

Directors of the native co-operative met with Williams last week in a bid to solve start-up problems that were compounded by a poor fishing year.

The provincial government is deeply involved in the cannery project because most of the $10 million pledged by the NDP in grants, loans and guarantees has already been put up.

One Port Simpson store owner is holding $4,000 in bad cheques, the post office at Klemtu, near Ocean Falls, is stuck for $9,500, and the Prince Rupert post office is reported to have cashed about $20,000 in cheques, the newspaper says.

The cannery project has been a centre of controversy since it was first proposed in a dispute between provincial and federal authorities over economic development for the Indians.



Law Bans The Bullets But Allows Guns

Why don't they outlaw this drug-taking paraphernalia?

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Trafficking in the paraphernalia needed to prepare or administer illicit drugs has become a million dollar a year business in the province.

And there is little, if anything, police can do to curb it for legislation designed to control or restrict the trade is practically non-existent.

The situation presents a strange anomoly in our laws. As one officer put it "it's like banning the sale of bullets but not the gun."

The extent of the problem was raised for the first time in the Second Findings report of the Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit (CLEU), released last December.

In the report investigators concluded the availability of drug paraphernalia is widespread, particularly in Vancouver and Victoria.

Comments by local police officials and a survey conducted by the Times of some shops in the Victoria downtown core supported the report's conclusion.

STAPLES

In one shop in Bastion Square, roachclips, coke spoons, pipes trade marked H. M. Prisons Only (they're imported from California) and other drug cult accoutrements are blatantly displayed and sold with impunity. Several import stores on Government sell the Arab water-cooled hookahs — a pipe made popular by marijuana-smoking aficionados. And in one shop mock opium pipes were listed for sale in two sizes — $8.98 and $10.98. Asked whether they worked, the clerk just shyly shook her head. She didn't know.

Some of the import stores have resisted the temptation to get involved in such trade. At Cost Plus, for example, manager Mrs. Muriel Ratcliffe, said she is so opposed to it she doesn't even sell Patchouli oil or posters which carry a drug theme.

"I know it's not against the law to sell them," she said. "But I feel it's against the moral law."

Inspector Dave Staples, head of the Greater Victoria drug squad, said he imagined there were hundreds of outlets in town where a person could buy drug paraphernalia.

He decried also the availability of the publication High Times which he said tends to play up and glamorize the drug culture. If he had his way he'd see it banned.

CLEU investigators noted the Winter, 1975, edition of the magazine contained no fewer than 22 ads for marijuana paraphernalia ranging from a full-page ad for a "Grass Hopper" for "sorting seeds and stems from your own stash" to ads for drug equipment catalogues.

"If the magazine appeared 10 or 15 years ago there'd be such a hue and cry the vendors would be forced to take it off their shelves," Staples said.

He said the biggest difficulty is trying to deal with the drug paraphernalia problem is public apathy.

Part of the reason for that attitude is the liberalizing trend in society but part also can be attributed to the seeming hopelessness of finding some control mechanism as much of the drug equipment has a legitimate use as well.

For instance a person trying to purchase a set of scales, or a syringe or No. 5 gelatin capsules or glass tubing could conceivably be a homemaker needing scales for cooking, a diabetic requiring a needle for his insulin shot, an aquarium keeper who uses the No. 5 cap for measuring out fish food or an amateur chemist wanting glassware to carry out experiments.

The B.C. College of Pharmacists has addressed itself to the problem and last June passed a bylaw prohibiting druggists from selling hypodermic syringes and needles "unless he has established to his reasonable satisfaction that they are required for a lawful purpose." The bylaw also bans the pharmacist from advertising syringes and requires him to store them in an area where the public does not have access.

But there are no strictures on the sale of capsules used to cut and store heroin although pressure is being brought to bear on the pharmacist who sells them indiscriminately.

Parke Davis is the only manufacturer of No. 5 capsules in Canada and they're used for encapsulating Benadryl, an anthistamine which can be bought without prescription. The company recently announced it is planning to discontinue producing the No. 5 caps.

But they are still available from the Kobayshi Pharmaceutical Company of Japan. One Vancouver drugstore ordered five million of them between August 1972 and February 1973.

"It does not seem likely that all the capsules had a legal use," the CLEU report wryly notes.

Ralph Storey, who manages the surgical supply division of McGill and Orme in Victoria, said it was once almost a daily occurrence to have someone with an obvious ulterior motive try to purchase drug paraphernalia.

Storey said scales, caps, and glassware such as thistle tubes are not sold to the general public; rather only "to those whom we know."

And as to syringes a purchaser must be able to prove by either a letter from his doctor or by perscription that he is a diabetic or has some other valid use for the equipment.

Storey said he and most other pharmacists in Victoria work closely with the RCMP in spotting and informing on possible drug users, a fact confirmed by Staples.

"In this town we get pretty good co-operation from the drug stores," the inspector said.

Notwithstanding the availability of drug paraphernalia and the lack of any trade controls, Staples said he still felt enforcement was "the only form of control which has any salutory effect on the drug problem."

He wondered whether a vendetta mounted to crush the trafficking in paraphernalia would prove effective.

"The addict would just turn to other methods," he said.

Or put another way, the devil you know is perhaps better than the devil you don't.

Mallard Raps Sewer Laxity

The scrapping of regulations requiring certification of contractors installing sewage disposal systems is a step backward, Derrick Mallard, president of the Citizens' Association to Save the Environment, said today.

"This isn't a very impressive start for a new minister of Health," he said. "Instead of improving or tightening health regulations, he relaxes them."

Health Minister Bob McClelland last week rescinded the regulation and substitue education programs which would be available to contractors on a voluntary basis.

He said he ordered the change after contractors complained about the system.

Mallard recalled that the regulations were set up a year ago at the request of regional medical officials because they were having problems with some contractors not following regulations.

Under the regulations, contractors had to prove they understood regulations controlling construction and repair of sewage systems.

"Medical officials had valid reasons for requesting some controls on sewage construction contractors," said Mallard. "But the minister chose to ignore them."

Mallard said the voluntary educational program won't work.

"It's just like leaving it to motorist to stop at red traffic lights on a voluntary basis," he added.

Legion Strike Settled

Members of the Britannia Branch Legion on Blanshard can return to their favorite watering hole today with the settlement of a five-month strike.

The six members of Local 835 of the Beverage Dispensers and Culinary Workers Union who have walked the picket line in front of the legion hall since early September this morning signed a contract with the legion's management.

Union business agent Tony Gerussi said the strike started in September because the legion would not sign the same contract as other hotels in the Victoria area. The area contract signed this morning stipulates a base rate of $3.53 an hour and a top rate of $5.53 an hour, about $2 an hour more than the previous top rate.

The contract is the first to be signed at the legion since the mid-50s. The union was certified in 1954 and while union membership lapsed two years later, the local was never de-certified. It was reorganized last spring.

500 Jeering Students Fail to Flush Bennett or McGeer at ICBC Protest

Students demonstrators at the legislature Friday failed to flush out even one cabinet minister to listen to their ICBC woes and were left chanting in the cold air with only an executive assistant to listen.

The 500 car-driving students from mainly University of Victoria and Camosun College shouted for Premier Bill Bennett and minister in charge of ICBC Pat McGeer, but had to settle for Jim Bennett, McGeer's executive assistant.

McGeer left for an ICBC directors meeting in Vancouver about 15 minutes before the protesters arrived and Bennett was expected to be in his office inside the building, ignoring the crowds.

"We want McGeer . . . We want ICBC rates down and we want Premier Bill Bennett out" . . . the students bellowed.

"Just leave your cars where they be," shouted University of Victoria student organizer Eugene Raponi as blaring horns signalled the arrival of more protesters.

"There are too many cars. They'll never tow us all away."

Representatives of opposition parties addressed the boisterous crowd.

NDP MLA for Victoria Charles Barber said:

"I don't think you have compassion. You're making fun of a poor man who says he's in shock about the under 25 rate increases being so high.

"The Socreds have a problem understanding how any ordinary people feel. If you were the son of a millionaire, you'd have a hard time too."

Tory leader Scott Wallace said the rate hike is "the first boot up the rear end and we're in for more of the same kind of treatment.

"The public posture of people like Pat McGeer who says 'if you can't afford to drive a car sell it' leaves me shaken.

"What gets me is the new leader of the new party says he's shocked (when he learned about increases for under-25 drivers). Where the hell has he been these days?"

Two students left the steps to go scout the halls for cabinet ministers but returned to report: "There isn't a cabinet minister in there. Bill Bennett probably slipped out the back door."

All but three doors to the Buildings were locked and regular security was boosted, apparently a result of another demonstration several weeks ago when about 100 protesters bypassed security guards and broke into the cabinet room.

Security guards carrying walkie-talkies patrolled all entrances and several plainclothes policemen mingled with the crowd outside.

When McGeer's executive assistant tried to address the students, he was hooted down.

When the crowd gave him a chance to speak he started off by saying: "The Amchitka demonstration, when I was at university, was better than this."

More boos.

"We expected you a little earlier. The minister was prepared to meet with you."

("Bullshit, Bullshit, Bullshit" was the responding chant.)

"Let me rephrase that . . . he would have met with a number of you but he had a pre-arranged meeting with the board of directors of ICBC in Vancouver."

"Where did you rake him up from?" shouted one student. "It's all or nothing . . . we want McGeer . . ."

And when Jim Bennett said: "I'd like to talk to you about your problems" even the security guards laughed.

He asked the president of the UVic student council to prepare a brief with spcific complaints and the minister, he said, would study it next week.

"But I can't come out here and answer for government policy. I've been asked to come out by the minister to listen to your problems."

"We'll wait and see our forms and then we'll come back in bigger numbers. This was just a dress rehearsal," said a student as the cars filed away bearing "For Sale" signs and placards saying "The people of B.C. will crush facism . . . If you can't afford your government, sell it . . . Needed, election correction . . . Don't Socreds make you honk . . ."

ASK THE TIMES

Q. I would like to know the address of Spanka Music Corporation. Could you also tell me if Paul Anka owns and manages the company? If not, then who does? A.C.

A. Paul Anka is on record as being the proprietor of Spanka Music Corporation as of 1958 and Flanka Music Corporation as of the same date. The address is given as 200 W. 57th Street, New York City, N.Y. 10019.

Four Bright Lads Turned on to a Life of Discovery

Dave Peters . . . watching paramecium

Never was much of a whiz at science.

I mean, all those test tubes and bunsen burners and bubbling brews didn't fizz on me.

I was a bit dense, I guess, but while I turned eagerly to sport and tried, too, to make words work, many of my young mates stayed with their classroom witches' cauldrons. And in later life quite a few went on to make their mark in the world of science.

This week I met four such boys — boys who are "turned on" by things scientific and who, in all probability, are destined for alife of delving . . . and discovering.

All students at Belmont Secondary School, they are encouraged here by the Society for the Advancement of Young Scientists (SAYS) and right now they're getting ready.

Just like some 100 or so other students they are working on projects which they'll exhibit at the Vancouver Island Regional Science Fair, to be held in the Hillside Mall on March 18, 19 and 20. Their experiments are fascinating.

PAUL HEARSEY, a 17-year-old Grade 11 student, is designing a robot arm that will be electric and can be used in bomb disposal work or in the handling of radioactive materials, without endangering human limbs. Made of a combination of plastic and metal, the arm will to telescopic, rather like a radio antenna.

Paul is a perfectionist. He had already got well on the way with one claw but decided it was too clumsy and is back at the drawing board scaling it down. He'll have it ready for the show.

His dream is to build a model submarine to use his robot arm with. And when school days are over, Paul will probably go into oceanogrphy.

DAVE MASINI, an 18-year-old Grade 12 student,

is making a study of evaporation using different liquids and different size containers. He is working with an electronic balance to weigh the difference in evaporation every 30 seconds. It's so sensitive, he says, "that you could probably weigh your signature."

Dave hopes to go to the University of Victoria and get an engineering degree. He would also like to become a pilot.

BOB CROSBY, an 18-year-old Grade 12 studnet, is trying to build an electroencephlograph (EEG) machine capable of measuyring a person's brain-wave patterns to determine if those patterns are normal or abnormal and thus possibly detect tumors or epilepsy. He wants his macine to be able to give eight readouts.

Bob would like to continue in science but doesn't feel his grades in other subjects are good enough to enable him to do so. He plans to become a heavy-duty machinery operator but will "keep looking into science all the time."

DAVE PETERS, a 17-year-old Grade 11 student, is studying the effects of gravity, light and heat on paramecium (single-celled animal).

He is using chemicals and a powerful microscope to determine how paramecium respond to changes in the environment.

Dave says that when he graduates he plans to continue in science, in some aspect, most likely in zoology.

For these four young men and many others, the Regional Fair, being organized again by Art Dow, will be a big moment that could lead to even bigger moments.

A panel of 35 judges, headed by Dr. Bob Dobbs of the Pacific Research Centre, will select the best four exhibits from the Island and these will go on to the National Science Fair in Brandon, Manitoba, from May 15 to 23. Some $60,000 worth of prizes will be up for grabs at the national fair and the top three Canadian students are sent by Shell Oil to the Science Fornight in Britain.

"We estimated that last year 125,000 students in the country started Science Fair projects," the chairman of SAYS, Belmont science teacher Pete Robertson, told me. "Of those, 132 made it to the national fair, so you can see it's quite a weeding-out process."

The Belmont boys know that. They realize they are the "outsiders" in the race. Traditionally, the private schools (where science is compulsory for all students) have done well in the Science Fairs. At last year's Canada-wide fair, the most successful Island exhibitor was Neil Melior of Glenlyon, who built an airfoil and demonstrated its aerodynamic qualities.

But, just like the other public schools, Bemont keeps trying. And, after all, it has had its moments. In 1964, Bunty Baines (who, incidentally, has just finished her PhD in genetics) took an exhibit to the National Fair and her feat was repeated by Martin Doney of Belmont in 1974.

Next year, Island students won't have far to take their exhibits to the Canada-wide fair because for the first time it is being held in Victoria.

Hardy Canadian Queens Needed to Counter African Killer Bee

By ROSEMARY PITCHER

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — A research project, aimed at producing queen bees hardy enough to withstand Canadian winters has begun in the apiary department of University of Guelph.

Directed by Prof. George Townsend, an international authority on bees, the project is aimed at protecting Canada from an invasion of killer African bees. The swarms of vicious bees are progressing northward at a rate of 250 miles a year and are expected to reach the southern United States within 10 years.

Prof. Townsend said that while the swarms would not attack Canada directly because of its climate, the killer African strain might be transported to Canada through the queens which are imported from Louisiana each spring.

Ontario imports about 20,000 queens annually and Western Canada brings in more than 200,000. When the killer bees begin to invade the southern United States, Prof. Townsend said, they will cross-breed with American bees and the imported queen bees may produce bees with the vicious characteristics in Canada.

Queen bees have been produced in Canada and maintained during winter in storage but they cannot survive Canadian winters in natural environments, nor can they be stored in large enough quantities for spring breeding programs.

In the next 10 years Prof. Townsend and his team hope to produce queen bees in mass quantities which will withstand Canadian winters outside of colonies.

"The southern United States is going to have a real problem within a decade wth the African bees, not only from the danger of the bees themselves but with the loss of crops," Prof. Townsend said.

"Workers will not be able to go into the fields. The only way for them to combat the threat is to import another species of African bee with gentler characteristics and cross-breed with the vicious strain, now heading up from South America, to produce a gentler bee."

More Smoke in Uniform Debate

To travel to work a Victoria firefighter could wear a suit of armor, a loincloth in fire-engine red or anything else that takes his fancy — at least as far as one city alderman is concerned.

Amid the Great Uniform Controversy that's straining relations between the city administration and its fire department personnel, Ald. Bob Wright admitted Thursday: "I don't care what they wear to go to work or to go home for that matter."

His comment came as city council discussed a recommendation that new-style uniforms be purchased for the firefighters only if they agreed to wear them to and from work.

Mayor Mike Young pointed out that Fire Chief Eric Simmons considered the sipulation an "important factor" from the point of view of discipline and pride in the department.

But Young said he himself doesn't attach that much importance to the matter, and in any case he's not sure what the phrase "to work" means.

"In any event I am not all that fond of the uniform," he conceded.

Council wrapped up the uniform and sent it back to the fire prevention committee for alterations.

There's an Eerie Silence Surrounding Fabled St. Paul's

LONDON (Reuter) — For the first time in three centuries something like eerie silence enfolds St. Paul's Cathedral, London's scenic landmark and symbol of durability.

All traffic except buses has been banned from streets surrounding St. Paul's in a six-month experiment to ease congestion in the crowded commercial heart of London.

But the uncharacteristic calm has been shattered by taxi drivers who protest that the limitation, imposed Nov. 23, makes their work more difficult.

It is the latest controversy in the story of St. Paul's, whose majestic dome, crowned by cupola, golden ball and cross, is a familiar London sight.

The cathedral's foundation was laid June 21, 1675, by Britain's greatest architect, Sir Christopher Wren.

Purists often question its architecture but the old building at the foot of Fleet Street still draws some four million visitors annually.

The blitz days of the Second World War sealed London's love affair with St. Paul's.

It became a symbol of wartime resistance and fighting spirit. Through devastating air raids it stood miraculously untouched, its distinctive dome seemingly swimming atop a sea of flames.

Memories of that wartime inspiration helped evoke a big response to a 1971 appeal for 3 million to save the cathedral from collapse.

After the war, tourists sometimes paid workmen as much as £5 for chunks of souvenir shrapnel lodged in church masonry.

St. Paul's received probably the biggest single anonymous donation ever made in Britain — £1 million — and the smallest as well, a shilling from "13 loyal Scots."

As a showpiece of humanity's piety, intellectual boldness and sometimes excess, St. Paul's has seldom been rivalled.

TOGETHERNESS: It's obvious that this flock of seagulls has never heard of Jonathon Livingston Seagull as they line up on a cable near the Lake Michigan shoreline in Milwaukee.

Irish Coffee Honored

SHANNON, Ireland (CP) — A plaque has been unveiled here to the man who invented Irish coffee.

Irish coffee, as it is known throughout the world today, made its first appearance in 1944 when it warmed passengers disembarking from a transatlantic flying boat at Foynes.

Before then the drinking of tea or coffee laced with whisky was quite usual, but on that day at the old flying-boat base on the Shannon Estuary, the recipe of coffee, whisky and sugar topped with whipped cream made its first appearance.

The recipe was devised through trial and error by chef Joe Sheridan, a Dubliner who became the first chef at the terminal when catering operations at the base were taken over from British Overseas Airways in 1943.

One of the first requests made by passengers who had spent some 10 to 15 hours crossing the Atlantic from the United States was for a hot drink. Hot coffee, tea or whisky, and sometimes tea or coffee laced with whisky were served. Then Irish coffee made its memorable appearance.

Sheridan spent five years at the base before emigrating to the U.S. He worked in San Francisco, Las Vegas and Honolulu and died in Midway Island in 1962.

The subsequent world-wide popularity of Irish coffee was credited to American writer Stanton Delaplane, who informed millions of readers about Irish coffee through his syndicated columns.

It soon appeared at many fashionable establishments throughout the U.S. and Canada, most notably at the Bona Vista restaurant in San Francisco, which became a rendezvous for Irish coffee drinkers.

Speaking at the unveiling of the plaque, Brendan O'Reagan, chairman of Shannon Development, the non-profit corporation entrusted with developing Ireland's mid-west region, described Sheridan as "a singularly imaginative man."

Irish coffee fans will drink to that.

Crocks in Cellar

LATINA, Italy (Reuter) — A 33-year-old man, who kept 150 crocodiles in an underground pool at his villa, has been charged with cruelty to animals. Police said he sold the crocodiles to a local butcher who killed them for skins.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

CITY OF VICTORIA
FEBRUARY, 1976
MUNICIPAL BY-ELECTION FOR ALDERMAN

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to the Electors of the Municipality of Victoria that I require the presence of the said Electors in Committee Room 1, City Hall, 1 Centennial Square, in the aforesaid City on MONDAY, the NINTH day of FEBRUARY, 1976, at TEN o'clock a.m. for the purpose of electing a person to represent them as to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Alderman Robert Samuel Bawlf and to serve for the residue of his two year term, 1975 and 1976.

The mode of nomination of Candidates shall be as follows:

Candidates shall be nominated in writing by two duly qualified electors of the municipality. The nomination-paper shall be delivered to the Returning Officer at any time between the date of this Notice and TWELVE o'clock noon the day of nomination. The nomination-paper may be in the form prescribed in the "Municipal Act," and shall state the name, residence and occupation of the person nominated, in such a manner as to sufficiently identify such Candidate. The nomination-paper shall be subscribed to by the Candidate.

In the event of a poll being necessary, such poll will be opened at the building known as the Senior Citizens' Activity Centre, 4 Centennial Square, in the City of Victoria aforesaid, on SATURDAY, the TWENTY-EIGHTH day of FEBRUARY, 1976, between the hours of EIGHT o'clock a.m. and EIGHT o'clock p.m. of which every person is hereby required to take notice and govern himself accordingly.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that for those qualified electors signing a statement that they expect to be absent from their voting area on Polling Day or who are for reasons of conscience, prevented from voting on Polling Day or who through circumstances beyond their control, will not be able to attend the poll on Polling Day, an Advanced Poll will be held in the City Clerk's Office, City Hall, Victoria, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY and FRIDAY, 25TH, 26TH and 27TH FEBRUARY, 1976.

Given under my hand at Victoria, British Columbia, this 29th day of January, 1976

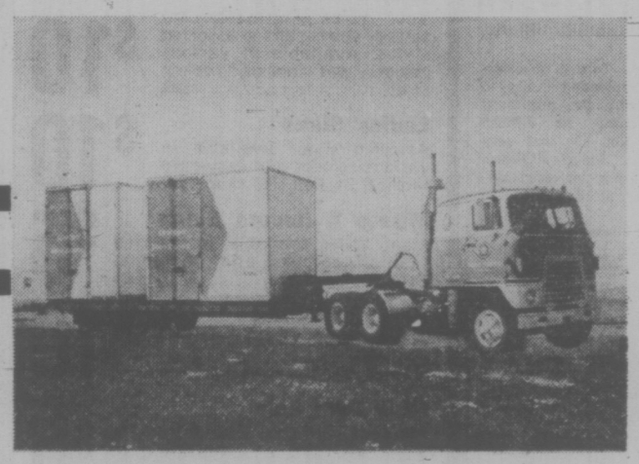
take a look at this vehicle . . .



it's a moving van, right?

Wrong. It's the latest thing in long-distance moving.
It's called Domestic Container Service

WHAT'S THAT, YOU SAY?

Domestic Container Service is a form of unitized moving. Shippers and transport companies have been doing it 20 years. Now *United Van Lines has introduced this accepted concept to domestic moves. It results in on-time loading and delivery and eliminates unnecessary handling of furniture.

THIS NEW WAY OF MOVING:
- DECREASES COSTS
- PROVIDES BETTER SERVICE
- REDUCES DAMAGE
- REDUCES FRUSTRATIONS, UNEASINESS

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO YOU?

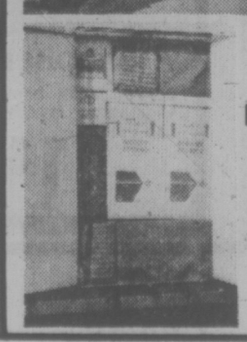
- On-Time Loading and Delivery. No other person's shipment can interfere with your loading date and time.
- Reduced Transit Time. There is no delay in transit caused by the need to "fill out" a furniture van.
- Complete Security. Your household goods are enclosed in strong, waterproof, tested fibreglas containers—by themselves. Each customer has own container or containers.
- Less Handling. Once your goods are loaded, wrapped in Sanitized furniture pads, they are sealed in, not disturbed until you break the seal at your new residence.
- Exclusive use of containers means more protection for you and your family. Your goods are not mixed with someone elses'. All our containers and pads are sanitized frequently to ensure your safety.
- Defined Responsibility. Places the responsibility for loading, transporting and unloading where it belongs—with your United member at origin and destination.
- Air-Ride Transportation. Air-ride suspension trailers menas your containers are gentled from one place to another.
- Computer Control. Computer knows where your container is at all times, tells us when delivery will take place—for sure.

this is the way we move you long distance now:

1. All household goods are packed and prepared for transportation in the normal manner;
2. On loading day United's container loading specialists arrive with specially-designed containers, clean, Sanitized and locked;
3. The ease of loading will please you, and if you wish, a seal will be provided that you yourself can seal the container doors with;
4. Your container shipment is gently handled by fork-lift from the local container *trailer onto the highway container-trailer;
5. United's central dispatch with computer-control speeds your container to destination city on air-cushion-ride container trailer;
6. If storage in transit is required, your container is not unloaded but stored with supervision at a United member's location;
7. Delivery at destination is accomplished in the same manner as loading, by container specialists. You can break the seal on the container doors.

Sanitized furniture pads protect your treasured items from jiggling and scratching

Fork lifting one of the units to the highway container



Packed unit means every item travels right way up!

of course, we also specialize in local moves too!
